JIM MacMURDO

One of the barriers West Virginia University will have to get past today as the Mountaineers face Pitt in the Stadium will be the stalwart McMurdo, the Panthers' hefty left tackle. McMurdo is filling the shoes of 1928 All-American Mike Getto.

Only Small News, But—
Two Fine Girls.
An Age of Big Numbers.
The Three T's.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

IN such a day of small news, the wise man would limit himself as Will Rogers always does, to three or four paragraphs.

The baseball game interests, intensely, more Americans than any other one thing, probably.

THE excitement of the Ramsay MacDonald visit is past. In New York he receives Mr. Thomas, Socialist candidate for mayor and others on the Socialist ticket.

Big business realizes with a shudder that MacDonald is a Socialist, and this government of big money has made a most important agreement with the representatives of socialism.

A DAY that seems very dull, sometimes turns out, later, to be very important.

On the 14th of July, the French tore down the Bastile, which meant tearing down the French monarchy and an end of rule by kings, nobles and church.

On that very day King Louis the Sixteenth, who lost his head later, wrote in his diary the one word "Rien," meaning "nothing."

He had gone shooting at Fontainebleau, and hadn't killed anything. But, the French people had killed something.

PERHAPS on quiet yesterday some important thing happened, more important than the fact that in quiet Philadelphia, Chicago's "Cubs" beat the "Athletics," 3 to 1.

Who could have guessed when a young French nobleman ordered his lackeys to waylay and cudgel Voltaire, that he was planning the downfall of his own class.

THERE are some serious young women left in the world, thank the Lord. Therefore, future generations may hope for more Lincolns and Edisons.

Miss Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of the Labor prime minister, spends her time in New York investigating childrens' courts, as she does in England. She thinks "if we gave children good homes, sanitary conveniences, and generally good conditions, their morals would take care of themselves."

THAT'S one fine young woman. Another is the daughter of Mr. Morrow, ambassador to Mexico, and younger sister of Mrs. Lindbergh.

When she reaches Mexico City Miss Morrow will teach in a Mexican public school.

The fact that her father has millions does not concentrate her attention upon herself, or diminish her interest in the welfare of children.

WE live in the age of big numbers. New Jersey has dug up a crocodile 60,000,000 years old.

Eddington, deep and immensely learned British astronomer, says the distance from the earth to Sirius is 50 billion miles, asking you to remember that the British billion is "one million millions," not a mere one thousand millions as with us.

PRESENTLY you may see the petrified, bony sockets from which that ancient crocodile once looked out upon the Eocene period. What did he see as he lay waiting for some inferior creature, fit to eat?

What will human eyes see, looking out upon this world 60,000,000

DUKES AND PITT GRID HOSTS

By JESS CARVER.

Those valiant sons of old West Virginia, in well nigh countless array, head the descent on Pittsburgh today of the football army. Local defenses will be manned by the stalwarts of Pitt and of Duquesne, with the latter fighting off the attack of the Albion, Mich., eleven.

West Virginia comes here today to launch an attack by air, seeking to repeat the triumph scored at the Panthers' expense a year ago and to restore Mountaineer football stock to a spot somewhere near par. So far, Ira Rodgers' eleven has done little to crow over, only a victory over West Virginia Wesleyan being on hand to offset the Davis-Elkins defeat and the tie with Dukes.

Pitt, with two triumphs to its credit so far and with a point total of 105, having gone through the rigors (if they may be termed such) of an intersectional contest, rules a strong favorite over the Mountaineers this day. So well is the Panther eleven regarded by those who add to the zest of the ball game by placing a bet here and there, that

Former Mrs. Dodge Gets New Divorce

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Mrs. Lois Dodge Manning, former wife of Horace E. Dodge, Jr., was granted a divorce from Benjamin Manning, her second husband and formerly a United States Army lieutenant stationed in Hawaii. Mrs. Manning and Manning were married in September, 1927, and lived together for only six weeks. She was divorced from her first husband, Horace E. Dodge, Jr., June 11, 1927.

GRAVE HIDES TRACES OF GIRL'S BATTLE WITH STRANGLER

To her grave in Calvary Cemetery, Marjorie O'Donnell, former Pittsburgh newspaperwoman, carried the secret of whether she struggled for her life before she was strangled to death in a Washington hotel by the jealous young salesman who wanted to marry her.

Washington police today were seeking to establish that Miss O'Donnell had fought off Dexter Dayton, the confessed slayer, and to this end were considering asking Coroner W. J. McGregor to exhume the body.

CORONER HERE READY

The Washington authorities feel that a second examination of the body may show that Miss O'Donnell's wrists were broken, as an undertaker in the capital is reported to have declared. This would indicate that a fierce struggle had preceded her death, it was believed.

Proof of such a struggle might be vital in the trial of the young killer, the authorities said.

If the Washington police want the body exhumed, Coroner McGregor announced that he would grant the request. Their first request yesterday for an examination of the body arrived too late, several hours after the funeral.

DRY PROSECUTOR'S HOME DYNAMITED

SHARON, Pa., Oct. 12.—A dynamite explosion, heard for miles, demolished the front porch of the home of District Attorney Leo H. McKay, nemesis of bootleggers, early today.

McKay, his wife, his mother-in-law, Mrs. A. C. Ellis, and his three children, Alice, 6; Margaret, 4, and Donald, 1, asleep on the second floor, were badly shaken up, but were unhurt.

They probably owe their lives to the sturdy construction of the brick residence. The enclosed porch was blown to bits, windows shattered and the front wall of the house shoved inward slightly. A frame house would have been demolished, police said.

Half a dozen sticks of dynamite had been placed inside the entrance of the porch of the McKay home, which is two miles out of Sharon on the Sharon-Mercer road.

The charge let go at 1:40 a. m. The blast was heard in Sharon and throughout the countryside.

Shortly after the explosion, twin brothers, James and Alvin Norman, 19, of Trouts Corners, were arrested on suspicion. Their auto had been ditched near the McKay home and they had been towed out by a garage employe, police said. Prosecutor McKay said he did not think the youths had any connection with the dynamiting.

McKay is credited with a thorough-going clean up of Mercer County since his election two years ago. Three big liquor raids were staged under his direction which are

MacDonald Rests On 63rd Birthday

By DAVID P. SENTNER
International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Sixty-three years ago a babe was born in a humble cottage at Lossiemouth on the bleak, wind-swept coast of Scotland.

But for the grace of indomitable will and the burning desire to aid his fellow men, Ramsay MacDonald might well have turned out a fisherman or farm laborer.

Today, as Prime Minister of Great Britain, first commoner of his land, leader of the working man and the cause of international peace, the star of Ramsay MacDonald hangs high.

CAKE AT BREAKFAST

On his sixty-third birthday, the visiting premier has something to celebrate. He came to a foreign land on a delicate diplomatic mission. He leaves with his message of amity enthusiastically received and Great Britain and the United States brought side by side in an invitation for reduction of armament.

So busy has been his average day that the prime minister's official family and his daughter, Ishbel, decided to take no chances but serve a birthday cake at breakfast today.

Hundreds of telegrams poured in congratulating the prime minister on his natal day. Ishbel said that she had a surprise for her father but would not reveal what it was.

Following a strenuous day of three revealing speeches, the Pre-

CHARLEY ROOT SET TO TEST A'S IN CRUCIAL GAME

By CHARLES J. DOYLE,
Staff Correspondent.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—The Cubs have tasted of victory and they ought to be tough. The fourth battle of the world series is on for this afternoon and there is much reason for the confidence in the camp of the National League.

Warmer weather, with cloudy skies, was predicted for the fourth game of the series. The temperature is expected to reach almost the 70-degree mark.

Joe McCarthy led a band of real fighters onto a strange ball yard yesterday afternoon, but a ball field is a ball field, after all, and the Bruins were just about as mad as they could get without breaking the laws of the commonwealth. From the moment they appeared in view, the Cubs fought and they were still scrapping when Rogers Hornsby threw out George Haas to bring the third clash of the titular series to a close, 3 to 1, in favor of the Bears.

And when that put-out was recorded, the National League had succeeded in snapping a losing streak that has been an ache and a pain to those who profess sympathies for the Heydler circuit. Ten times in a row over a three-year period had a junior circuit team walloped the representative of the National League, so that there were many with relieved feelings late yesterday afternoon when the Chicago victory was made complete.

FLEEING SUSPECT LEAPS INTO RIVER

Fleet-footed Edward Voegler, a city patrolman, runs the 100-yard dash in 11 seconds—but that isn't fast enough, he realized today. And if only he could swim that fast. . .

Down Liberty avenue at 4:30 a. m. today Voegler chased a supposed thief.

The supposed thief was pretty fast, for Voegler, speed merchant of the police field meets, failed to gain on him.

At the end of Liberty avenue the fugitive had three courses—straight ahead, to the right or the left. He ran straight ahead—into the Monongahela River.

He whisked his coat off as he hit the water. He dove under a barge and came up on the other side.

Voegler waded in and grabbed the coat. Patrolman Frank Hutchison, following, fired a shot into the air.

But the man disappeared. Either

HOOVER PLANNING NO TRIP TO LONDON

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—It was learned today at the White House that President Hoover has no intention of leaving the Western Hemisphere at any time during his term in office.

This information came in response to newspaper reports that the Chief Executive would return the visit of Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald at some time in the near future.

There also had been some speculation as to whether Mr. Hoover would go to London for the coming conference on the limitation of naval armaments.

While precluding any visit to Europe during the time that he is in office, Mr. Hoover has left the way open for journeys to Mexico City and Cuba, which have been indicated as being contemplated by the Chief Executive.

STOLEN BY GYPSIES, GIRL SOUGHT HERE

City and county detectives today launched a county-wide search for Ruby Mitchell, 14, St. Joseph, Mich., girl, alleged by her father, John Mitchell, to have been kidnaped by a band of gypsies and brought to Pittsburgh. At the same time $1,400 in gold was said to have disappeared.

Four men and a woman, arrested in connection with the alleged kidnaping, were held under heavy bail when they refused to waive extradition. They gave their names as John Tennis, 52, alleged leader of the band which pitched its camp on the South Side; a son, John, 27, and his wife, Helen, 26; another son, Theodore, and Alex Christo.

One of the band is alleged to have told detectives that the missing girl was in a camp near Pitcairn, but no trace of her had been found early today.

Mitchell is said to be the leader of a rival band of gypsies.

LINDY NORTHWARD BOUND FROM MIAMI

MIAMI, Fla., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, "northward bound," hopped off from here at 6:52 a. m. today. His flight plans will be determined by the weather, he said.

Delayed by inclement weather and fatigue, Col. Lindbergh rested here yesterday after completing a 9,000-mile inspection flight around the Caribbean Sea, including a four-day aerial exploration of ancient Mayan ruins in Central America.

"My plans for my trip northward are entirely indefinite," Col. Lindbergh said.

"I do not care to say at this time what my destination will be. My only statement is that I am going north."

TRIAL RESUMES AS FALL RISKS DEATH FOR VINDICATION

DEFENDANT WHEELED TO COURT

Ill With Pneumonia, Defies Doctors' Orders to Avoid Declaration of Mistrial

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Seeking "vindication," Albert B. Fall today was wheeled into court to go on with his trial on the charge that he received a $100,000 bribe from Edward L. Doheny, California oil man, while he was secretary of the interior.

Although his illness has alarmed his family and personal physician and has been described as bronchial pneumonia by medical experts acting for Justice Hitz, he preferred to risk death in the District of Columbia Supreme Court rather than have a mistrial declared.

Doheny sat on one side of Fall while the former cabinet officer's physician and nurse were on the other side.

"TRIAL BY ORDEAL"

His condition was reported "somewhat improved" several hours after yesterday's session of the court, where he appeared in a wheel chair over the protests of his lawyers, physicians and family in his effort to force continuance of the trial, which Hitz described as a "trial by ordeal" for both Fall and the jury.

As a result of his success in that effort, further witnesses were called for today by the government to prove its contention that he was bribed by Doheny to lease the Elk Hills, Cal., Naval Oil Reserve to one of the latter's companies. The defense, and Doheny, facing a similar charfie, has contended for years that the $100,000 involved was a loan from one old friend to another.

The groundwork of their cases was laid by opposing counsel early in the week, before the recurrence of his long-standing bronchial trouble caused Fall to leave the court Tuesday.

RANCH PURCHASE CITED

Providing a foundation for further evidence having to do with the $100,000 Fall received from Doheny, C. C. Chase, Fall's son-in-law, and former customs collector at El Paso, Tex., has told of the purchase by the former cabinet officer of the Harris ranch in New Mexico with the money. Fall brought the money in cash to El Paso, Chase said, and it was paid out of their joint bank account.

Terms of the Pearl harbor, Hawaii, Naval oil storage tank contracts, as well as the Elk Hills lease are to be brought before the court. E. C. Finney, first assistant Secretary of the Interior under Fall, produced the documents in the agreements, and explained that most of the negotiations had been carried on while Fall was out of the city.

2 STRANGLINGS IN SENATE QUIZ

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—New rumors and information bearing on the Capital's two sensational strangling cases engaged police and Department of Justice investigators today as a Senate committee prepared to begin a sweeping inquiry into District of Columbia affairs.

Greatest activity was shown in the Justice Department's investigation of the death of young Mrs. Virginia McPherson, first called a suicide, then placed before the grand jury and now described as murder, with her estranged husband of eight months, Robert A. McPherson, Jr., charged with the crime.

Accusations of police bungling in that case will provide the mainspring for the Senate investigation, ordered under a resolution by Senator Blease (Dem.), South Carolina, to go into the administration of the police department, the district attorney's office and the District of Columbia commissioners.

Questioning of Dr. Thomas Ballard, of New York, once a close friend of Mrs. McPherson, has occupied justice department agents for hours and been attended by frequent hurried trips to various parts of the city. While the information he has divulged has not been disclosed, he was regarded as a highly important witness to bring out circumstances thought to bear on the young nurse's death.

Other agents, meanwhile, were sent to China Grove, N. C., to exhume the body, which was found in her room with a pajama belt tightly knotted around the throat, for a new, thorough autopsy with a view particularly to finding out whether she was operated on shortly before her death and whether her skull was fractured.

Exhumation of the body of young Miss Majorie O'Donnell at Pittsburgh, on behalf of the police, charged with investigating her more recent strangulation also had been considered to find out whether her wrists were broken.

New Castle Man Suicide in Capital

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—James Eugene Agan, 31, correspondent for a Paris newspaper, who cut his wrists and throat with a razor blade, pierced his breast with an ice pick and then fell six stories to his death yesterday, was declared a suicide today. His parents live at New Castle, Pa.

An incoherent note found in the Agan apartment said he had been accused "of an act of immorality and decided to step out." He asked that his brother in Philadelphia be notified.

Agan returned from Europe a few months ago, police learned.

GIRL BATTLED SLAYER, BELIEF

John O'Donnell, editor of the Oil City Derrick, and former managing editor of the Pittsburgh Dispatch.

First spurning attorneys and crying only for the service of a priest, Dayton today took heart when lawyers, engaged by an anonymous friend, had a talk with him.

As a result today began elaborate efforts to prevent Dayton escaping death through the plea that the murder of Miss O'Donnell was not premeditated.

FLOUT SUICIDE TALE

Authorities sought to discredit the theory that Dayton did not deliberaely plan the killing. They throw cold water on his story that after the murder he tried to commit suicide.

Dayton put forward the claim today that he did not intend to kill Miss O'Donnell, although he had a revolver and 50 cartridges with him. Police believe he may have intended to shoot her, but decided on strangulation because it was less likely to attract attention in a hotel. Dayton says he always carried the gun and plenty of cartridges. The revolver was found in the hotel room.

FIERCE FIGHT HINTED

That Miss O'Donnell had put up a much harder fight for her life than the 25-year-old insurance salesman indicated in his confession was the theory of local police today.

It was reported the undertaker who prepared the girl's body for burial had found both wrists broken. This was not noted at the coroner's autopsy.

Dayton told police he strangled his "sweetheart" as she slept. He said she awakened, but after struggling some, gradually lapsed into unconsciousness. There was nothing in his story about a struggle fierce enough to fracture her wrists. Some blood was found on his shirt and her evening dress, and there were scratches on her legs and arms, however.

Salvation Army Impostor Sought

Several credulous residents of the Hill district applied at the Salvation Army headquarters today with tickets entitling each of them to 10 baskets of groceries.

They told Army officials they had paid $1 for the tickets last night to a man representing himself as connected with the Army.

City detectives are searching for the fake ticket seller.

A report that several residents of the Mt. Washington district had been approached by the fake ticket seller also was received at detective headquarters.

8 UNDER BOND IN KILLING

MARION, N. C., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Probable cause having been found against them, eight McDowell County officers, charged with murder as a result of a strike riot on October 2 at the Marion Manufacturing Company's cotton mill here, in which six strikers were wounded fatally, were under bonds of $3,000 each today for their appearance at the next term of Superior Court.

Judge W. F. Harding dismissed eight other officers against whom strikers had brought similar charges at the conclusion yesterday of a week's investigation of the riot. He ruled there was not sufficient evidence.

The eight held had admitted firing at strikers during the riot, but contended the shots had been in self-defense. Judge Harding held that a jury should pass upon whether they were justified in shooting.

WILLIAM GOODMAN "TRIX"

"Trix," missing for three years, was returned to her master, Goodman, 2419 Jane street, by a traffic policeman when she "recognized" Goodman's voice. Goodman came upon the dog downtown.

Dog, Gone Three Years, Knows Master's Voice

Somewhere a policeman at Fourth avenue and Smithfield street heard that a dog always knows its master's voice. He used this to advantage in returning "Trix," a German police dog, to its owner after a three-year absence.

November 1, 1926, William Goodman, of 2419 Jane street, South Side, lost "Trix," who was then three years old. Wednesday he saw her at Fourth avenue and Smithfield street. With her were a man and two boys.

RECOGNIZES VOICE

Goodman spoke to "Trix" and she recognized him. In fact "Trix" made her recognition most emphatic. She leaped on him, licked his hands and made known the fact that she was indeed glad to see her former master once more. When a crowd collected the unknown Solomon made his appearance.

"Whose dog is this?" he asked after the circumstances had been explained by Goodman.

"A dog always knows its master's voice," the policeman said. "Let's see if she knows yours."

STANDS THE TEST

Goodman ordered "Trix" into his truck, parked at the curb. She leaped in through an open window.

"She's yours. Move on and clear away this crowd," the officer told Goodman.

The man and boys who accompanied "Trix" disappeared after they told Goodman, he said, they purchased her for $25 on the North Side nearly three year ago.

Now "Trix" is back home, as happy as a dog can be.

BUS HEARING ADVANCED ONE DAY

Civic Bodies Summon Experts In Battle Against Motor Transportaion Rates Here

Expert bus operators will be called to testify before the Public Service Commission October 23 in the fight of various civic bodies to bring about a reduction in the 25-cent fare rate charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company.

The hearing was to have been held Thursday, October 24, but the commission sent out word to all parties concerned that the date had been moved forward one day. The various civic bodies have gathered a mass of data to prove that the rate as charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company is excessive and out of reason. This will include costs, grades, distances, etc.

ASK ZONE RATES

Harry Bastow, president of the Allied Board of Trade, said that efforts are to be made to not only have lower fares established but zone rates applied to operations. This zone rate is used in many other cities in the United States, as well as in European countries.

Attorney W. G. Negley, president of the Oakland Board of Trade, Mr. Bastow and others, who are leading in the fight on rates, have gathered a large amount of data to combat contentions which will be set up by the Motor Coach Company regarding bus operations in other cities.

If any other city charges as high a rate as Pittsburgh, distance of runs considered, advocates of lower fares say the name of such municipality is yet to be revealed.

LOWER FARE ELSEWHERE

What the advocates of lower fares hope to prove is that buses can and are being operated successfully on a lower fare rate than charged by the Pittsburgh Motor Coach Company. They expect to prove this is being done not only in Pittsburgh, but in the leading cities of the nation.

Opening of new thoroughfares, improvement of many, and other factors entering into the situation make it plain, it is claimed, that an exhorbitant rate is not only being charged to Pittsburghers, but every possible effort made to stifle competition to the detriment of the general public.

he swam to the other side of the river or was drowned, police believe.

The police are preparing to drag the river. They believe the man was Paul A. Edens, of 435 Carson street, who, Voegler reported, pushed his wife into the Allegheny River 19 months ago. Voegler said he recognized the man as Edens. Also, a letter in the coat bore Edens' name.

DRIVER STARTS CHASE

The chase followed a complaint by a taxicab driver, Charles E. Fox, of 1209 Arch street.

Fox said Edens was one of two passengers in his cab. At Carson and South Main streets the man leaped from the cab as the other shouted, "I've been robbed."

Fox drove the victim to West End Police Station and, returning, recognized the fugitive on the Point Bridge. He located Voegler and Hutchinson downtown and the chase followed.

mier planned a long-delayed rest, including a private joy-ride up the picturesque Hudson River road.

ISHBEL TO SEE GAME

Ishbel was scheduled in the afternoon to see an American football game.

The prime minister had no official speaking engagements after a day of three important addresses in which he told gatherings of his hopes for world peace as the result of his conferences with President Hoover.

He described the new diplomacy as "the spirit of men coming together not for the purpose of dividing the world into alliances and groups, but by their own agreements helping the world to come to a general agreement that will be universal and not meticuious."

"During the entire course of the conversations between President Hoover and myself there never has been any idea whatever of an exlusive understanding between Great Britain and the United States," he said. "There has been nothing discussed which the two governments would not be happy to see discussed on the same basis with all the powers in the world.

"The understanding we have been trying to establish always will be incomplete and unsatisfactory until it has become the common possession of all the nations on the face of the earth.

DESCRIBES PARLEY

"We never shall be able to effect physical disarmament until we have succeeded in effecting moral disarmament.

"We have declared no war can take place between us. We cannot conceive any circumstances under which the armed forces of the United States and Great Britain can come into conflict."

Then MacDonald, the peace maker, revealed to some extent how he and President Hoover came to their epochal agreement.

"We did not try to maneuver each other into position or out of position," he said. "We tried for no alliances and no balances of power.

"We did not sit down to play a creeping and waiting game. We did not watch each other as swordsmen watch each other or as prize fighters study the faces of each other.

"We did not begin by offering little things, trying to best each other and then to advance step by step and stage by stage. We didn't examine statements meticulously in order to discover how we could put something over the other without his knowing it.

FRANK DISCUSSION

"The method was entirely different. We knew what we were out for. We stated the difficulties of our respective countries. He told me his, I equally frankly told him mine. He told me what he thought he could do. I told him what I thought I could do. He told me what public opinion demanded of him. I told him what public opinion demanded of me.

"In that simplicity and informality, we conducted our negotiations and that is the reason why, in four brief days, we came to conclusions that ended the old diplomacy would have taken at least as many months to have achieved."

The prime minister's address before the Council of Foreign Relations was broadcast internationally.

Only this week county detectives, McKay's subordinates, raided the Sharon Country Club, prior to the annual banquet marking the conclusion of the golfing season. A bushel basket full of pints and half-pints of liquor were confiscated.

In connection with the raid, Dr. C. H. Bailey and Homer Hostetter were ordered held for court today by Alderman H. E. Phipps on charges of possessing intoxicating liquors. The holding of the two men today makes three so ordered by Phipps, Paul Achre, local advertising man, having been ordered held last night when 10 others were released and the decision in the case of Dr. Bailey and Hostetter held over for consideration by the alderman.

The Mercer County Commissioners met this morning and authorized a reward of $2,000 for information concerning those responsible for the dynamiting. County officers believed the explosives were set off by persons from outside the county, who were hired by persons engaged in illicit liquor traffic.

FUND CHARGE CONFRONTS AIMEE

Inquiry of Temple Affairs May Go to Grand Jury; Linked in Pantages Case

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—As Deputy District Attorney Daniel Beecher announced today that he would press investigation of Aimee Semple McPherson's Angelus Temple account books, the name of the noted woman evangelist was linked with the Pantages family.

Her appearance before a grand jury is possible, Beecher said.

Mrs. McPherson may face charges of misappropriation of funds belonging to the Angelus Temple Association and the Four Square Gospel Association if charges by her followers are found to have substantiation, according to Beecher.

A visit to Beecher's office by the Rev. John Goben precipitated the district attorney's probe, it was announced. The Rev. Mr. Goben was dismissed recently as assistant pastor of Angelus Temple.

RECORDS SHOWN

Goben gave Beecher several alleged photostatic copies of books and records of a number of Mrs. McPherson's religious corporations and charged that funds belonging to these various organizations has been misappropriated.

The district attorney's office is said to be investigating a report that Mrs. McPherson was seen attending a conference at the Alexander Pantages come shortly after Mrs. Lois Pantages was convicted of a charge of manslaughter in the death of Jura Rokumoto, a Japanese. Authorities refused to comment on the report.

A private detective is said to have filed an affidavit charging that the evangelist visited the Pantages residence.

HOLDS CHARGES BASELESS

"There is sufficient evidence to warrant a preliminary examination as to whether Mrs. McPherson is guilty of a criminal action through alleged mishandling of funds of her organizations," Beecher said.

"If, after this preliminary examination, the evidence warrants it, the entire matter will be laid before the Los Angeles County grand jury.

"If the alleged shortage amounts to more than $200, Mrs. McPherson can be accused of grand theft."

BRITISH SHIP SAVED FROM SHOALS OFF VIRGINIA CAPES

CREW OF 35 REMAINS ABOARD

Coast Guard Refloats Boat Battered by High Seas After Radio Speeds Rescue

International News Service.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—With her frantic radio appeals for aid piercing the air throughout the night, the British cargo steamer, Pacific, carrying a crew of between 35 and 40, saved after being hard and fast on the Frying Pan shoals off the Virginia capes early today.

A Coast Guard cutter was sent to the rescue of the vessel about 3 a. m. and reported later that the Pacific had been floated with no appreciable damage. Its crew remained aboard.

Advices received here by the Mackay Radio Company stated that the coast guard cutter, Modoc, which raced to the scene in response to the vessel's SOS calls, nearing the dangerous shoals, had been retarded considerably by heavy seas.

NEAR CAPE FEAR

The first SOS picked up by the Mackay Company from the stranded vessel said that the Pacific had run aground at a point 11 miles south southeast of Cape Fear, on the Virginia coast.

In later advices, the master of the vessel said the Pacific's position was precarious in the extreme, and that immediate assistance was required. Extremely heavy seas were running, the messages stated, and the steamer was being rapidly pounded by the waves.

The violence of the waves made it impossible to launch boats, and members of the crew were forced to remain aboard the stranded vessel throughout the night, as the heavy combers shook her from stem to stern and threatened to break her up.

HALT BROADCASTING

All broadcasting was halted in order that all wireless messages from the ship might be heard clearly.

Messages from the steamer's captain declared that all attempts to free the ship from the hidden shoal under its own power had failed.

The Pacific is a freight steamer of 2,861 tons gross, registered at Hull, England, and owned by H. W. Cockerline & Co.

STATE HONORS PULASKI

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Pennsylvania's tribute to Brig. Gen. Casimir Pulaski, Polish hero of the Revolutionary War, was paid here today on the one hundred and fiftieth anniversary of his death at the siege of Savannah.

Fifty thousand persons were expected to take part in the celebration, arranged by a state legislative commission, which included a parade and addresses by Gov. John S. Fisher; Chief Justice Robert Von Moschzisker, of the State Supreme Court; Tytus Filipowicz, the Polish minister to Washington, and Francois Pulaski, a descendant of the brother of the cavalry leader and minister and special envoy to the United States.

Following a luncheon at the Hotel Sterling with 300 in attendance, the guests of honor were to review the parade from a stand erected on Memorial Bridge, and then proceed to Kirby Park for the exercises. The One Hundred and Ninth Field Artillery was to fire a salute of 11 guns in honor of Gen. Pulaski; 15 guns in honor of Gov. Fisher and a 19-gun salute to the Polish minister.

Ten thousand persons and 25 bands and drum corps were to march in the parade. These organizations included the Colonial Dames of America, Daughters of the American Revolution, G. A. R., American Legion and other war service units as well as civic organizations.

Lieut. Gov. Arthur H. James was chairman of the celebration, arranged as the official state observance.

2 EX-EMPLOYES TALK AGAINST PANTAGES

Assistant Manager and Girl Usher Accuse Theater Man Of Framing False Story

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Stories of two former employes of Alexander Pantages today remained unshaken by a bombardment of cross examination questions flung by attorneys for the wealthy showman.

These two, Roy Keene, former manager of the Pantages Theater, and Tillie Russo, formerly an usherette at the show house, took the witness stand in the criminal assault trial of the millionaire.

They testified that their boss instructed them shortly after the alleged attack on Eunice Pringle, 17-year-old dancer, that they must give District Attorney Buron Fitts false information in connection with the episode in his mezzanine conference room.

TOLD WHAT TO SAY

They not only told the version which they said they were instructed to repeat, but they gave the jury their own ideas of what took place on the afternoon of August 9 when Miss Pringle came to apply for work.

Keene took the stand first and told of what took place after the alleged attack when he talked to Pantages about the affair.

"Pantages pointed to a little table in his offices," the witness said. "And told me to put it in the mezzanine room. I did. He told me to take everything else out of that room and then gave me a key."

"What did you find in the room?" he was asked.

"Some broken earrings on the floor which I picked up and placed in my pocket."

Keene then told that he threw the earrings away. Later, he said, he saw Pantages and told him that he had thrown them away.

USHERETTE TESTIFIES

"I later told Pantages that I had been called to make a statement and asked him what I was to say. He told me that if I was asked, to tell the district attorney that the desk was in the room all the while and that the room was used as a conference room for executives."

Keene said he asked Pantages if he wanted to see Miss Russo, too, before she went to the prosecutor's office.

"He hesitated," Keene declared, "and then told me to be sure to tell Miss Russo to remember it was only three minutes between the time Eunice Pringle left the balcony until the usherette heard her scream."

Defense Attorney W. J. Ford then attacked Keene's story, questioning him as to why he didn't take everything from the mezzanine room. Keene failed to change his story.

Miss Russo, called to the stand, told of hearing screams a half hour after Eunice Pringle entered the little office. She also stated that Pantages held a conversation with her the following day.

"Pantages met me in the corridor of the theater," she said. "He said to me: 'This is your statement—"The girl came into the balcony alone and went out alone."'

REVEAL MORE PRACTICES OF CULT

Mother of Leader Chained In Bed for Weeks to Help Prove Weird Beliefs

International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 12.—Weird practices indulged in by members of the cult of the "Great Eleven" to permit its leader, Mrs. May Otis Blackburn, establish communication with the occult world, continued to come to light today through police investigation.

How she submitted to being chained to a bed for over two months was told by Mrs. Jonnie Blackburn, mother of the order's leader, in order to help her daughter realize her belief that she could join her soul with the eternal world.

SOUGHT RESURRECTION

The body of Willa Rhoads, 16-year-old "princess" of the cult, was kept in embalming spices to await her resurrection and thus aid in Mrs. Blackburn's communications "with the angels," authorities have found.

Burial of mules and puppies were a part of the queer rituals meant to assist the woman who is now in jail on charges of defrauding Clifford Dabney, wealthy oil man, of $50,000, police say.

An attempt made by Mrs. Blackburn to buy poison from a Los Angeles drug store was related to police by Mrs. Eleanor Sandrosky, local druggist.

In her statement to Assistant District Attorney Kearney, she said the cult leader had approached her in August, 1924, and asked for some poison.

BAKED BODY MISSING

Mrs. Sandrosky said she had known Mrs. Blackburn and other members of her faith in Portland, Ore.

Authorities still were unable to find a clue to the whereabouts of the body of Mrs. Florence Turner, who was baked by members of the order in a huge brick oven in a vain attempt to cure her of an illness.

Likewise police are still seeking clues to the whereabouts of several other persons who have been missing for several months.

HUGE DIRIGIBLE SET TO SAIL

CARDINGTON, England, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—After numerous postponements, the British airship R-101, the largest rigid dirigible ever constructed, was walked out of her hangar at 5:49 a. m. today in preparation for her first test flight.

The huge ship was attached to a gigantic mooring mast in front of the hangar. Plans call for a 48-hour non-stop flight, weather conditions perfect.

News of the test flight, which came as a surprise, occasioned great interest throughout the country, for the builders of the dirigible had been subjected to severe press criticism of late, charges being made that the ship was utterly unsuitable and a tremendous waste of money.

"There are 101 reasons why the R-101 is a failure before it starts," commented one important London newspaper recently, and then proceeded to charge that the ship's motor power, fuel capacity and cruising range were far less than those of other dirigibles now in service and built years ago.

SERMONETTE

"THE ART OF SEEING"

By DR. W. I. WISHART, Pastor Eighth U. P. Church

Text: II Cor. 4:18

"While we look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen."

We live in the midst of two worlds. They strangely interpenetrate each other. One is present, visible, tangible; the other hidden, not to be discovered or fully appreciated by our clumsy means of merely physical perception. But the lives we live and the characters we build depend chiefly upon our recognition of these two worlds, and the relation we chose to cultivate with the one, or with the other. Much depends on how well we see, not alone the visible world, but the invisible.

For this unseen world is the realm of thought, of ideals, of great purposes and lofty desires, the realm of angels, of purely spiritual beings, of God and of those spiritual revealings of Himself which He makes to men. These spiritual forces and ideals, these great hopes and aspirations which arise in human experience, knit themselves together into a sort of system, a real world which is discovered not by sight but by insight.

The world that is seen is marvelously beautiful and attractive. Its lakes and mountains, its hills and valleys, its trees and flowers and shrubs, its starry skies, its beauty of the day and of the night, its achievements in iron and steel and stone, its works of art, its science that shapes itself into visible forms expressing both utility and beauty, all these things make a system to engage our interest and sometimes to enthrall us. But it is just here that peril lies; for there is danger of men becoming satisfied with the things they can see and touch and handle, danger of acting as if it were all of life to live, and all of death just to die. He is a poor soul, indeed, who sees nothing beyond the sunsets, discovers nothing above and behind the stars. Wordsworth tells of that dull soul he called Peter Bell. He said of him, "A primrose by the river's brim, A yellow primrose was to him, And it was nothing more." Tennyson was not satisfied with the short sight of Wordsworth's "Peter Bell." He wanted to see farther than the flower, felt that if he could only understand what the flower in the crannied wall is, "root and all, and all in all," he would know what God and man is. He wanted the insight as well as the sight.

In this machine age in which we are living, with all this tendency to put the emphasis on "things," what duty is more important than for us to cultivate spiritual interest and sensitiveness? What duty compares in importance with the development of that spiritual perception by which God in Jesus Christ becomes real to us, increasingly real, by which prayer comes to be, not merely the utterance of pious words, but the actual communion of the human spirit with a divine Person, by which we come eagerly to look, like the ancient worthies, for a better country, for the city "which hath the foundations, whose architect and maker is God."

And how may we best cultivate the art of seeing? How may we become increasingly able to see the unseen things, and to find life's strongest challenge and greatest inspiration in the world of spiritual reality? This is what the churches are for. It is for this end that religious services are held all over this city. It is that we may get away for a little from the tyranny of this visible and tangible world round about us, get away from the tyranny of things, that we ask men everywhere to retreat at least once a week into the sanctuary where by means of worship and the contemplation of spiritual realities we may come the better to know God and to appreciate those wonders and beauties which "eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, which God hath prepared for them that love Him." Surely a man is untrue to himself if he does not cultivate spiritual insight, seek increasingly to see and appreciate the unseen world. The reason for which the churches exist is to maintain the spiritual emphasis. It is to keep us all reminded that we are something more and something higher than flesh. It is to voice the claims of heaven on the lives and loyalties of the sons of men that the doors of our churches swing wide with invitation each Sunday. He is a wise man who insists that his better self shall have every chance for increase of strength and vision and anticipation by finding his place regularly in the house of worship.

SIDEWALKS
by HAVEY J. BOYLE

THERE is in Pittsburgh a boxer named George Panka, this "Panka" being an abbreviation of a longer name. He is a heavyweight, weighing close to 200 pounds. A preliminary boxer and a novice, he has what the boys call the punch. He has knocked out his last three opponents in less than a round.

Havey J. Boyle

Word of his exploits spread rapidly and no less than four men, managers, tried to sign him up. One man came all the way from New York to induce him to sign a contract. Panka favored a local man with his signature on the dotted line.

His advent into the ring any night is the signal for prolonged cheering from Homestead, where he lives. He left home a little while ago to follow his trade of bricklaying and came back a heavyweight fighter, with more promise than anyone has had since the day when a lot of the boys were predicting that a certain Harry Greb would not amount to very much.

THIS Bohemian boy, built like a Dempsey, and off to a greater start than most of the men who went high, easily is the most absorbing topic among men who read the sport pages. In the end he may be a complete flivver, but no one who has seen him denies that he has a wallop that is reminiscent of Dempsey.

He is such a rare specimen around here that there is curiosity about him. Someone should get to him, learn about his ancestry, why he thought he'd like to fight, trace back through his boyhood in Homestead, and wind up with the measurements he boasts; what size collar; what size shoes; and, literally and slangily, what size hat he wears; what's his ordinary meal, who is his hero and why; his habits, and his reactions from knocking a man cold. Finally, let a nickname be invented. One is sadly lacking so far. The suggestion here is "One Spank Panka."

To change the subject somewhat abruptly, John O'Connor, the cultured Irishman connected with Carnegie Institute, compliments this department with an invitation to the twenty-eighth international exhibition of paintings in Carnegie Institute.

The department nearly always attends and looks at the "pitchers" much after the fashion of the ladies who attend baseball and football games, knowing, in short, little of what it is all about.

Yon picture, for instance, showing what appears to be a firkin of cheese, turned on its side and labeled: "In Batavia," or 'Harlequin," or something else that doesn't seem to have even remote connection with the picture, may be swell, but on at least one local boy the poor artist has wasted his time.

PAINTERS, quite a few of whom would be termed in the rackets as a little punch-drunk, spend a year or so working on something that only themselves or at best a mere handful can understand.

But the exhibit, always, is worth seeing for all the pictures are not mystifying and some of them do tell a story and some of the nudes point an immoral. Painters consider only art, leaving morals to more conventional people.

It is because the pictures arouse varied speculations that they attract so many people. Even in this manufacturing city of conservative people the international exhibit draws big crowds.

At The Dome on the Left Bank of faraway Paris, the boys and girls sipping their coffee, will be cheering or sneering over what we are about to have in Pittsburgh.

BETTY COMPSON MAY RETIRE FROM SCREEN ACTIVITY, IT IS REPORTED

By DOROTHY HERZOG

(Copyright, 1929, by Premier Syndicate)

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 12.

THIS bureau is given to understand—by whom you shouldn't ask—that Betty Compson plans to retire from motion picture-ing in a year's time. 'Tis said that Betty set a financial mark for herself to reach. Once reached, she would be more than content to abandon the grease paint and live in topsy turvy ease on her income. Said capital may be rated at a million and a half dollars. Following her stellar traipsing after "The Miracle Man," Betty stumbled into lean years. She campaigned to defeat them by making flicks for the smaller companies. Bime by, the shrewd producers discovered the Compson girl was still much in evidence.

Betty Compson

So she commenced working for big boys again. The talkies did her no harm. Her salary rose to around $2,500 a week and working nigh onto 52 weeks a year the total is no sneeze. Betty evidently socked away a goodly share of this and her capital increased accordingly.

If she does not retire at the peak of her career, she'll at least set movie precedent. I've listened to any number of stars vow they'll retire before "their public" tires of them. But they never have. And it isn't chiefly because of money. Because they fear the other fellah will gossip they're no longer in demand.

Buster Keaton On Wrong Side

BUSTER KEATON was a lil' perturbed at not being able to trek East for the world series. And scant wonder.

"Who're you bettin' on?" the inquiring reporter inquired.

Buster Keaton.

"On the wrong side!" gloomed Buster.

Director John Robertson towed his Joseph Schildkraut kumpny to Balboa for quiet sea-farin' location. He arrived in time to have the motor boat races pelt the mikes. Also across from the troupe was a concrete mixer. It made enough noise to deafen a fish. John cogitated and figured he'd have to confer with the big concrete man from Balboa. So he did. With the result that when he is ready to shoot a scene, he has a propman hoist a red flag. The big concrete man orders the engine—or whatever the thing is—shut down. Silence. A scene is shot. Down comes the red flag. Off goes the concrete mixer. Sorta synchronized good fellowship.

SCREENALITIES: Bess Meredyth, Sylvia Thalberg and Josephine Lovett lunching together at M. G. M. They are the ferocious triumvirate. They narrate astounding stories about each other with a glib innocence that is breath taking. They arise from the table simultaneously and depart harmlessly in different directions. Should Sylvia decide to walk to Bess' office, Jo inclines to a stroll, herself. Strong directors tremble and inflated actors wheeze when they pass this writing triumvirate. Even newspaper writers quake at sight of them in a huddle. Leave no one tell you different, Hollywood is frought with dangers. Bess, Sylvia, Jo—R. S. V. P. . . . Gary Cooper and Anderson Lawler strolling around the M. G. M. lot. Now's the chance to report Gary is signing a new contract. However, 'tisn't true . . . Dad Owens, the high mogul of the gate, refusing to allow a prominent local newspaper publisher to enter. Dad sent him skipping to the front office. They may be big shots outside the studio, but when they want to come in his gate without a pass they just don't rate . . . When Ina Claire's picture, "The Awful Truth" was playing here, she was advertised as "The Girl Who Won John Gilbert's Heart." Which is a broad statement as statements go . . . and . . . that's all.

Gary Cooper.

DRYS RAID NINE VERONA HOMES

Prohibition agents yesterday centered their activities in Verona, when they raided nine homes and confiscated stills and home brew. They also raided a saloon in Pittsburgh, two farms in Deer Township and seized a truck loaded with whisky.

Mrs. Fannie Traitor, of 204 West Railroad street, Verona, fled to the roof of her home and broke a bottle of moonshine when the agents entered, they said. Wine was found in her home, the raiders reported. Home brew, mash and sugar was taken from the homes of Antonio Kern, of 160 Penn street, Verona, and John Subota, of 225 Allegheny avenue, Verona, the agents reported. From the home of Mrs. Andrew Musai, of 400 West Railroad street, Verona, agents said they confiscated moonshine. Two stills and moonshine were reported found in the home of George Latin, of 234 Penn street, Verona. A still, home brew and moonshine was discovered in the home of Mrs. John Cirkvanac, 314 Arch street, Verona, the reports said.

The federal men also reported finding stills and moonshine in the homes of Thomas Valentic, 239 Penn street, Verona, and Mrs. Joseph Sameck, 241 Penn street, Verona. In the latter home, home brew was reported confiscated. Moonshine, home brew and mash was found in the home of Paul Yugovich, of 310 Penn street, Verona, the agents said.

Dominic LePresto, of Steubenville, O., was arrested when agents found his truck loaded with 18 five-gallon cans of moonshine in Washington, Pa., they reported.

Liquor was reported confiscated in the saloon of Herman Popothelfer, of 1227 Troy Hill road. On the Stewart farm, West Deer Township, the agents arrested Candido Kennedy. A still and moonshine was reported confiscated. Angelo Sabitino was arrested when a still, moonshine and mash were reported found on his West Deer Township farm.

Brownsville I. O. O. F. Install Officers

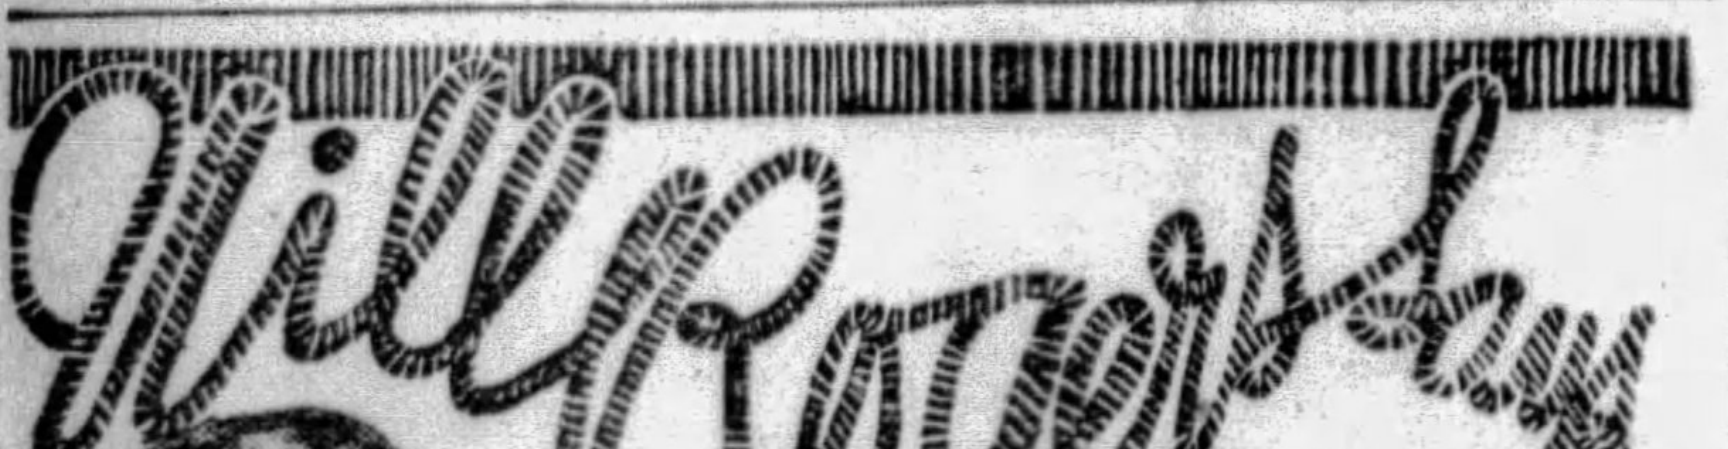
BROWNSVILLE, Pa., Oct. 12.—Goodlow McCune was installed noble grand and James T. Westcoat, vice grand, at annual installation services of Brownsville Lodge No. 51, I. O. O. F., yesterday. Other officers for the new year are: William Delaney, James G. Hart, Paul Burd, Dallas W. Davidson, G. W. Stephenson, John Lorriman, James Roberts, Howard M. Keibler, Corbin McCune, John T. Vickers, Paul G. Price, Joseph Pogue, N. V. Swearingen, C. W. Keibler, S. Earl Davis, R. P. Wyatt.

County Must Pay $5,000 for Land

A verdict of $5,000 was awarded L. C. Lustenberger, of Evergreen road, for property taken by Allegheny County in widening the road, the name of which was changed to Babcock boulevard, in Common Pleas Court, before Judge John A. Evans. Lustenberger alleged that one-fourth acre of his property, which comprised more than an acre had been taken and that large shade trees had been destroyed and his house left close to the road.

Bible Classes Name Vickerman Head

John W. Vickerman, of Bellevue, was re-elected president of the Pennsylvania State Adult Bible Class Federation at the annual convention of the State Sabbath School Association, in Williamsport, Pa., this week. H. C. Cridland, of Pittsburgh, was named field secretary. Harry E. Paisley, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the Sabbath school body to succeed Percy L. Craig, of New Castle.



BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Oct. 12.

That certainly was nice of Connie Mack not to discourage the National League entirely. He will keep fooling around and have to start some of his best pitchers yet. If the series can go seven games and play to capacity they have a chance to merge with the City National Bank of New York.

By the way, an old country boy banker from Colorado slicked the city slicker bankers out of one half million bucks and they give him 15 years so fast that you would have thought he assassinated a big government official.

You let a city banker slick an old country boy out of something and before night he will merge with another bank and finally wind up as a member of the Federal Reserve.

Yours, WILL.

SOMETHING NEW

Anita Page, charming featured player of the screen, has introduced something new in Hollywood. It is a "Fascisti" black shirt and she wears it with white pajama trousers.

WANT AIR MARK AT CLAYSVILLE

By MAX HENRICI

Gradually all towns in Western Pennsylvania are being air-marked for the guidance of airplane pilots.

C. L. McDonough, of Claysville, requests information that will be of assistance in erecting a suitable sign over that town—a sign that will identify the place for fliers, enable them to orient themselves, and show them where they may alight in safety.

Mr. McDonough, public-spirited, was sponsor for the Boy Scout troop organized at Claysville. He desires now, he says, to do his share towards making flying safer and to promote aviation.

F. L. Young, borough secretary of Vandergrift, has requested the Department of Commerce specifications for air-marks.

They are being sent to him by the Pittsburgh Aviation Industries Corporation, Oliver Building, which is co-operating with the Sun-Telegraph in the campaign to get every Western Pennsylvania town air-marked.

MARK YOUR TOWN.

OVERBROOK OUT OF CASH, CLAIM

Overbrook borough is virtually broke and the bank in which the municipal funds are deposited now refuses to honor further paper issued by borough council, according to Burgess E. E. Meier who yesterday issued a protest against any increased expenditures.

The Burgess voiced his charges at a council meeting yesterday at which expenditures of $10,000 was approved for street repairs along with the addition of two police officers to the borough force. The additional policemen gives the borough a force of nine for which appropriations of only $3,600 was made last year.

Burgess Meier states the large force is not necessary and that there are 45 men on the street repair payroll when only half a score are needed. The new officers reported for duty yesterday and the chief, Harry Seibel, did not know how to assign their duties, the Burgess said.

Meier says the additions to the payroll is made because the borough becomes part of the city January 1, and council believes the borough employes will be carried by the city officials. The burgess, when his protests were not heeded, left the council meeting.

East End Man Dies, Suicide, Say Police

Hugh Mullins, 56, of 1846 Morningside avenue, committed suicide last night by drinking insect poison, according to a report at Frankstown Avenue Police Station. Mullins, found by his wife in the bedroom of their home, was sent to Pittsburgh Hospital, where he died a few minutes later. Ill health was the cause of his act, police said.

MUSIC, TALK ON STAGE, SCREEN

One of the important features of Lew Leslie's "Blackbirds," coming to the Nixon next week, is the Plantation Orchestra. This clever musical unit will be augmented with local men, making an instrumental ensemble of 20 musicians in the orchestra pit, something unique in itself. Also on the stage will appear the Cecil Mack Choir, the members of which have gained much fame for their rendition of the Negro spirituals.

"Broadway Nights," with a cast headed by Texas Guinan, queen of the night club, and her gang and band, will open an engagement of one week in the Alvin Monday night. Matinees will be given Wednesday and Saturday.

"Danger," heralded as a mystery thriller, will be presented in the Pitt next week by the George Sharp Players. The action takes place in a lonely hunting lodge high up in the White Mountains.

"FLIGHT" OPENS TODAY

"Flight," Columbia's all-talking screen drama of the air, opens a week's engagement in the Harris and Sheridan Square today. There also will be the usual stage shows, featuring vaudeville acts, stage band and master of ceremonies. There will be a midnight presentation of "Flight" in both theaters tomorrow night.

Ann Harding is supported by John Loder, Lawford Davidson and Harry Bannister in "Her Private Affair," all-talking film, opening today in the Enright. On the stage, Dick Powell's "House Party" is the new feature.

"Evidence," featuring Conway Tearle, Pauline Frederick, Alec B. Francis, Myrna Loy and William Courtenay, is the current all-talking film in the Stanley. Brooke Johns offers "College Days" on the stage.

BATTLES AND SAND

A story of valor, romance and jungle and desert life is embodied in the plot of "The Four Feathers," current screen attraction in the Grand. Richard Arlen and Fay Wray head the cast.

In spite of the fact that Gloria Swanson makes her screen talking and singing debut in "The Trespasser," which comes to the Penn Monday, the interest aroused by the first reproduction of her voice promises to be equalled by the interest in her clothes. For the star has spared no effort in obtaining the most gorgeous costumes she has ever worn for this new United Artists picture.

Victor McLaglen is said to have led a life somewhat typical of that which he portrays as a Marine in "The Cock Eyed World," which begins its third week in the Aldine Monday. At 14 he ran away to join the army. Later he joined the gold rush to Australia. He boxed Jack Johnson. He fought in the World War and at its conclusion went to Mesopotamia and was appointed provost marshal of Bagdad. And then he landed in Hollywood.

Blues Singer

Etta Reed, blues singer, is appearing in the Flotilla Club for a limited engagement.

EX-PRISONER OPENS REVIVAL

Prison Evangelist Vincent J. Steffen, of Philadelphia, will open a series of revival services tomorrow afternoon in the Central Presbyterian Church, North Side. The revivalist, who once served 10 years in San Quentin Prison for robbery, tells many things of interest to his listeners. He was converted to the Christian religion while serving his sentence and has done work along religious lines since his conversion and release from prison. The Rev. Steffen is in charge of the Prison Evangel Association, a work of the Presbyterian Church.

The main theme of the services will be "Recent Upheavals in our Prisons and How to Avert Them in the Future."

Man Seriously Hurt When Struck by Auto

Ace C. Bettelon, 48, living at the St. Clair Hotel, Boulevard of the Allies, was in a critical condition in Allegheny General Hospital today suffering fractures of the ribs and spine. He was struck by an automobile on the boulevard last night. According to the police, the machine, driven by Elmer Thomas, 35, of 504 Walnut street, Ben Avon, dragged Bettelon for more than 100 feet after it struck him. Thomas was arrested charged with reckless driving.

'MARIANNE' HAS NEW SONGS

At least half a dozen new song numbers which seem assured of nationwide popularity are promised with the release of "Marianne," Marion Davies' first dialogue vehicle, which was directed by Robert Z. Leonard for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Among the new songs are "Just You, Just Me," "Blondy," "Oo La La La La," "Hang on to Me," "Sugar" and "Marianne."

COMPOSING TALENT

Outstanding names among the M-G-M song writer and composer roster were enlisted to prepare the thematic background for "Marianne." Arthur Freed and Nacio Herb Brown, credited with the tuneful numbers featured in "The Broadway Melody" as well as the tingling fox trot number, "Singin' in the Rain," from "The Hollywood Revue," prepared the words and music of "Blondy," which is already being heard nightly in every dance hall and hotel restaurant in Los Angeles.

"Sugar," "Oo La La La La" and "Marianne" were all written by Roy Turk and Fred Ahlert. "Mean to Me" and "I'll Get By" are among other successes of this pair, who are now under long-term contract to M-G-M.

DANCE RHYTHMS

"Hang On to Me," said to have one of the best natural dance rhythms of any piece to emanate from Hollywood in recent months, is the work of Jesse Greer and Raymond Klages, whose collaborative efforts include "Flapperette" and "Once in a Lifetime."

Marion Davies sings several of the songs herself and is ably assisted in the vocal renditions of the picture by Lawrence Gray, who has the chief masculine role; Cliff ("Ukulele Ike") Edwards, Benny Rubin and others.

Miss Swanson Says No Stage Play Now

Gloria Swanson has no intention of leaving the films for the stage; she has made no contract to appear on the stage, the star has announced through United Artists Corporation, which releases her films. Miss Swanson says that her ultimate appearance on the stage is not unlikely, but that she now is giving all her thought and time to talking pictures. She has just completed her first all-talking picture, "The Trespasser," which opens at the Penn Monday.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH'S SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Anna Childs' Attendants Chosen

ALL the days of October, I do believe, are to be enhanced by weddings or entertainments for bridal parties. Each day brings forth new plans for nuptials until I believe there's a wedding for every flaunting fall leaf.

One of the most notable weddings of the latter part of the month will be that of Anna Knevals Childs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Howe Childs, of Fifth avenue and Woodland road, and Arthur P. Woolfolk, son of Mr. and Mrs. Junius A. Woolfolk, of Louisville, Ky., which will take place on Monday, October 21.

Mrs. Alan Magee Scaife, the former Sarah Cordelia Mellon, and Mrs. Stanley Noel Brown, the former Elizabeth Rust, will be matrons of honor, and Mary Wurts, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas C. Wurts, will be flower girl.

And William D. Perkins, of Louisville, Ky., will be best man, and John Brown, Archie Cochran, James C. Young and Lewis J. Kaye, of Louisville; John M. Kimball, of Portland, Me., and Harvey Childs III, Blair Childs, Thomas C. Wurts, George H. Love and George Buckwell, all of Pittsburgh, I hardly need add, will be ushers.

The rehearsal dinner will be given Saturday, October 19, by the Stanley N. Browns in the Pittsburgh Golf Club. George Buckwell will give the wedding breakfast in the University Club, and on Thursday the Francis Sellers Guthries will entertain with a dinner in the Pittsburgh Golf Club for Anna, her fiance, and their bridal party.

Did you know, by the way, that the wedding will be in Calvary Episcopal Church at 5 o'clock that day, and that there'll be a reception in the Pittsburgh Golf Club at 5:30?

MR. AND MRS. RALPH M. RUSH, their children Anne and Charlotte, and Alice McKnight, daughter of the Roy H. McKnights, are home from Europe. The three girls studied in Paris, and later in San Remo, Italy. Before returning home they were in England.

News comes from the White Mountains that Mrs. Arthur Hall Smith, who has been in Whitefield for the summer and autumn, will return to Pittsburgh this week.

And Mrs. John B. Booth, of Sewickley, is another member of the Whitefield colony who is returning home.

MISS CORAL QUAY and Miss Marie King are in charge of stage settings, news has reached me, for the annual production of the Sewickley Valley Hospital Cot Club, to be given October 22 in the Guildhall. The play, by the way, is Courtney Savage's "They All Want Something."

Mrs. James Barlow Cullum, Jr., is in charge of costumes; Mrs. Frank Lynn McCready, of properties, and Miss Marguerite Booth, of publicity.

And four names, including three of the buds of this season, have been added to the cast—Anne Allen Rose, Caroline Crittenden and Rebecca Doyle. The fourth name is Alvin King Haworth.

MISS LOUISE ELIZABETH MUELLER, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Frederick Mueller, has named October 26 as the date of her marriage to John Dickson Fulton. The ceremony will take place at 6:30 o'clock in the afternoon, in the Calvary Episcopal Church.

Mrs. Shoup is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sisley. Mr. Shoup is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Shoup, of Sligo, Pa. They will reside in Fairmont, W. Va., after returning from a honeymoon in Miami, Fla., and Havana, Cuba.

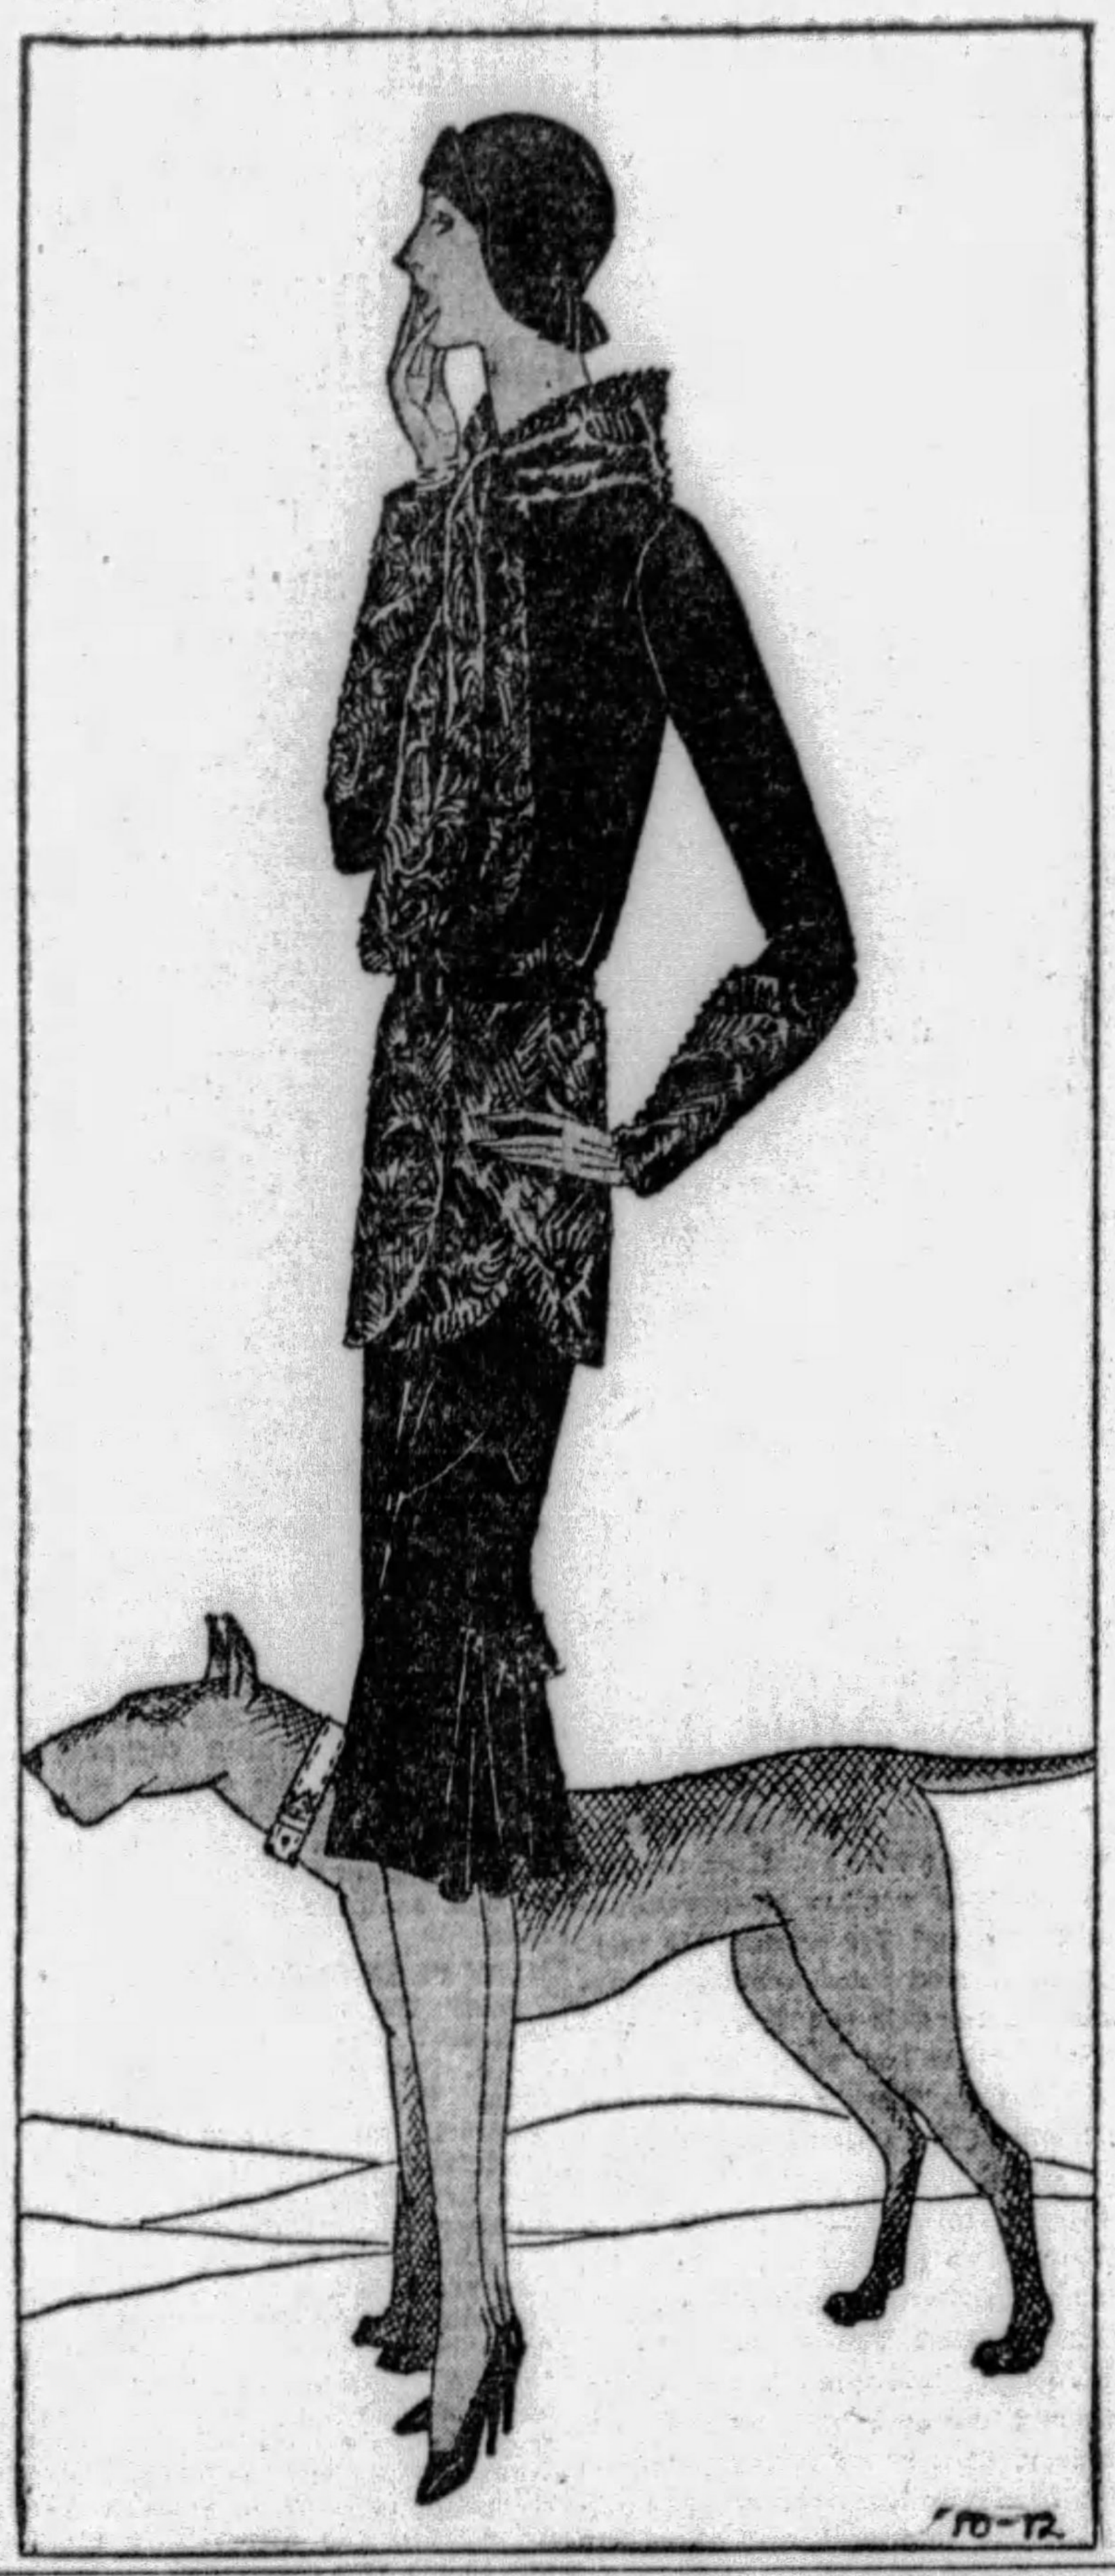
FLOUNCE DISTINGUISHING FEATURE OF MOST GARMENTS THIS SEASON

—Sketched in Paris—



Demand for Dressmaker Frocks Continues To Increase

Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Clothes can be said to have flounced upon the scene this season. For there is scarcely a garment of which the flounce is not the distinguishing feature. It lends grace and a subtle fulness to the frock, especially when it is composed of a series of godets of varying length. It is such features that make the "dressmaker" frock that is so much in demand this season. It is not easy to duplicate such dresses, a feature that commends itself highly to the woman who pays a round sum for a model, and to her dismay finds it cheaply and badly copied.

MUCH may often depend upon a shoulder strap. And in the model shown here, it is one lone strap that essays the important task of bearing the full burden of the very lovely evening frock by Poiret. It is of ivory satin. The woman in white was popularized in a novel dear to a former generation, but this season she has been glorified by the mode. There are many delightful and novel features to this dress. The narrow bodice draped softly at the normal waistline, is in one piece with the tunic or overskirt which dips sharply to a point at the front. The diagonal decolletage has only one shoulder strap, that is rewarded for its duties by the addition of a row of plum colored flowers. From beneath the tunic a very bouffant and flaring flounce appears, moderately short in front, but decidedly long in back. It is lined with plum-colored chiffon to match the flowers at the shoulder. This is Poiret's very newest model, and one of his most successful.

LELONG'S winter collection includes several suits, but none smarter than the little semi-tailored suit, here shown. It is composed of leda cloth in black, and broadtail fur. The jacket is tightly belted, with a scarf collar, deep cuffs and peplum of the fur. There are three set-in circular godets—one on either side, and one at the center back—to give comfortable width to the skirt for walking, and so makes this suit practical as well as eminently good-looking, an objective that is not always achieved. Lelong is one of the many couturiers that this season have designed their clothes with an eye to comfort as well as beauty. The strenuous and busy life led by the majority of women at present has forced the haute couture to give due consideration to the practical side of clothes.

All Writers Crazy, Van Doren Believes

LAKE PLACID, N. Y., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—One has to be a little crazy to write books, in the view of Carl Van Doren, author and critic, as expressed to the New York Library Association. The normal person leads a normal life and is happy in it; the writer creates something to satisfy his wish.

Announcement of a theater seating 3,000, to be erected in connection with the H. J. College Women Are Urged To Take Interest In Politics

"WOMEN in local politics must organize in the cause of good government. It is not enough to be educated and to have ideals, we must fight organization with organization—a union of intelligent women to fight machine politics and restore democracy to the people." So said Mrs. Homer N. Young in an especially interesting talk before the College Club yesterday afternoon when she had as her subject, "What We Don't Know Won't Hurt Us—Or Does It?"

Mrs. Young accused college women of being "high hat" and said they are willing to be intelligent about and interested in international and national affairs, but are too often unwilling and negligent in working locally. Mrs. Young told of some of her own experiences while working in the primaries and urged the woman to interest themselves in the passage of the voting machine bill. Miss Ida Allerton was hostess chairman for the customary tea which followed the talk.

City Payroll Coercion Attacked by Dunn

The most important question of the campaign is whether the municipal payroll is to be used for the citizens of the city or for building a political machine, Thomas A. Dunn, Democrat-Good Government candidate for Mayor, told the Jefferson Club last night in Moose Temple.

While Dunn was speaking, John A. Fugassi, who lost out in the race for one of five Republican councilmanic nominations, declared his intention of supporting the "entire Republican ticket."

To counteract that, Franklin P. Booth, who made an unsuccessful race for the Republican nomination, announced his withdrawal from the Independent party councilmanic ticket and declared he would support the Good Government ticket and Dunn, who heads it.

"The last primary led all previous records in every form of election corruption, from phantom assessments to obliterating ballot markings and the making of false returns by many election boards," said Booth.

Dunn in his address charged that Pittsburgh is being administered "for selfish, factional and political purposes."

He entered the campaign, he said, with the belief that there are more honest voters than there are ballot-box stuffers.

"I pledge that all the resources of the city will be utilized for the benefit of the city and that all unnecessary jobs will be abolished," he said, pledging a reorganization of the Civil Service Commission.

He promised the appointment of capable police magistrates and declared that the aim of his administration will be to recover Pittsburgh's lost markets and to develop new ones.

Batchelor to Attend Playground Congress

W. C. Batchelor, superintendent of the Bureau of Recreation, will leave today to represent the city at the Sixteenth National Recreation Congress in Louisville, Ky., next week.

The conference will be held under the auspices of the Playground and Recreation Association of America and will bring together more than 600 men and women active in playground promotion.

Mrs. Mary J. Cowley, head of the North Side Playground Association, who has had 28 years' service in recreation activities, has been invited to the conference along with these employes of the Pittsburgh bureau, all of whom have had 10 years' service and are entitled to the association's medal: Caroline A. Bracey, Edna L. Jones, Daniel B. McGarey, Helen G. McWilliams, J. J. Isherwood, Margaret B. Eichleay and Mary J. McKnight.

Fifty-seven boys from 19 cities of the nation, who are model aircraft champions, are expected to attend the conference to fly their hand-built planes in the third national playground minature aircraft tournament.

ALLEGHENY COUNTY
'Public Improvements Promote Progress'
Convinced that public improvements exert an important influence upon the progress of any community, the Board of County Commissioners of Allegheny County on January 1, 1924, initiated a program of major public works, many of which are already effectively serving the citizens, while others of vital importance are being rapidly brought to completion.
THE NEW COUNTY OFFICE BUILDING, now under construction, will cover the area bounded by Fourth Avenue, Ross Street, Diamond Street and the Pennsylvania Railroad. It will be six stories high, and can be increased nine additional stories with the possibility of including a modern detention jail in the uppermost stories. It will house the County Department of Public Works, Recorder of Deeds, Superintendent of Schools, Bureau of Parks, Law Department, Farm Bureau, Bureau of Motor Vehicles, Mothers' Assistance Bureau, Fire Marshal, Bureau of Elections, Court Stenographers—many of which activities are now scattered in various buildings, with consequent inconvenience to the citizens. It will be ready for occupancy in the Spring of 1931. The estimated cost of this improvement is $3,650,000.00.

HALSEY FIRM'S EXPANSION RAPID

Company Forced to Obtain Larger Quarters Due To Growing Patronage

The main Pittsburgh office of C. D. Halsey & Co. in the Investment Building at 235 Fourth avenue, is the third home of this nationally known stock and bond brokerage firm.

The company was organized in 1894 and the first office in this city was located in the old Land and Title Building on Fourth avenue in 1919. The increasing patronage compelled the company to seek larger quarters in the Benedum Trees Building in 1925 and in April of this year the firm took possession of its present quarters.

TWO OFFICES

In addition to the main office on Fourth avenue, C. D. Halsey & Co. maintains a branch office in the Monongahela National Bank Building in the heart of the "Golden Triangle," where complete facilities are available to those who find it inconvenient to reach the Fourth avenue office. The Monongahela Bank Building office is managed by M. D. Ullery, for 38 years active on the "Street," and William M. McKelvy, one of the younger brokers.

The main office on Fourth avenue now has three direct wires to the New York office of C. D. Halsey & Co., and Shirley P. Austin and J. Shirley Austin, partners in the firm and in direct charge of the Pittsburgh offices, have seen the business grow here until there has been a payroll increase of more than 500 per cent necessary to provide service to the increasing clientele. A. E. Jenkins is office manager.

NEW YORK OFFICES

In addition to its main office at 43 Broad street, C. D. Halsey & Co. has four offices in New York City at 1977 Broadway, 350 Madison avenue, in the Hotel Ambassador and in the Warwick Hotel.

The company holds membership in the New York Stock Exchange, the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange and the New York Curb Market.

Partners in the firm include Van Rensselaer Halsey, Charles D. Halsey, Gerald V. Hollins, who is actively on the floor of the New York Stock Exchange; George R. Leslie, who is actively on the floor of the New York Curb Market; Robert B. Deans, Philip A. S. Franklin, Jr., and Allen W. Ames, all in the New York offices. Shirley P. Austin and his son, J. Shirley Austin, are in the Pittsburgh offices.

GLASS MARKET UNCHANGED

The market for all kinds of flat glass is going along with but very little change, says the National Glass Budget. Manufacturers of window glass say that there is a slight movement in the demand for that product. Orders are not being booked by the producers at anywhere near a seasonable average. It is understood that jobbers are helping one another in many places and prefer to get along with as little glass in their warehouses as possible. So far as can be learned factory output is at a monthly rate of about 600,000 boxes.

Although the demand for plate plass is tapering off slightly from the high volume of business done during the past part of this year, the decline is said to be somewhat smaller than is usual in the last quarter. Production is still at a high point and manufacturers are taking advantage of the opportunity and are cleaning up their order books.

Retailers are finding the demand quite satisfactory and report business quite good.

Aside from sodas and some kindred lines of glass bottles, the volume business in the glass bottle industry continues to be most satisfactory. Activity in all lines of wide mouth ware shows no sign of letting up. Jobbers and large distributors are finding it a much easier matter to get orders than to make deliveries—a condition that forms an important stipulation in practically all orders that are given.

Stock Exchanges Are Closed Today

The financial markets are on holiday today, all banks, stock exchanges and the principal commodity markets throughout the country being closed in observance of Columbus Day, a legal holiday. The New York Clearing House and the Pittsburgh Clearing House will also be closed. Business will be resumed in all markets at the usual hours on Monday.

Hide and Leather Now Shows Profit

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—American Hide Leather Company is operating its plants night and day necessitated by orders on hand at present time. For 12 weeks to September 12 net profit was $96,488, equal to $1 a share on preferred stock on which back dividends total about $170 a share.

For 12 weeks to end December 14 Hide and Leather may reveal a profit of around $200,000, equal to $2 a share on preferred stock. Bank loans which only a few months ago ran as high as $4,500,000, have been completely eliminated.

GENERAL TRADE IMPROVES

Business has shown a moderate improvement with retail stores this week, colder weather having stimulated demand for seasonable merchandise, and sales average somewhat better this fall than they did at this time last year, says R. G. Dun & Co's Weekly Trade Review. Jobbers of dry goods report demand somewhat stronger, although buying is largely on a hand-to-mouth basis. There is no great activity in men's and women's wearing apparel, purchases being comparatively light this week. There is a rather active demand for such lines as sweaters, hosiery, etc., and millinery trade is also fairly active. Demand for shoes is slightly improved, and there has also been more activity in the rubber footwear lines. Wholesale jewelers report sales increasing in volume. There is no improvement in the demand for lumber and building materials, and hardware lines are only moderately active.

Industrial operations are not showing any particular change, with steel mills averaging about the same as last week, although some mills are not operating at quite as high a rate as they have been. Production of plate glass continues at a rather high rate, with demand quite satisfactory, although automobile manufacturers are much less active buyers than they were. The production of window glass continues at a very low rate for this period of the year and sales are lower than at this time a year ago, although a moderate improvement is noted. Manufacturers of radiators and heating equipment are quite busy, but sanitary equipment manufacturers are not as busy as they were last year. Electrical and radio equipment manufacturers are busy, and sales are in considerable volume. There has been a moderate decrease in the production of crude oil, and demand for oil products has fallen off to some extent.

Production of bituminous coal is somewhat higher, but buying for industrial purposes continues rather light, although buying for domestic users is showing some improvement. Prices show little change and Western Pennsylvania grades of run-of-mine coal are quoted as follows, per net ton at mines: Steam coal, $1.25 to $1.75; coking coal, $1.50 to $1.75; gas coal, $1.65 to $1.75; steam slack, 80c to 90c, and gas slack, $1.00 to $1.10.

While some jobbers report a slight improvement in collections, the average continues slow.

MODERN PLANS AID HARD COAL INDUSTRY

Institute for Research and Progress Established to Guide Firms to Prosperity

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—After years of commercial decline and industrial obsolescence, the anthracite coal industry, under the stimulus of new leadership, has served notice on the world that it intends to go modern.

The hard coal industry, in turning away from the philosophy of defeatism, has created the anthracite institute for research and scientific progress. The principal hard coal mining companies are behind this new move. An appropriation of several hundred thousand dollars has already been made for research alone which will be conducted in extensive laboratories in Norristown, Pa., and elsewhere. S. D. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company, will be the president of the institute and Eliot Farley, president of D. L. and W. Coal Company, will be chairman of the executive committee.

The objective is "to take the shovel out of the hands of the anthracite user," making coal burning in the household furnace as automatic and as convenient as oil burning. Already sufficient research progress has been made to assure leaders of the industry that it will soon be an accomplished fact.

NEW PLAN SUCCESSFUL

Why the new ferment in anthracite? One important reason is A. J. Maloney, who was called from the bituminous industry, where he had made a fine record, especially on the selling side, to the presidency of the huge and cumbersome Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company two years ago. Mr. Maloney, after studying the assets of anthracite, soon began to urge the industry to stop trying to keep annual sales at 65,000,000 tons, but to look forward to the time when the public would demand 90,000,000 tons. He set about to institute modern merchandising and advertising methods in his own company.

But modernization, Mr. Maloney soon found, had to go deeper. Accordingly, he set in motion an elaborate program for rehabilitating the properties of his company. In general, the plan involves concentration and simplification. The company has been operating 44 mines and 32 breakers. Eventually, five or six breakers, where the coal is broken up and prepared for household use, will do all the work. In place of obsolete machinery, the company is substituting modern tools. As a result of the change, the company not only expects to effect substantial operating economies, but also to improve the quality of the coal, eliminating waste and separating ash-producing elements from the fuel producing coal.

PROGRAM UNDER WAY

This elaborate program, which was financed last spring through the issuance of 6 per cent convertible bonds, is already under way. By next August, it will be 70 per cent completed, and, according to those close to the management, will begin to be reflected in increased earnings before that time. Instead of continuing to operate the breakers by steam produced at each separate plant, the company has applied in Pennsylvania for charters to produce power at a site on the Susquehana River. With its vast resources in coal, the company thus expects to tie up with the increasing demand for power, and, though it has not yet disclosed whether power will be produced for outside sale, the management has indicated a new eagerness to realize on all its sleeping and potential assets.

The decline of the anthracite industry has not been entirely due to the rise of substitutes, especially oil. It has been in part ascribable to unprogressive management. For years, the anthracite companies were subsidiaries of railroads, and were dominated by railroad presidents. After forced segregation, the hard coal properties fell under the sway of men who had more of the operating than the commercial viewpoint.

"The public is fair," Mr. Maloney told me, "and will respond if it gets good service and sound values. The aim of the anthracite institute will be to study ways of producing coal which will better serve the public. There is no other way. We must make the use of coal for household purposes as convenient as any other fuel."

WEEK'S STEEL OUTPUT AT 85%

Present Rate, However, Is 5 Per cent Above Previous Year's Average Production

By B. E. V. LUTY

Steel production in the past week has been at nearly, if not quite 85 per cent of capacity, representing about 15 per cent decrease from the all-time peak rate of last May.

The decrease has been practically steady, at about 3 per cent a month. It is a small decrease compared with some that have occurred in the past, such as that in the second half of 1923 and that in the spring of 1924, but it is impressive for two reasons, because it represents a turn, a reaction from the bulge which began at the middle of last year, and because it has continued to date, whereas, usually, production has increased after July and into October or November.

By any long range comparison the present rate, 52,000,000 or 53,000,000 gross tons of all steel ingots per annum, is a high one, being 5 per cent above last year's average. On the other hand, the rate is about 10 per cent below this year's average up to October 1 and it is a trifle below the rate last October, which was the highest rate last year.

All or nearly all of the present decrease in steel production is accounted for in two lines, the automobile trade and the production of rails. Regularly the low point of the year in rail production occurs at about this time. The annual rail buying movement has started, but there will be little production against these orders this month or next.

AUTO TONNAGE LESS

As to the automobile industry, its decrease in activity has been particularly impressive. There is more than the usual seasonal percentage decrease and as automobile production was phenomenally heavy earlier in the year the tonnage loss is particularly large.

Unfilled obligations of the Steel Corporation increased 244,370 tons in September. The month would naturally show an increase, on account of rail orders when rail shipments were light, and on account of there being some fourth quarter contracting in various lines. The September increase in unfilled obligations was only 18 per cent of the month's capacity.

STRUCTURAL ORDERS

Fabricated structural steel lettings reported in the week were light, only 22,000 tons, making two light weeks in the last six, while two of the weeks were particularly heavy, the six-week average being very close to that earlier in the year.

There is some freight car buying, but with no prospect that the car shops will be able to maintain fully the rate of operation they have had in the last six months.

FOURTH QUARTER OUTLOOK

A little further decrease in steel production is to be expected up to the close of the year. While the present rate is below that of a year ago, last November and December brought decreases, and it is merely a slight balance of probability that production in the current quarter will fall below that in the fourth quarter of last year.

Steel producers are making a very determined stand on prices, as they need to since there is a widespread effort among buyers to secure lower quotations. All precedents indicate that whatever may be the rate of steel production next December the first three or four months of the new year will bring successive increases.

The scrap markets have been remarkably dull for weeks and prices continue to soften somewhat.

Exports of Grain Higher for Week

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—Bradstreet's estimates the exports of grain for the week, figures in bushels, as follows: Wheat, flour included, 5,568,023 against 4,648,619 last week and 6,438,449 in this week year ago; from July 1, 88,844,826 versus 145,376,360 in the same period last year. Corn, 43,900 versus 18,800 last week and none in this week last year; from July 1, 688,205 contrasted with 1,533,464 in the similar period a year ago.

INSTALLS NEW TEACHING SYSTEM

Pittsburgh Art Institute Discovers Old System Is Unjust to Students

Art Institute

WILLIS SHOOK
Mr. Shook, president of the Pittsburgh Art Institute.

Of the 700 art schools in our country, comparatively few offer courses in that branch which pays best—advertising, illustration or, as it is usually termed, commercial art.

Most schools teach their students how to draw and how to paint, leaving the student to apply that knowledge as he wishes.

This idea was once a sound one, since drawing and painting were all an artist did; he did not have to worry about reproduction.

ADVERTISING ART

But with reproduction came advertising art, and in less than 50 years we have reached the era when more than 15,000,000 drawings are sold in the United States every 12 months, giving today's artist the greatest and most lucrative field for his drawings and paintings that ever existed.

But, with this never-ending market comes restrictions. A successful artist no longer sits in his studio and lovingly depicts some brain child in lovely colors, later to see the canvas hung in a gallery or on the walls of a church. He has become a part of the world of business and he must function accordingly. He must follow instructions laid down by a visualizer—a man trained in advertising, who knows the kind of picture that will produce the effect he wants, which is to sell goods for someone.

The modern artist studies his profession under the guidance of artists who know the requirements of commercial usage so that he works with the limitations of engraving and printing processes in mind from his first day in school.

FEW SUCH SCHOOLS

There are but few schools of this kind—less than a dozen in the country, in fact, says Mr. Willis Shook, who is director of one of them, the Art Institute of Pittsburgh. Mr. Shook founded this school eight years ago with the specific purpose of giving young men and women who liked to draw a chance to develop their talent into a paying life work.

The students attended the first class in his studio in the Fulton Building, October 1, 1921, and this week, beginning the ninth school year, the entering class numbers 264. The original class occupied one room of 500 square feet; today an entire floor of 5,000 square feet is crowded and the school will move within a few months to a floor and a half in another building.

Mr. Shook created and has steadily improved a system of individual instruction for both his day and evening students which has proven unusually productive. The old-fashioned method of requiring a student to draw plaster casts for a year before trying his skill with the living model was abandoned and continuously since the first day some living model has posed before the class.

INSTALLS SYSTEM

Another art school method Mr. Shook considered obsolete with the coming of commercial art was the habit of setting a problem for the student on Monday and then returning on Wednesday or Thursday to see how he was coming along. This method of teaching art has persisted in many schools since the days of Rembrandt and Rubens, Reynolds, Romney and scores of other "old masters."

In the Art Institute of Pittsburgh the students are gathered into small groups, each with its instructor, who is present the entire season. By such individualized coaching an ambitious student can easily make such progress that but two school years of nine months each are required to bring the student to a professional point.

A third innovation introduced by Mr. Shook was the use of actual assignments from the advertising world. Newspaper layouts, street car card designs, booklets, magazine pages, outdoor bulletins and many other forms of publicity requiring art work are placed before the second year students as studio problems. The resulting sketches are given to the advertiser sponsoring the problem and he selects those he likes. All money earned in this way goes into the students' pockets, and each year several thousand dollars go a long way towards canceling many students' school expenses.

ELIMINATES TERMS

Still another advancement over customary school methods made by Mr. Shook was the elimination of semesters. A student can start any time he wishes. If he can work faster than the average it is quite all right—and, too, he can take as much time as he needs if he is backward.

Mr. Shook is always in personal contact with his students. This personal interest is carried into the class and afterwards, for regularly groups of students are invited to his home in Sewickley.

Mr. Shook has crossed the Atlantic half a dozen times and is thoroughly familiar with the galleries of Paris and Rome, Florence, Munich, Amsterdam and London. But it is more the doings of the modern commercial artists in Europe which interest him and he brings home annually a collection of foreign posters which prove invaluable aids to his lectures in class.

STUDENTS MAKE GOOD

It is to be expected that students trained under a thoughtful system such as this make good. Former members of the Art Institute of Pittsburgh can be found on the art staffs of nationally-known companies. Last year the school secured positions for every member of the second year day class in commercial art with the exception of two.

The entire facilities of the school are devoted to but three courses; advertising illustration, complete in two years, and fashion drawing or interior decoration in one year. Classes meet every day including special classes on Saturday mornings for youngsters and on Saturday afternoons for oldsters who have the afternoon off.

PERSONAL INTEREST

Mr. Shook interests himself in all commercial classes, beginners and second year. He brings his students an understanding of advertising art gained in some of the most prominent organizations in the country.

Mr. Vincent Nesbert teaches painting in oils and pastell as well as drawing from life. Mr. Nesbert's work has been well hung in Carnegie Galleries for many years, as well as in New York, Philadelphia and elsewhere. He is a skilled painter with European study back of him. Mr. Cliff Young instructs in lettering and layout. Mr. Young is fresh from Chicago, where his dry brush and wash drawings with other modern techniques created very favorable comment.

Miss Maxine Kelly conducts the fashion drawing class and gives her students the benefit of an experience gained in New York, Chicago and San Francisco not to forget Paris and Munich. Mr. Charles Burns has charge of the interior decorators. He was one of the youngest artists to have had paintings accepted at the International Exhibition, and has done very creditable work in Chicago. Mr. Art Gard, well-known artist, teaches the second year class, bringing them his specialized knowledge of advertising art as he finds it in Pittsburgh. Mr. Gard has been illustrating the advertisements of Pittsburgh manufacturers.

August Locomotive Exports Increase

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—Exports of locomotives in August amounted to 30 engines valued at $814,552 compared with 20 locomotives valued at $342,932 in August, 1928, according to the Department of Commerce.

For the first eight months exports amounted to 142 engines valued at $2,561,797 against 127 valued at $1,993,530 in the 1928 period.

Bigger Markets Sought For Plate Glass

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

INCREASED use of safety glass on automobiles and the installation of more plate glass in residences are seen as possible outlets for the increased production of plate glass resulting from the rapid expansion of plant facilities during the past year. As was stated in this column yesterday, the plate glass industry will enter 1930 with the prospect of having a capacity far in excess of market requirements.

The change in production methods from the old system of casting slabs of glass and then grinding and polishing them individually to the new continuous process has made possible the manufacture of glass one-eighth of an inch in thickness. In the past, one-fourth of an inch was the minimum thickness of plate glass which could be made at a moderate cost.

Safety Glass

THE various types of shatter-proof glass are made by cementing two sheets of this light-weight glass together with a transparent, plastic substance. Glass of this kind has been on the market for many years but it is only recently that it has been produced on a scale and at prices which made it interesting to automobile manufacturers.

A large number of cars have appeared equipped with safety glass during the past year and the number is being increased. The importance of this trend to the glass makers cannot be over-emphasized. Every light of shatter-proof glass installed on an automobile means the production of two sheets of thin glass in place of a single sheet slightly thicker glass.

The automobile makers use more than half of the total output of plate glass. If their consumption should be doubled the surplus glass capacity now threatening the industry would be eliminated.

Pittsburgh Safety Glass

VERY satisfactory progress has been made so far in getting the motor industry to adopt safety glass. A year ago the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company and the Du Pont Viscoloid Company formed the Pittsburgh Safety Glass Company to manufacture a laminated glass under the name "Duplate."

Nash Motors has started to use the product on its eight-cylinder cars. Cadillac, La Salle, Studebaker, Hudson, Pierce-Arrow and two of the Chrysler models are also using this company's product. Recently a patent suit brought by the Triplex Safety Glass Corporation, pioneer in the field, was tried, but no decision has been handed down so far.

Residential Use

IN THE past, two factors kept plate glass from being widely used for glazing residences. Its cost was high and its thickness and weight made the use of specially designed sash necessary.

The perfection of a method for making eighth-inch glass and the downward trend of prices have removed these objections. The cost is still greater than that of window glass, but the makers of plate glass believe that improved appearance will open a very important market. The amount of new business of this type developed so far has not been great, but there are indications that the product is being well received.

In many cases, where builders have used plate glass in houses, they have found that sales work is greatly facilitated. Plate glass has none of the flaws frequently found in window glass.

Weekly Business Shows Larger Volume

Commercial transactions during the week ended October 5, as indicated by the volume of checks presented to the banks for payment were greater than in either the previous week or the corresponding week last year, according to the weekly statement of the Department of Commerce. Steel-plant activity was greater than in the preceding week but showed a small decline from the same period of last year. Bituminous coal production during the latest reported week was greater than in either the preceding week or the same period of 1928. The output of crude petroleum showed a further recession from the previous week, but was still greater than in the same period of last year. Distribution of commodities through primary channels, as indicated by data on freight car loadings, covering the latest reported week, continued to show a gain over the corresponding period of last year.

The general index of wholesale prices showed a further decline from the previous week and was almost 5 per cent lower than in the previous week, but were higher than last year. Cotton prices averaged higher than in the preceding week, but were lower than a year ago. Bank loans and discounts showed further expansion as compared with both the preceding week and the corresponding period of 1928. Business failures were less numerous than in either the previous week or the same period of 1928.

Building Permits Lower in Month

The total value of the building permitted for in September at 215 cities, as reported to Bradstreet's, was $183,630,939, as against $211,926,287 in August and $238,691,374 in September a year ago. There is here indicated a decrease from August of 13.3 per cent and from September of 23 per cent. New York City's share of new building planned in September was a little over one-sixth of that at the entire 215 cities, viz.: $31,674,923, as against $42,290,349 in August and $57,558,387 in September a year ago, decreases of, respectively, 25.1 and 44.9 per cent. The aggregate for the other 214 cities in September was $151,956,016, as against $169,635,938 in August and $181,132,987 in September a year ago, decreases of, respectively, 10.4 and 16.1 per cent. Every group of cities shows a decrease from August, while the northwestern group alone shows a gain over September a year ago.

Liberty Dairies Elects Schnars

G. E. Schnars, production manager of the Liberty Dairy Products Corporation, has been elected a vice president of that organization.

His selection comes through the elevation of Paul E. Reinhold to the presidency of Liberty Dairies.

Mr. Schnars is thoroughly experienced in the milk business, being connected with it for more than 25 years. He was president of the Kittanning Pure Milk Company when that company was taken over by Liberty.

THRIFT CORP. PROSPERS

The Pittsburgh Thrift Corporation, now in its sixth year, is the outstanding small-loan institution of Western Pennsylvania. During its short history it has loaned nearly $2,500,000 to more than 10,000 customers.

This corporation is the very substantial realization of an idea. The "small-loans act" in this state allows an interest charge of 42 per cent a year on installment loans up to $300. To the founders of the Pittsburgh Thrift Corporation this charge seemed unnecessary hardship to a large class of the community. There is a very considerable class of good citizens—small businessmen, clerks, workingmen—who cannot be granted accommodation by the old-line banks, but who constitute a good risk for the small-loan institution. To meet the requirements of this class the "Pittsburgh Thrift" plan was devised, with an interest charge less than half that allowed by the state and usually charged on small loans, and with a convenient installment schedule; the plan being based upon the assumption that the vast majority in any community are honest and will try hard to meet any just obligation. The assumption has been amply borne out by the experience of this corporation, with the result that today the Pittsburgh Thrift Corporation is doing by far the largest small-loan business.

While a very large percentage of its borrowers are small property-owners, this corporation has discovered that so-called "moral loans"—loans made merely on the security of the indorsement by reputable wage-earners—can be safely made, and that it puts financial accommodation within the reach of a very large and worthy class of citizens.

While this corporation was founded very largely as a social experiment, principally to bring relief to an important class of citizens, it has turned out to be a sound and necessary business.

The Pittsburgh Thrift Corporation is headed by C. R. Anderson, president; Charles Sturm, vice president; P. A. Freyvogel, secretary; H. R. Hickox, treasurer; R. C. Chandler, manager. The board of directors includes Hon. Joseph Buffington, William H. Friesell, Hon. Samuel H. Gardner, Hon. James H. Gray, G. Brown Hill, Paul W. Irwin, Henry Russell Miller, John E. Potter, Edwin Z. Smith, John I. Thompson, Henry Tranter, Malcolm S. Vandervort, Hon. John W. Vickerman and H. E. Wilson.

Druggists Unite To Meet Chain Competition

Chain competition is being met by 380 independent druggists in the Pittsburgh district. The pharmacists have organized into a co-operative chain to secure the advantages of mass buying and mass advertising. Ure Druggist, Inc., of Cleveland, a national co-operative organization, is supplying the local units with their merchandise and is managing an extensive advertising campaign.

Operators of retail stores should study the possibilities of Grant Street and Seventh Avenue. The Koppers Building is an accomplished fact. The Gulf Building will be occupied by May 1, 1932. The New Federal Building will be started next year. This means that the three of the four corners in this location will be occupied by magnificent buildings by May 1, 1932. Automobile and pedestrian traffic in this area is increasing rapidly. The district has adequate parking facilities. It is well served by street car and bus lines. The Pennsylvania suburban trains haul a large number of prospective customers daily. There is a spendid opportunity to secure excellent locations for retail stores in this district, which will be represented by Pittsburgh's finest buildings.

COUNTY-WIDE EXHIBIT OF VOTE MACHINES ARRANGED

CLUB WOMEN CAMPAIGN FOR ADOPTION

Cities, Boroughs, Townships Will Be Visited—Members Of Committee Announced

Voting machines will be demonstrated in all parts of Allegheny County, it was announced today, as a method to induce citizens to vote for adoption of the devices.

This was decided upon at a meeting of the women's division, Citizens' Voting Machine Campaign Committee, at the committee's headquarters at the William Penn Hotel.

TEN MACHINES ORDERED

Ten machines have been ordered. Club women will tour the county with them and exhibit them wherever an audience of 100 or more can be assembled.

The opinion was expressed that citizens would not hesitate to vote for the adoption of the machines, as a substitute for the unsatisfactory paper ballot, once they understood how the devices are worked.

"We believe," the women said, in a formal resolution which will be submitted for indorsement to civic and trade bodies, women's clubs and the like—"We believe that the use of voting machines will bring greater efficiency in elections, provide a more accurate count than often occurs under existing conditions, obviate the sometimes protracted delays in returning results, reduce the opportunity for fraud and error, and bring about a substantial saving in the cost of elections as well as greater convenience to voters."

The campaign is to be carried into every city, borough and township. The 40 women who attended the meeting promised to enlist many volunteer workers to promote the adoption of the resolution and help in the demonstration of the voting machines.

CAMPAIGN PERSONNEL

The official personnel of the Citizens' Voting Machine Campaign Committee was announced as follows: Chairman, Senator Frank J. Harris; vice chairman, Mrs. John O. Miller; treasurer, Mrs. John W. Lawrence; secretary, Councilman Daniel Winters; executive secretary, Mrs. Q. W. Hershey; executive committee, Harry Bastow, Mrs. George G. Bray, Dr. J. W. Claudy, Eugene L. Connelly, Charles E. Fire Destroys Inn On Historic Site

BADEN, Pa., Oct. 12.—Because no fire hydrants are located in the vicinity, Baden firemen were forced to stand helpless while fire destroyed the Wayne Inn, on the site of the old camp of Gen. Bankruptcy Item Contained Error

A voluntary bankruptcy filed Saturday in Federal Court was erroneously reported as the Harrison Construction Company instead of the Harris Construction Company. The latter concern, at East Pike Run, Washington County, listed its liabilities at $63,968.38 and its assets at $88,940.45.

TEXAS TELLING A BEDTIME TALE

QUEEN OF THE CABARETS RECITING HER GIRLS TO SLEEP

"And so the three little bears lived happily ever after," Texas Guinan, crowned and uncrowned Queen of the Cabarets, is telling her "good little girls," rehearsing diligently in Pittsburgh for the opening of a new revue. Well, goodby sucker.

'TEX' PROMISES SILENCE HERE

By TEXAS GUINAN.

Hello, suckers!

How are all my old friends? You know, I'll bet a thousand Pittsburgh hubbies are quivering at the knees today for fear that good old Tex is going to tell their wives all about their little parties in my clubs on Broadway.

Don't shake boys. Tex won't tell. Why should I? Maybe there's one or two things they could tell about me.

Silent Texas is my handle while I'm spreading cheer and scandal over Pittsburgh. I won't even tell those wives what time it is.

I came to town a day or two in advance to rehearse for our new show which opens here next week. And I've brought all my little girls from the club along. Won't my millionaire friends be glad to hear that?

Ho, but all kidding to the rear, my little girls are the most innocent beauties you ever wrapped a sable around. Do you know that my little girls are up every morning at seven bells? Yes, sir, they are! In fact, I fine 'em $10 if they're up a minute later.

I know I'm going to go Matteawan about Pittsburgh. Harry Thaw's been telling me about all your fine homes. I'm waiting for the dinner invitations to some of those swell layouts in Point Breeze. One thing I insist on—I won't come in by the back door.

The last time I was in Pittsburgh was in 1914 with a Winter Garden show. I remember that because, as part of the show, I kissed a bald-headed butter and egger in the front row—and he sued for 50 grand. If that happens again it oughta be worth a cool half million.

I must see your courts while I'm here, I just must. And I'm palpitating to shake my fist at your new federal attorney. I figure if he's ever promoted to Broadway I'll have to do lots of business with him.

Now I want all my millionaires to come down and see me. Tell the wife that old one about staying up with the sick friend.

P. S.—My health's not so good at that.

Braddock Man Held In Theft of Auto

Oakland police last night questioned Theodore Weisman, 32, of 123 Sixth street, Braddock, in connection with the theft of the automobile of George A. Mitchell, of Montview street, Wilkinsburg, which he was seen to enter in Semple street late yesterday. He told police the car belonged to a friend who had given him permission to use it, but police learned it had been stolen from the Wilkinsburg address, they said.

Parachute Seller Held in Death of Girl Jumper

WICHITA, Kan., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Bert White, demonstrator for a parachute company was held for trial under $2,000 bond on charges of fourth degree manslaughter in connection with the death of Helen Williams, 18, who was killed here September 14 in making her first parachute leap.

White is accused of negligence in not properly instructing the girl in the use of the parachute, which failed to open when she jumped from an airplane used by White in his demonstration.

J. J. Wilson, alleged to have been the girl's companion at a party the night before her death, was located too late to testify for the state.

FREE EX-AGENT IN DRY CASE

Albert Scales, of Monessen, former government prohibition agent, was cleared of a charge of having conspired to violate the national prohibition law when he was dropped as a defendant in Federal Court in the so-called Greene County rum conspiracy indictment.

The charge against Scales was quashed by Judge Nelson McVicar on petition of United States Attorney John D. Meyer. The latter said there was insufficient evidence to warrant prosecution.

Archie Negelman, former prohibition agent, who was a defendant in the indictment, which was returned March 21, pleaded guilty at the May term of court and is now serving a two-year sentence in the Atlanta Penitentiary. Another named a defendant in the indictment is Arnos McClellan, sheriff of Greene County.

Boy Prisoners Taken To Training School

Deputy United States Marshal Edward A. Holden left for the National Training School for Boys at Washington, D. C., with Bertrum B. Lawson, 16, and Richard Trautman, 14, sentenced at the Erie session of court to serve indefinite periods there. Trautman pleaded guilty of stealing a parcel post package at Baden, Pa., which contained a bathing suit, and Lawson admitted transporting a stolen automobile from Erie to Buffalo, N. Y.

Child Dies of Scalds After Fall Into Tub

RIDGWAY, Pa., Oct. 12.—When she lost her balance when reaching for a cup on a kitchen table, Margaret Ellen, 2-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Neely, of De Young, Elk County, fell backward into a tub of hot water and was scalded fatally. The child was immediately taken to a hospital but died before being admitted.

'STRIP' LEADER HUNTED IN RAID

A prominent politician of the Strip is being sought by Federal Prohibition agents as a result of a raid Thursday on a building at 2710 Penn avenue, where a 300-gallon still, 180 gallons of whisky and a quantity of mash were seized. No one was arrested at the time of the raid and agents investigating the ownership of the plant, believe they will arrest a prominent politician.

Agents say that the suspect is one of the 27 men indicted by the United States grand jury in the Strip rum conspiracy cases and he and 21 others were freed when the charges were quashed.

ACCUSED SLAYER FREED IN N. Y.

The New York courts having refused to honor extradition papers for "Jack" Ruben, suspected as the murderer of Abraham Sussman, Hill district pawnbroker, the suspect will not be returned here from New York City, where he has been for several weeks.

The alleged gangster was turned loose yesterday after local sleuths had made an unsuccessful fight to have the man returned here for trial. Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt signed the extradition papers after Detective Frank Dodson had appeared and submitted evidence detectives say they hold.

In court yesterday Ruben's alibi was that he was in New York at the time of the killing and in spite of the evidence offered by local detectives.

West Virginia's Governor with his family and Miss Lainge, in Pittsburgh for the West Virginia University-Pitt football game today. Mrs. Legg is the governor's daughter. Everyone in the party predicted a surprise at the Stadium today.

West Virginia's Governor And Romance Here

Gov. William G. Conley, of West Virginia, was in Pittsburgh today with his wife, two sons, a daughter and an attractive brunet about whom was an aura of romance.

Primarily the Governor was here to see West Virginia University's football team overwhelm Pitt with surprise and defeat. Conservative, he reminded all that the Mountaineers usually did the unexpected.

And Mrs. Conley, staunch Mountaineer, was as enthusiastic as her sons and daughters for a West Virginia victory.

And then there was Miss "Trude" Laing, of Charleston. On the important finger of her left hand was a sparkling diamond, on her attractive face a smile.

"Has it been announced?" asked the presumptuous reporter.

"No," answered an important, embarrassed principal, young Attorney James (Buck) Conley, "it hasn't."

"But look," directed the second Conley son, Don, and he pointed to the diamond on Miss Trudy's finger.

There is, therefore, no official basis to a statement which says that James (Buck) Conley and Miss Gertrude (Trude) Laing are more than just real good friends.

SEABOARD PLAN INVOLVES NEW STOCK

Directors Propose Offer Of Additional Common At $12 Share for Share

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—The board of directors of the Seaboard Air Line Railway took further action yesterday looking toward the consummation of the Seaboard's readjustment plan.

The program, which is subject to approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, involves the retirement through voluntary exchange of approximately $22,300,000 in 5 per cent adjustment bonds, accumulated interest on which aggregates approximately $4,500,000, and the issue in their stead of approximately $11,150,000 of consolidated 6 per cent bonds and approximately 330,000 shares of new no par common stock.

APPROVAL EXPECTED

The board also voted to offer to stockholders approximately 1,900,000 shares of new no-par common stock at $12 per share, which will produce in excess of $20,000,000 new capital; and approved the execution of an underwriting agreement with Messrs. Dillon, Reed & Co. and Ladenburg, Thalman & Co. underwriting this issue.

It is expected that stockholders will approve the plan at meetings to be held today. Application for formal approval of the plan and the issue of new stock and other securities involved therein has been filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

COVERDALE CHAIRMAN

Subject to the approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, W. H. Coverdale, of Coverdale & Colpitts, was elected chairman of the board to succeed Robert L. Nutt, who announced his desire to retire as chairman of the board after nearly 40 years of active service. Nutt will continue as a director and in an advisory capacity. Legh R. Powell, Jr., president since the death of S. Davies Warfield in 1927, will continue as president and operating executive of the company. Nutt also stated that a group had been formed to invest in Seaboard securities an amount now aggregating in excess of $10,000,000 and that among the securities purchased by this group is the major part of the Seaboard stock held by the estate of the late S. Davies Warfield; and that in connection with this development the following men have consented to accept election as directors of the company, to be added to the existing board:

NEW DIRECTORS

Preston S. Arkwright, of Atlanta, president of Georgia Power Company, former president National Electric Light Association; Walter W. Colpitts, of New York City, member of Coverdale and Colpitts; Harvey C. Couch, of Pine Bluff, Ark., president Arkansas Power and Light Company, Louisiana Power and Light Company and Mississippi Power and Light Company; William H. Coverdale, of New York City, member of Coverdale and Colpitts; Norman H. Davis, of New York City; George S. Franklin, of New York City, member of Cotton and Franklin; Robert Lassiter, of Charlotte, N. C., manufacturer and banker and director of Richmond Federal Reserve Bank; Oscar Wells, of Birmingham, Ala., president of First National Bank of Birmingham, former president American Bankers' Association; Louis H. Windholz, of Norfolk, Va., president D. Render Grocery Company; E. A. Yates, of Birmingham, Ala., vice president Southeast Power and Light Company, vice president and general manager Alabama Power Company.

OUTSTANDING ACHIEVEMENT

The successful consumption of the Seaboard plan will represent an outstanding achievement in railroad financing. A year ago when Messrs. Dillon, Read & Company undertook the solution of the company's financial problem the road was suffering from a temporary business depression in the southeastern territory of the United States, especially in Florida, following the recession of the boom which had the effect of reducing the gross earnings by $10,000,000 within two years.

EARNINGS ENCOURAGING

Seaboard earnings for the current year are extremely encouraging. Each month of the year, from January to date, has shown an increase in both gross revenues and net earnings. For the nine months ended September 30, 1929, gross revenues were $2,162,000 in excess of those for the same nine months' period in 1928. Notwithstanding increased maintenance appropriations during the first eight months of 1929, amounting to $1,135,000, net income (before adjustment bond interest) increased by $453,000, to an aggregate amount of $1,088,000 for that period.

President Powell expects a continuing increase, both in gross revenues and net earnings, even without taking into account the benefit to be obtained from more than $20,000,000 to be received from the sale of new stock.

BENEFITS HOLDERS

This amount of cash, coupled with the retirement of a large proportion of adjustment bonds, the holders of approximately 90 per cent of which have accepted the plan, and the postponement of the debt maturities, is of benefit to every security holder, the company itself and the public which it serves. The consummation of the plan will enable Seaboard to do these things which are necessary to bring it abreast of its strong competitors. Without some such plan the Seaboard would have been in a most unfortunate situation. With it, every indication is that the road has a splendid future.

Forbes

Bulls Triumph; Mitchell Is Now Called Optimist

By B. C. FORBES

CHARLES E. MITCHELL, head of America's largest banking institution, is apparently talking much more optimistically in Europe regarding money and stock market prospects here than he talked earlier in the year at home. Bluntly, this outstanding banker, in common with a good many other leading bankers, has shed much of the alarm he used to feel concerning the state of the Wall Street money market—not to say stock market. It will be interesting to hear what he says on his return towards the end of this month. His views, naturally, carry weight.

ONE very important railway president intimates that he hopes shortly to make a statement concerning the seven-day work week. And he is good enough to indicate that his action was influenced by this column's advocacy of the abolition of seven-day work.

The influence upon other roads, let us hope, will prove potent enough to bring remedial action.

RARELY has a stock market recovered as impressively as has been witnessed this week. Starting last Saturday with a rebound, prices have made substantial headway daily since then. The gain for the six days has averaged 25 points. Clearly, the bulls are again in control.

That the recovery will go still further is widely expected. Indeed, almost all dire predictions of an impending collapse have been silenced. Yet a different tale may have to be told before the new year is well under way.

Don't forget that cheap money is not enough in itself to prevent a market from falling once it starts falling. Bear markets in the midst of cheap money have been witnessed before now.

TWO names freely mentioned in Wall street in connection with heavy drops in a few stocks are William C. Durant and Mike Meehan, the latter a stock exchange broker, who sprang prominently into fame some little time ago.

The lion and the lamb? Two progressive railroads, Union Pacific and Chicago and Northwestern, this week started regular bus service between Chicago and Denver, via Omaha. The 20 new interstate transit buses mark a new peak in luxury. Slowly—very slowly—railway executives are becoming converted to the idea that their job, if they wish to keep pace with the times, is to supply the best possible transportation facilities, whether by rail or road or air, or a combination of all three.

JOHN J. RASKOB writes that he is now engaged in forming his proposed organization for the benefit of small investors. Many are eagerly and hopefully waiting to have Raskob make them independent for life at small cost. If he can fulfill aroused expectations he will prove a financial wizard indeed.

LOUIS W. HILL, who is resigning as chairman of the Great Northern, at 56, prefers to indulge in leisure rather than follow his illustrious father's example of working like a slave until the final roll-call. Not many sons of financial or business super-men let work engross their whole life. The present J. P. Morgan, young George F. Baker, young Harriman, the present generation of Goulds and Vanderbilts are examples. The younger Ford and the younger Rockefeller are exceptions. Louis Hill will not be like a fish out of water as so many men would be were they to retire. He has learned how to play and how to enjoy hobbies.

"MY bank has become too impersonal to suit me," declares a friends. "I got this curt note: 'Effective October 1, we have marked the rate on your demand loan for $20,000 from 6 to 7 per cent,' and, instead of it being signed by someone I knew, it was signed by an assistant cashier on whom I had never set eyes. In my business dealings I like the human touch."

CONGRATULATIONS to Harris, Forbes & Co., the influential bankers. In issuing a comprehensive survey of the American founders group of companies, instead of inserting the customary line that they accept no responsibility for the accuracy of statements made, they prominently print: "All statements herein have been carefully checked and proved by the companies concerned." Will other houses please take notice?

IT'S an ill wind, President A. E. Dickinson, of the Indiana Limestone Company, says the building industry is being helped by the erection of numbers of tremendously large and fine structures to house bank mergers.

DON'T get too heavily into debt.

CASH IN BARREL, SUSPECT SAYS

Police last night questioned Oscar Frohnatsel, 26, of 1943 Tours street, concerning the disappearance yesterday of $463.40 from the office of Frank Wemple, construction foreman at the new Arlington Apartments, Center and Aiken avenues. All but $65 of the missing amount was found in his pocket, police said.

Wemple told police the money was in his coat pocket. Frohnatsel said he found the money in a barrel.

Mistinguette's Legs To Elevate Talkies

PARIS, Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Hollywood soon will have the opportunity to study at close range the world's most beautiful legs—those of Mlle. Mistinguette, French revue star, who has succumbed to the lure of the talkies, it was learned today.

Two Brothers, 7 and 9, Admit Killing Child

MILFORD, Conn., Oct. 12.—(INS.)—Facing the task of proving or disproving the almost incredible story of murder told by two lads still years away from their 'teens a coroner's jury plunged today into a renewed investigation of the death of Albert Mikenas, 3 years old, found dead in a lonely swamp near here last July.

Frankly incredulous, the authorities went deeper into the story told by James and John Mulligan, orphans, 7 and 9 years old, respectively, who in an amazing confession declared they killed the 3-year-old boy "just for the thrill of it."

The Mikenas child was found with his skull fractured three times, and with his body showing signs of a terrific beating. A lengthy investigation was made into the crime, and feeble-minded persons in the vicinity were rounded up at the time the body was found. They were questioned without result.

The Mulligan boys' confession came like a bolt from the blue. At the time of the killing, they lived with Mrs. Elizabeth Schread, not far from the home of the Mikenas child.

Detectives said that the story of callousness and brutality told by the boys caused case-hardened listeners in the police station to shudder.

NOTED GUESTS WILL ATTEND RIVER FETE

Egyptian Envoy, Members of Cabinet, Governors and Rail Chiefs Here Thursday

Mahmoud Samy Pasha, Egyptian ambassador and brilliant engineer of the famous Nile River waterways project, will be present with cabinet members, governors and other executives interested in rail and water transportation, at the William Penn Hotel, next Thursday night, which is part of the celebration marking the complete canalization of the Ohio River.

James Francis Burke, toastmaster of the banquet, who arrived from Washington yesterday, announced that the Egyptian diplomat and engineer would be here to learn more of the Ohio River job that represents 50 years of work and an expenditure of $200,000,000.

TO TALK AT LUNCHEON

Pasha, as an engineer, faced the same obstacles to change the historic Nile into a navigable stream of commercial value to his country that the government engineers had to overcome to build a water stairway from Pittsburgh to Cairo, Ill., a distance of 1,000 miles, so that commodities from the Steel City might be transported the year round, regardless of weather conditions.

On his trip here, where he will spend some time inspecting the latest contributions to the science of river engineering, the ambassador will be guest speaker at the Service Club luncheon.

GOVERNORS TO ATTEND

Final arrangements for the visit of the cabinet officers were completed by Burke during his stay in Washington. The five cabinet men, Secretary of War James W. Good, principal speaker of the banquet; Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon; Secretary of Labor James J. Davis; Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams and Secretary of Commerce Robert P. Lamont will leave next Wednesday in a special car from Washington, arriving in Pittsburgh Thursday morning.

An informal luncheon will be held at noon for the cabinet officers, Gov. Fisher and Gov. William G. Conley, of West Virginia, and the following railroad executives: Daniel Willard, Baltimore & Ohio; W. W. Atterbury, Pennsylvania; Frank Taplin, of the Taplin Interests; J. J. Burnet, Cheseapeake & Ohio and P. E. Crowley, New York Central.

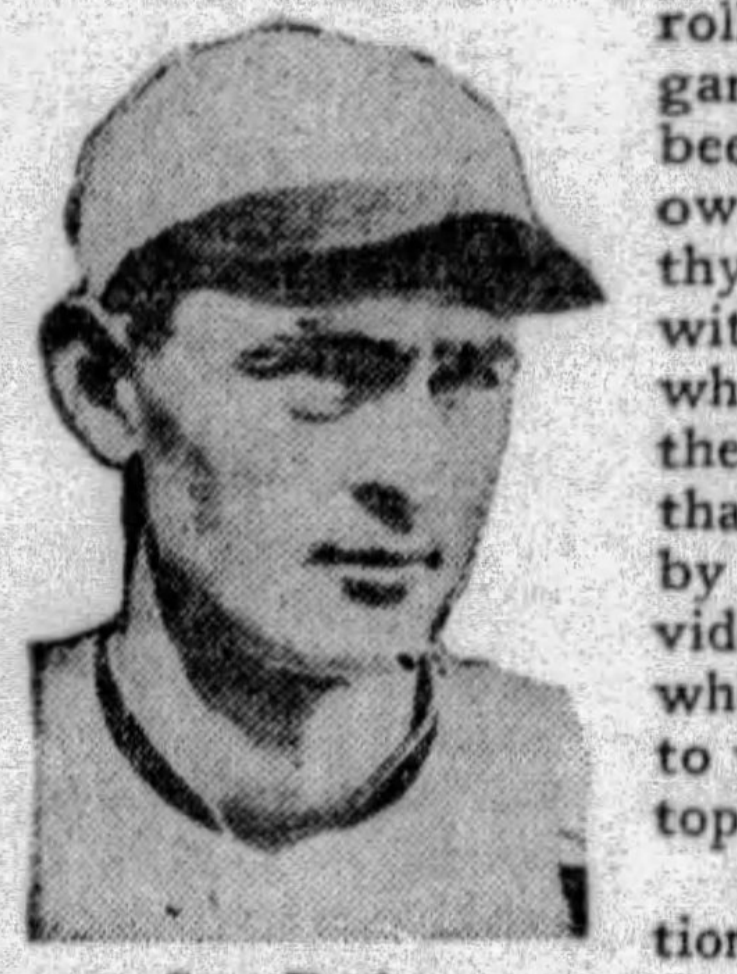
N. L. BREAKS A. L. WIN STRING

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—National League stock was on the rise today, following the success of Guy Bush and the Cubs in stopping the progress of the American League steamroller yesterday, and capturing the third game of the world series after they had been floored twice in succession at their own park in Chicago. True, McCarthy's men were still at a disadvantage, with only one victory to their credit while two triumphs were marked up for their opponents. That standing meant that the Athletics could win the series by breaking even in four games provided the struggle went the limit, whereas the Bruins would be required to win three out of four to come out on top after their bad start.



Guy Bush

It was an immeasurably better position than the Windy City ballers had occupied after the second game, however, and their spirits rose accordingly. Not only had they averted a rout and got their feet under themselves again, but they had broken the long run of adversity suffered by their circuit. Prior to yesterday the National League had lost 10 world series games in succession, and had not tasted victory since the Cardinals downed the Yankees in the seventh and final game of the series of 1926 on October 8, of that year. The Bruins felt that it spelled the beginning of better things, and that their first victory would be followed by others.

ONE thing that strengthened the hopes of Cub supporters was the courage evidenced by the Chicago players in turning the tables on the A's yesterday. The loss of the first two games would have caused many a team to fold up.

The Bruins, however, never showed a sign of quitting or letting down. They came out for the third game as full of fight as ever, and it was evident that even they failed to win another game they could not be accused of lacking gameness. That quality stood out all the more strikingly in view of the fact that some of their batters were still off stride, as indicated by a string of 10 more strikeouts, a record-breaking total of 36 in the 27 innings played, Rogers Hornsby and Kiki Cuyler leading with six whiffs each.

THE comeback of Guy Bush was a pleasing surprise to National League adherents. Bush had a queer season. He won 17 of his first 18 games, but then became arm weary and won only one more victory during the remainder of the regular campaign.

When he relieved Charley Root near the end of the series opener on Tuesday, he did not appear impressive, and many questioned the judgment of Manager McCarthy in sending him in yesterday, feeling that it was the game on which the Cubs' last chance would be at stake and that it should be entrusted to Root, the best bet.

Jimmy Dykes

BUT the outcome more than vindicated McCarthy. Bush came through with an exhibition that equalled the best performances credited to him during the season. His arm, apparently, had regained its old strength and cunning, and though he was nicked for three more hits than was his opponent, George Earnshaw, he tightened up in the pinches and showed his greatest effectiveness in the most dangerous situations. He bore down hardest on the batters most to be feared, Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx, and how well he did the job is shown by the fact that neither of Mack's famous sluggers was able to make a hit. Foxx, the slugging hero of the first two games, failed to knock a ball out of the infield.

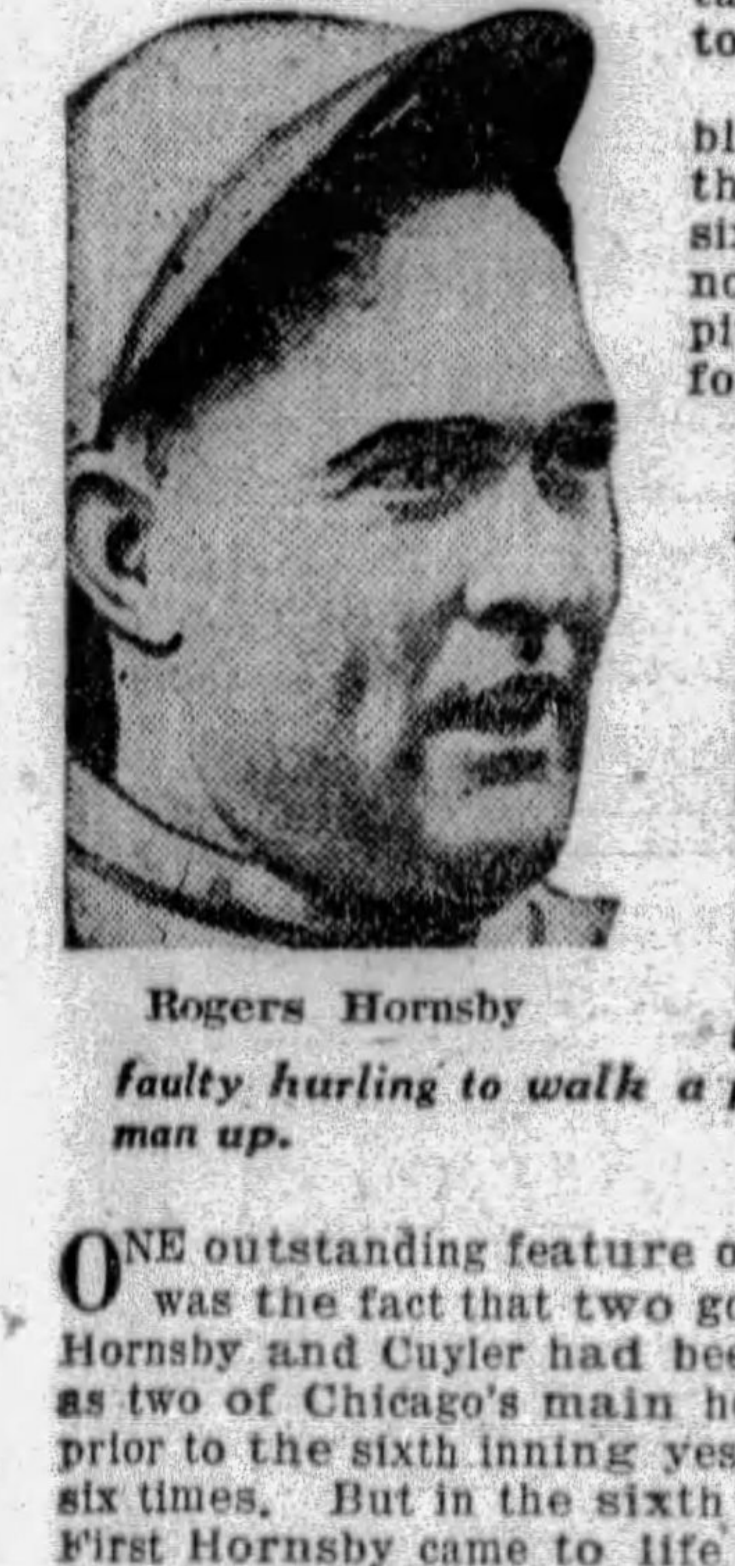
AND Bush himself knew better than anyone else that he was right again after his long slump during the closing stages of the pennant race. Never did a pitcher appear so sure of himself. Guy went about his work inning after inning as if there were no doubts about the outcome.

The most threatening situations failed to shake the confidence of the Chicago hurler or to ruffle him to the slightest extent. Twice he found two men on the bases with only one out and slugging Simmons and Foxx coming out, but both times he pitched himself out safely. Simmons did connect once for such a long fly to Wilson in center that runners on first and second were able to move up on the catch, but Foxx never even threatened.

FOR once, Mack's crossing-up of the enemy in his pitching selection did not work out successfully. It had been looked upon as a certainty that he would work Jack Quinn or Rube Walberg in the third game. In fact, a semi-official bulletin to that effect had been made public from White Elephant headquarters, and there was general surprise when Earnshaw went to the mound.

Though he had pitched less than five innings of Wednesday's game, Earnshaw had only one day's rest and Mack seemed to be taking a long chance in pushing him back to the rubber again so soon.

At that Earnshaw pitched a very creditable engagement, as indicated by the fact that he struck out 10 men and allowed only six hits. Final results proved that it would not have mattered a great deal whom Mack pitched. Only shut-out ball could have won for the A's anyhow.



Rogers Hornsby

HOWEVER, Earnshaw might have had a tie at the completion of nine innings if his support had not leaked in the fatal sixth inning. It was Jimmy Dykes' fumble of an easy grounder to third base that made it possible to get three runs and win. Had Dykes fielded the ball cleanly, the Bruins probably would have scored only one run, but at that, it was Earnshaw himself who started the trouble by giving a base on balls to Bush at the start of the inning. It is faulty hurling to walk a pitcher, particularly when he is the first man up.

ONE outstanding feature of the third round of the titular argument was the fact that two goats were suddenly transformed to heroes. Hornsby and Cuyler had been the batting jokes of the series. Hailed as two of Chicago's main hopes, they had fallen down woefully, and prior to the sixth inning yesterday each had struck out no fewer than six times. But in the sixth there was a double turning of the worm. First Hornsby came to life and belted a single to left that drove in the tying run, and then Cuyler came out of his slump and, with two out and the count three and two on him, sent another solitaire hopping over second base that put the winning markers across.

The fact that Hornsby and Cuyler had begun to hit was one item on which the Cubs today based their confidence of having better luck in the games to come. Wilson got back into his stride after the first game and made five hits in a row, and a return to form by Hornsby and Cuyler would make the Cub attack normal again.

THE results of the games to date bear out the early dope that victory would go to the side able to stop the main offensive weapons of the opposing club. The A's won the first event because Foxx got in his work, the same club took the second number because both Foxx and Simmons were hitting, and the Cubs won yesterday because Hornsby and Cuyler finally got their eyes on the ball.

With Root ready to go back on the mound today after getting

West Virginia is asking, and in some instances receiving, "points." The odds favor Pitt at about 10 to 7, with a dozen points being asked.

W. VA. SEEKS TO REPEAT

A year back, West Virginia, fighting savagely, turned an apparent defeat into a victory by intercepting a needless forward pass and converting it, with the aid of one play, into a touchdown. A point after goal and a safety established a safe margin of victory.

The Mountaineers enter the game today with three varsity stars on the sidelines, confined there by injuries. Clint Carrico, possibly the best center in the section; Nelson Lang, end, and Ike Lewis, a guard, are not scheduled to start, but will be available for duty if needed.

Pitt's starting lineup will be the same as it was for the game last week with Duke. Parkinson, Williams, Uansa and Baker will be in the backfield. Joe Donchess, Rip Collins, ends; Jimmy McMurdo and Charley Tully, tackles; Capt. Al DiMeolo and Ray Montgomery, guards, and Daugherty, center, will make up the line.

West Virginia expects to start with Behnke and Howard at the ends; Scott and Boall, tackles; Gordon and Brown, guards; Plaster, center and Capt. Marshall Glenn, Eddie Stumpp, Bartrung and Varney in the backfield.

DUKES MEET ALBION

The Dukes, taking over Forbes Field as a home gridiron, introduce to local football followers a new college varsity in Albion. The Michigan eleven comes here with the record of having gone through the '28 campaign without meeting defeat and of having been scored on but once. Its principal victory was the 2-0 win scored over Michigan Aggies.

In any event, regardless of the strength of weakness of the Michiganers, it will be the Dukes who will be playing under the strain, for the locals have an unbeaten, once-tied record to maintain. The team playing under such a condition is always handicapped. However, the Dukes figure to win.

The all-around program for today is strong. Carnegie Tech meets Western Reserve at Dunn Field, Cleveland, in a game which is expected to draw a record football crowd in the Forest City. The Tartans will be minus a pair of stars, Rosenzweig and Karcis, end and fullback respectively, being on the shelf with injuries.

GENEVA FACES TEST

The real tidbit of the day, is the Geneva-Davis-Elkins francas at Beaver Falls. Two years ago the Covevanters walloped the Scarlet Hurricane 21-0. Today, the Hurricane rules a slight favorite. Morris Harvey, West Virginia and St. Louis University all have fallen before the power of Cam Henderson's attack.

Geneva has defeated Canisus and tied Allegheny, and with the return to condition of all regulars, and with its running attack polished to a high degree, will give the Hurricane a ball game. It is thought Geneva's aerial game and dangerous open attack will prove to be Davis-Elkins' undoing.

Penn State tackles Marshall at State College; Allegheny is in Hanover for a game with Dartmouth; Waynesburg faces Thiel in a Tri-State Conference clash at Greenville; Bethany meets Broaddus at Bethany; St. Vincent's engages Mt. St. Marys at Emmetsburg, Md.; W. Va. Wesleyan takes on St. Xavier in Cincinnati and Wash-Jeff has Bucknell as it first major opponent at Lewisburg in other contests of interest to this section.

Broken Neck Fatal To Frosh Gridder

COHASSET, Mass., Oct. 12.—(INS.)—His neck broken in a scrub game of football with playmates, Stephen Hetue, 15, freshman at Cohasset High School, was dead today, the first football fatality in this section. He was a member of the high school eleven and had engaged in his first game against Thayer Academy Thursday.

CLEMSON TIGERS WIN

FLORENCE, S. C., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The Clemson Tigers, rolling up three touchdowns early in the game and a fourth by a spectacular passing attack in the final quarter, defeated North Caroline state here yesterday, 26-to-0.

BRUINS SHOW GINGER IN VICTORY

By
Harold "Pie" Traynor

Captain of Pittsburgh Pirates.
(Written Exclusively for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.)

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Well, folks, that's quite a bit better, isn't it? It is true that the Cubs still are shy of their well known punch, but Guy Bush had his hook and fast ball on display and McCarthy's boys delivered just enough timely hits to land the third game of the series.

It would be hard to describe the worth of Bush's pitching. But you will note that he stopped the two cleanup men of the Athletics' order and any time you hold Al Simmons and Jimmy Foxx in check you stand a fine chance to beat the American League champions.

Pie Traynor.

It seems to me that a good curve ball is the thing needed to slow down the Athletics. You know that Charley Root held the A's to three hits in seven frames. Root had a fine curve as well as a good fast ball. Bush seemed to be just as fast as Root and his curve was comfort to us National Leaguers who looked on as he cut his way through Connie Mack's attack.

EARNSHAW GREAT

Of course, I am not saying that Guy outpitched George Earnshaw. Earnshaw must indeed be a great pitcher. He fanned 10 more of the Cubs yesterday and this feat in itself deserves to be written up in the papers and broadcast through the radios.

But Bush had to be right today

West Virginia University is counting heavily on Capt. Marshall (Little Sleepy) Glenn and Eddie Stumpp, backfield stars, to keep its eleven in the running against Pitt at the Stadium today. Glenn, at quarterback, will direct the play of the eleven. Stumpp, a fine passer, will manipulate the aerial attack, a strong point in West Virginia's offense.

Senate Adjourns So Members Can Attend Sports

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)

The call of a triple sports attraction along the eastern seaboard today will be answered by a representative group of Washington officialdom.

Aware that a quorum would probably be impossible to obtain, the Senate called a truce in its tariff struggle and adjourned yesterday until Monday, affording its membership an opportunity to go to any of three events—the world series baseball game at Philadelphia, the Notre Dame-Navy football game at Baltimore or the horse races at the Laurel, Md., track.

nie Mack plays this afternoon Charley Root, who worked a beautiful seven-inning stretch in the opener in Chicago, has had three days of rest and should be at top form for the fourth battle of the championship set.

Connie Mack remains the caretaker of the old curiosity shop; the scribes continue to guess his slab choice. The Philadelphia boys seem to think that Bob Grove, famed left-hander, will be on the mound against the Cubs this afternoon, but Mack won't commit himself on the matter. Jack Quinn's name remains in the reckoning with a chance that Howard Ehmke or Rube Walberg will be on the center of the diamond.

MACK STILL INDEFINITE

From this you will see that the Athletics' choice is very indefinite. From a Chicago standpoint, one thing was fairly well established yesterday, and that deals with the apparent inefficiency of the Athletics when they look at a curve ball star. It is true that the Cubs were outbatted as they copped yesterday, but a closer study of the contest probably would reveal that the de luxe batters in the home lineup were almost complete flabbergasted while competing with Guy Bush's hook. Neither Al Simmons or Jimmy Foxx, the home run kings, were able to get a safe hit, and they did not look the part of the great batters they were when they had to challenge the curves thrown by the elongated Mississippian.

Root was even more successful against the Athletics in Chicago, but there were more heroics in Bush's performance. The Cubs were fighting yesterday with their backs against the wall and the pitcher seemed to be a symbol of the mood right from the moment he went to the hill until he faced George Haas, who made the final out of the contest.

Well, anyhow, the Bears seem to have gained a pretty fair toehold and the confidence that accrued from their first victory may stand in their stead in the remaining games of the world series.

KIKI COMES THROUGH

Pittsburgh fans doubtless rejoiced in the part played in the victory by Hazen Cuyler and Hornsby, who were two big figures of the pennant dash of the Cubs, and were bad disappointments in the series up to the sixth inning of yester-

SCHENLEY, LANGLEY WIN SCHOOL GRID TILTS

Grove City Eleven Beats John Carroll by 27 to 6

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 12, 1929

OLIVER BEATEN, 46-0; PERRY BOWS, 13-0

Schenley and Langley High schools added another victory to their gridiron accomplishments yesterday in the feature scholastic contests of the district.

Schenley High came through with an impressive win over Oliver High, 46-0, in an intersectional battle on the latter's field, while Perry fell before the onslaught of Langley, 13 to 0, in a Section 2, City League, engagement.

HAYMAN SCORES

Powell's 60-yard run for a touchdown on the first play after the opening kickoff marked the Schenley-Oliver one-sided tussle. Oliver's team included reserve material, four stars being kept out for the opening of that school's league schedule next week.

Hayman and Ely scored the touchdowns that sent Langley home victor over Perry, Greenwarld getting the goal after touchdown. The winner tallied in the first and third quarters, a fighting Perry eleven holding them scoreless in the other two periods.

Coach Howard Harpster's Shady Side Academy team added another win in humiliating the Duke Preps, 26 to 6. Reuter, McQuillan and Harpster, last-named being a brother to the coach and former Tech All-America star, played best.

In other games, Dormont High fought its way to a 19-6 win over Bridgeville, the losers scoring first, in the second period, and Crafton blanked Avalon High, 21 to 0, on its own battleground. Brunt was the star of the Crafton victory.

CORAOPOLIS BLANKED

Verona High bowed, 14 to 0, to Coraopolis High, and Braddock and Stowe Township waged a mighty contest to a 6-all deadlock. Canonsburg nosed out its rival, Carnegie High, 6 to 0, on the latter's new athletic field.

Homestead High traveled to Monongahela, and there set down the high school machine of that city, 13 to 0. McFarland and Murray were the stars. The lineups:

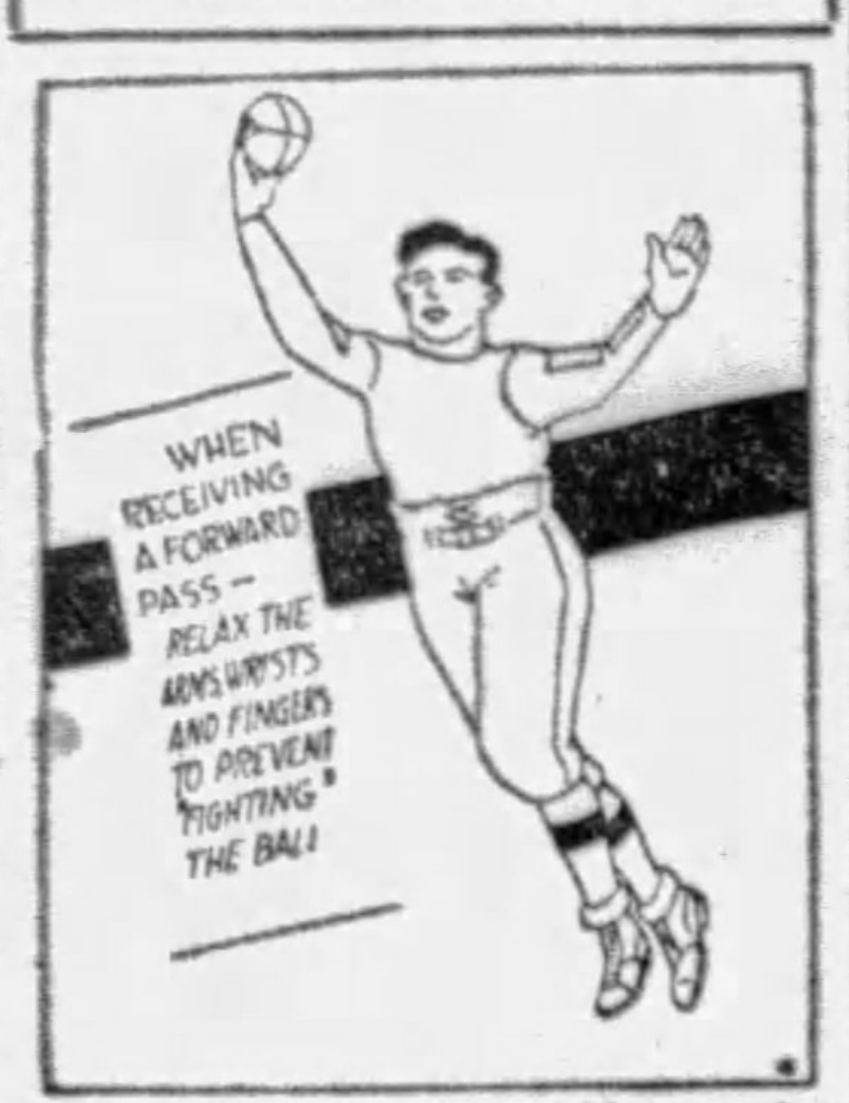
LESSONS IN FOOTBALL



WHEN RECEIVING A FORWARD PASS— RELAX THE ARMS WRISTS AND FINGERS TO PREVENT "FIGHTING" THE BALL

How should a forward pass be received by the player who gets it?

Answered by
GILMOUR DOBIE
Football Coach, Cornell University.

A player should receive a forward pass in his hands and not allow the ball first to come in contact with his body as is often done in catching punts. This is a sound method of receiving passes and an easy one once acquired. In the case of most forward passes the ball comes to the receiver far enough from the mark as to make it necessary for the receiver to reach wide to either side or above his head to make contact with the ball. In taking in the ball the player should hold the arms, wrist and fingers as relaxed as possible to counteract the resiliency of the ball. Nurse the ball; don't fight it.

GERMAN BOXER WINS FANS AT MOOSE

By HARRY KECK,
Sports Editor.

A German fighting buzz-saw stole the show away from the main-bouters at the Moose Temple last night as Hans Roberts, of Brookline and formerly of Germany, handed out an artistic beating to Young Joe Walcott, of Washington, Pa., in the second preliminary of six rounds to the accompaniment of an ovation from the crowd at the end of several of the rounds and again at the finish.

In this country such a short time that he doesn't understand our language and had to have an interpreter in the ring with him when he was receiving instructions from the referee, Roberts, whose real name is Riecke and who held the German amateur welterweight championship before coming to the United States, demonstrated that boxing is an international sport and that one can fight well in any language.

HANDS WALCOTT LACING

Round after round he tore into his Negro opponent, mixing his attack so that Walcott for the most part was bewildered, not knowing whether the German was going to plunge in with a left or a right lead or attack to the head or body. Defying Walcott's hard right cross, which he took on the chin a number of times as he forced the fighting, Roberts never gave his opponent a chance to set himself and by the time the fourth round rolled around he had Joe sick from the body beating and spitting gore all over the ring.

In the last two rounds, Walcott did little but defend himself and tincan at every opportunity. He was a thoroughly beaten mixer at the final bell. He scaled 145 pounds and Roberts was a half-pound heavier.

In many respects, Roberts looked to be the smartest boxer in the Moose ring last night. There is nothing fancy about his work and he is more of the fighter type than a boxer, but he never stops punching either coming in or at close range, and knows plenty of tricks. The European influence in his form was noticable in the infighting, where he kept up a constant tattoo for "points," as they say on the other side of the Atlantic. This was his second start around here under the management of Johnny Deutsch. He recently defeated Tommy Ward, of the South Side, at Little Washington. His pleasing style should get him a lot of work in the rings of this section and he should develop into quite a drawing card.

RUDY BEATS MAJESKE

In the 10-round main bout, Young Rudy, of Charleroi, scaling 145½ pounds, easily defeated Walter Majeske, of Saginaw, Mich., 144¾. He won every round but the second, which was about even. Majeske, a tough young Polish boxer, had height and reach on Rudy and started off boxing well, but he couldn't stand up under Rudy's walloping style and several times appeared wobbly. He rallied from time to time to put on fighting spurts during which he nailed Rudy solidly on the jaw with rights, but they had little effect. He was tired and weak and in a bad way at the finish and did considerable holding and running throughout the bout.

The surprise of the night was the reversal of form that marked the six-round semi-final between Andy Andrucci, East Liberty Italian, 136¼, and Eddie Brannon, Negro, of the Hill, 133¾. Last week, in the same ring, Andrucci bested Brannon all the way after an even first round, only to have the judges disagree and the referee's vote award the decision to Brannon while the crowd stormed its disapproval. Last night, Andrucci started out as if he meant to leave no doubt of his superiority in the minds of the officials and won the first two rounds by a mile, several times driving Brannon to cover. Then he tired and slowed down and barely held his own in the third, after which Brannon turned the thing into a rout so far as Andrucci was concerned.

Once started Brannon battered Andy at will, floored him for nine in the fifth round and had him all but out and stalling for the bell in the last frame. From the fourth round on, Andrucci complained to his seconds about a lameness in his left arm, and this may have accounted for his collapse, although he appeared to be tired at the same time and may have lost all of his fight in the first two rounds.

MONTABANO VICTOR

Carl Montabano, of Braddock, handily boxed his way to the referee's decision over Georgie Bretsch, of the North Side, in the six-round opening bout. Bretsch was awkward and constantly off balance and floundering about, while Montabano boxed a heady, bounding fight and used his left to excellent advantage, showing improvement over his last few times out. Bretsch weighed 150 pounds and Montabano 153½. Judge Ferris voted for a draw and the other judge and referee for Montabano.

Red Robinson refereed all of the bouts and the judges were Frank Brown and Frank Ferris. A. C. Couch was the timer and Bill Schuster the announcer. The house was good, but lacked considerably of being a capacity turnout.

Roberts originally was matched to box Montabano and Bretsch to oppose Walcott, but, because of the differences in weights, the pairings were switched when the boxers scaled at 3 o'clock in the afternoon.

SCHENLEY BACK STARS IN CLASH WITH OLIVER

Photo shows Jackie Powell, tricky little runner of the Schenley High School eleven, running 60 yards for Schenley High's first ouchdown against Oliver on the latters' gridiron yesterday afternoon. Powell slipped off a tackle on the first play after Schenley had received an Oliver punt and, aided by perfect interference, scampered over for the score. He tallied two of the touchdowns in Schenley's 46-0 victory.

TO RECEIVE LEVINE

Local Jewish boxing fans are interested in the appearance of Georgie Levine, of Brooklyn, against Tommy Freeman, of Cleveland, in the 10-round windup at Motor Square Garden Monday night, and are preparing to make his stay in the city, beginning tomorrow, a pleasant one. Phil Goldstein, the boxer, heads a reception committee which will meet Georgie upon his arrival and show him the town.

Ted Yarosz, of Monaca, has just signed a contract to box under the management of Ray Foutts, of Wellsville, O., for the next three years. Yarosz has been a marked success since leaving the amateur ranks recently. He holds knockout victories over Jack McCarthy and Johnny Judd and has won by the decision route over Georgie Bretsch, Johnny Brown, Young Joe Walcott and Jackie King.

U. S. Carpentier, of New Kensington, and Frankie Rio, of Cleveland, meet again in the windup of a show at Meadville, Pa., on Monday night. Jimmy Duffy, of New Kensington, boxes Louis Severo, of Erie, in the semi-final. Joe Dudas, of Albion, Pa., boxes Johnny Freeman, of Salamanca, N. Y., and Peaches Gallagher takes on Young Hardtack at Bradford, Pa., next Wednesday.

ROSS NOW 152-POUNDER

Buck McTiernan and Tony Ross will meet at 152 pounds in their windup battle at McKeesport next Thursday night. Tony, a former lightweight, has been taking on weight rapidly and no longer can make even the welterweight limit.

Jack Zivic put on a whirlwind finish in his six-round windup, heading an all-star card at Cleveland Thursday night, but Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, was given the decision over him. Many of the fans thought the worst Jack should have had was a draw, according to Cleveland reports. Pirrone's hard punching in the early rounds gave him a lead, but Zivic made him break ground in the last two sessions.

ROOT TO FACE MACKS TODAY

day's fight. Each had fanned six times up to that point of action, their slump being a bitter disappointment to their backers.

It was Cuyler's single to center with two out and runners on third and second that drove in the tallies that represented the Cubs' margin of victory at the finish. Ki nicked Earnshaw for a safe hit through the box to center field with the count three balls and two strikes. English and Hornsby scored on the hit.

Hornsby's single in the same inning scored Bush with the first Cub tally. An error by Jimmy Dykes on Woodie English's ball put the winning run on the paths. Bush opened the inning with an important walk.

COCHRANE SCORES

Mickey Cochrane scored the only run for the Athletics in the fifth. Mickey opened with an infield hit, he was on second base with two out when Bing Miller singled to score him.

The one run had gigantic proportions in view of the slab skill of Earnshow, who fanned 10 batters. But the invaders were out in front after their big sixth and they still enjoyed their 3-to-1 lead when the battle ended.

Hack Wilson tried to put the Cubs out in front in the second when he opened with an amazing three-bagger to center. The line smash was the best hit of the series, but Wilson could not get home owing to Earnshaw's skill in working on Cuyler, Stephenson and Grimm.

DETROIT VICTOR, 21-6

DETROIT, Oct. 12.—University of Detroit scored its eighteenth consecutive football victory over a period of three years last night by coming from behind to defeat University of Tulsa, 21 to 6.

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 12.—Eddie Reed, Philadelphia Negro lightweight, who a few weeks ago dropped a decision here to Jimmy Reed, of Erie, last night carved out a clean-cut decision over the local boy in the 10-round main event at the auditorium. Harry Foley, Hot Springs heavyweight, gained the decision over Nick Newman, Cleveland, in the semi-final, while Young Hardtack, Erie, defeated Nick Severo, Meadville, in a six-round preliminary. In another six-rounder, Johnny Willis, Philadelphia, carried off the decision over Jackie Logan, Jamestown, N. Y., by a wide margin.

Long's Sport Comment

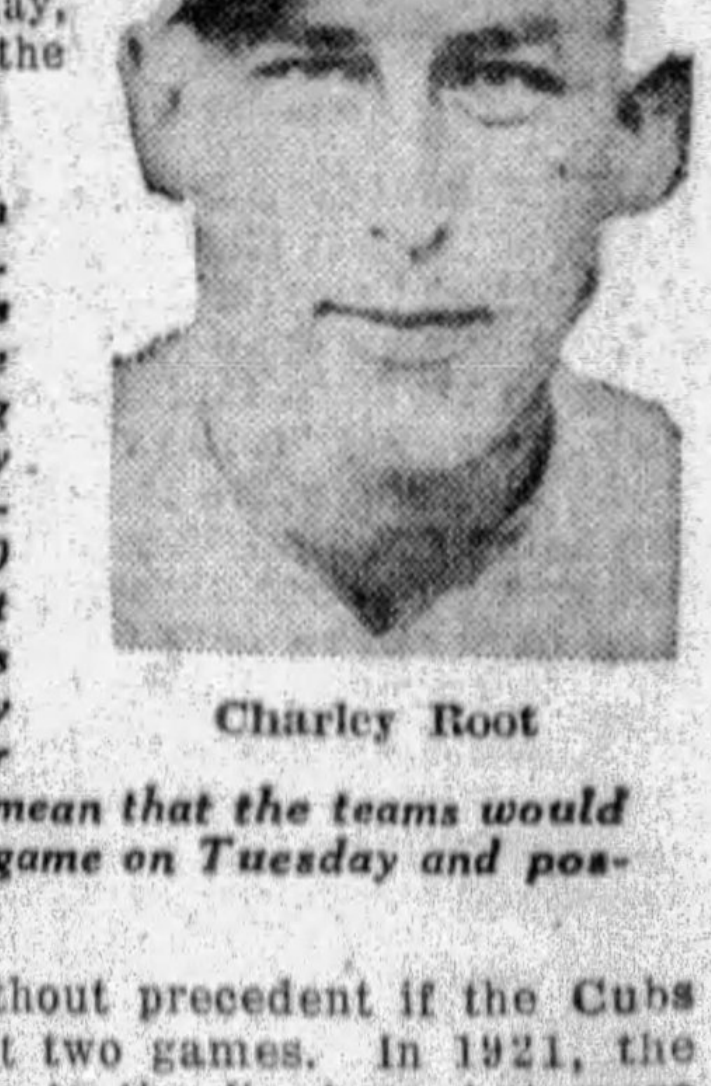
three days rest, the Cubs figured that they had a good chance to tie up the series at two-and-two before nightfall. Root held the Philadelphia sluggers to three hits in seven innings on Tuesday, and his mates were confident that he would be equally effective on his second appearance in the series.

The Bruins were full of new pep after getting a fresh foothold when they had appeared to be almost on the verge of a knockout, and predicted that if they won today, nothing could stop them from winning the series.



Charley Root

TODAY'S game is the last in which the players will share financially. Though the capacity of Shibe Park is only 38,000 small, the pool will net the contending athletes a sum comparing favorably with the amounts received by the players in recent years, approximately $6,000 for each winning share, $4,000 for each losing share. As the series must go at least five games, the club owners will get a larger rake-off than in any series since 1926. One more victory for the Cubs here today or Monday would mean that the teams would have to return to Chicago for a sixth game on Tuesday and possibly a seventh on Wednesday.

IT WOULD not be an achievement without precedent if the Cubs were to win out after losing the first two games. In 1921, the Giants not only lost the first two games to the Yankees, but were shutout both times, 3 to 0. Yet they came back and won the series, five games to three.

And a club has been known to win even after losing three of the first four contests, as was the case in 1903, when the Pirates were beaten out, five games to three by the Boston Red Sox, after taking the first, third and fourth contests.

LITTLE SERIES RESUMES AT ROCHESTER

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Rochester and Kansas City will meet today in the eighth game of their junior world series at Red-wing Stadium with the Association champions trailing in the series by four games to three.

A victory for the Blues will bring the series to an end, while a Rochester win will necessitate the ninth and last game here tomorrow.

Both Manager Zwilling, of the Blues, and Southworth, of the Red-wings, will use their star hurlers. Tom Sheehan and Tex Carleton will oppose each other on the mound. Both of these right-handed twirlers have won two games so far in the series with no defeats. Sheehan won both his games at Kansas City, while Carleton brought the Red-wings back in the race with a victory here Tuesday after the Blues were leading the series by three games to one.

BRUINS SHOW REAL GINGER

and he was right, mentally as well as physically. I noted that when the Bruins came on the field they had all kinds of ginger. There was nothing about their actions to indicate that they had dropped two games in a row to the American Leaguers.

Guy had a rather tough one in the fifth when an infield hit led to a run, but he did not show any discouraging effects of the run. When he came to the plate in the sixth, he showed the right spirit in fighting for a base on balls. Bush pranced around the box and was rewarded with a pass that had a very important bearing on the game.

ERROR PARDONABLE

Jimmy Dykes was charged with an error in this inning that was very easy to pardon. Of course, we third-sackers have to stick together, but I really think that Jimmy made a great effort to make an assist on Woody English's ball. The slow roller was one of those "do-or-you-don't things, and Jimmy didn't. He had to work quickly, for English is fast on his feet.

This break was just the thing the Cubs needed. Hornsby and Cuyler have been striking out a lot, but in the clinch they both came through with singles. And right here I want to state that Hack Wilson's smash, in between the singles of Hornsby and Cuyler, was a drive that deserved to be a hit. Max Bishop made one of the smartest plays of the series on this ball. You see, Bush was on second and English was on third. Hack slammed one right on the good part of his bat and his hot smash between first and second looked like another hit for this fine batsman. Bishop appeared to be running when Wilson connected and the jump he secured enabled him to throw out Hack. I was glad when Cuyler singled to drive in the two runs. There was a big kick in that single to so many who were pulling for the success of the Cubs.

The spirit of the Cubs, as they met the Athletics on their home lot, is something that deserves especial praise. The Cubs showed they could take it on the chin and then get up and deliver some good wallops.

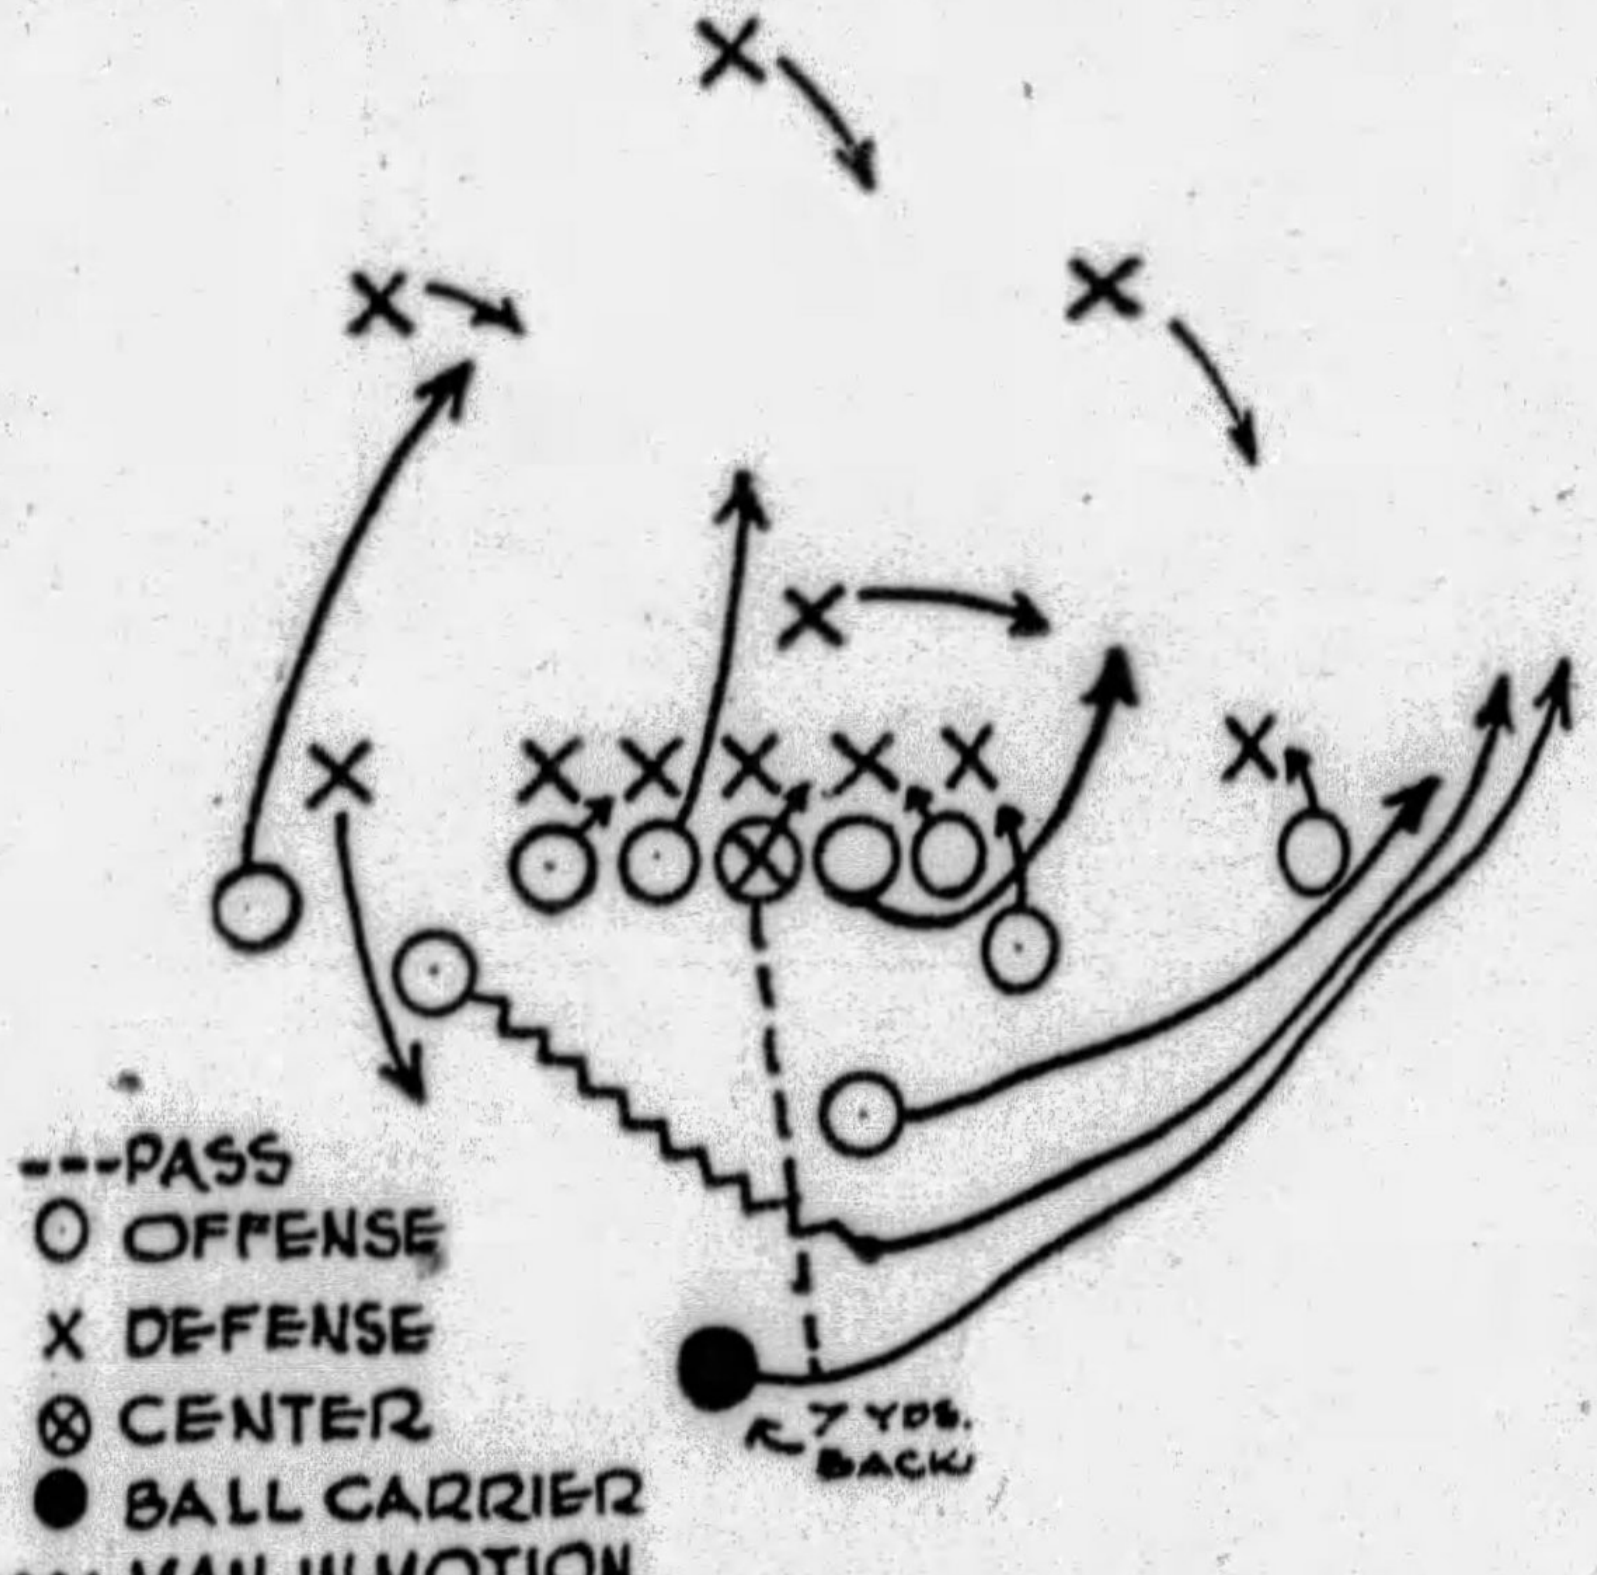
Football Strategy

By Howard Harpster

All-America Quarterback, 1928
Now Coach at Shady Side Academy

(Note.—Harpster, as the quarterback of the Carnegie Tech eleven last fall, gained national recognition as one of the most brilliant leaders of all time in the football realm. Experts hailed him as "the player with the mind of a coach." He captained the All-East team that defeated the All-West team in California at the end of the season, and was generally picked as captain of the mythical all-America selections.)



NO. 6—A FINE SPREAD END RUN.

ON THIS spread end run, Chuck Bennett, of Indiana, ran for three consecutive first downs against the All-Western team in the annual East-West game at San Francisco last year and placed the ball in position for the East's third touchdown.

The end takes the end, and the fullback helps if necessary. Halfback blocks the tackle. Left half is in motion and is a free runner. Back man catches the ball from center on the run and follows left half and fullback.

TUESDAY—DOUBLE PASS SCORING PLAY.

'PROPHET' NEW CUB MASCOT

By JIMMY CORCORAN,
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—They call him "Bobby the Dreamer" around the Ben Franklin Hotel, where the Cubs are stabled here, and you can believe it or don't, the boy is well named.

Bobby is a bellhop. He's one of those slick, wise-cracking minions of the trade of which type you are familiar. But that is incidental. The most important thing is that he dreams. His number is "8". The Cubs have adopted him as their mascot.

And here's how!

When the Bruins arrived here Thursday noon, from Chicago, somewhat downhearted, Bobby McDermott told them to quit worrying.

"You're going to win the third game, and Bush is going to pitch," he told the players.

They agreed with No. 8 that they were going to win, but they weren't sure who the pitcher was going to be.

And then "Bobby the Dreamer" told them that he had dreamed that the A.'s were going to win the first two games of the series.

Last night he was around the hotel accepting the congratulations of the athletes. They admitted that the kid had the "stuff," wherever he got it.

And then he spilled a little bad news!

"The A.'s are going to beat you Saturday," he said, "and if I'm wrong I'll jump out the tenth story window of this hotel."

Bobby McDermott is the son of Mrs. Elizabeth McDermott, of Denver, Col.

Back in 1925, he called the victor and vanquished in every game of the world series between Washington and Pittsburgh. In 1926 he predicted that Gene Tunney would beat Jack Dempsey in their first meeting in Philadelphia.

OLD SHOES WIN FOR GUY BUSH

By HAROLD JOHNSON,
International News Service.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—Spiked shoes that didn't match, and a baseball sweat shirt that hadn't been to the cleaner's in almost a year, together with a four-leaf clover and three slabs of chewing gum, today had combined to give Guy Bush good luck as he twirled the Chicago Cubs to their initial world series victory over the Athletics.

During brief breathing spells following his brilliant 3-to-1 triumph—the first registered by a National League contender over an American League hostile in 11 consecutive battles for world supremacy, he confessed to superstitious inclinations.

"When I dressed for the game, said Guy, "I slipped on the old baseball shoes I had worn while winning ten straight games during the summer.

"Well, everything went along in great shape until the fifth inning, when I split open a hole in one side of the old left shoe while fielding a grounder from Foxx's bat. I had to discard the shoe, so I hustled up to the Cubs' dressing room at the close of the inning, and substituted the new left shoe for the old one. And so I finished the game wearing "dogs" that were not twins by a difference of nearly two years.

"Instead of donning a new sweat shirt, I resolved to stick to the old one which had seen service with me when I was winning with regularity earlier in the season."

Washington High Re-Enters Cage Race

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 12.—Washington High School will re-enter the Western Pennsylvania scholastic basketball competition this season, it was announced today by Head Coach Hank Day. The announcement followed action taken by the school board which sanctioned the team and authorized the rental for three months of the Company H. National Guard Armory here, where all games will be played and practice conducted. Washington High has not maintained a floor team for four years on account of lack of facilities, having no gymnasium.

Principal Meyers B. Horner has been authorized by the school board to arrange a schedule for the coming season.

Helen Hicks Meets Mrs. Harrison Today

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Helen Hicks, of the Inwood Country Club, Long Island, will meet Mrs. Arthur Harrison, Buffalo, in the final round of the Berthellyn Cup Golf tournament at the Huntingdon Valley Country Club today.

Miss Hicks, holder of the Canadian women's crown, beat Mrs. Harley Higbie, after being 4 down at the eighth hole and 3 down at the turn. Mrs. Harrison defeated Louise Fordyce, of Yonugstown, by 4 and 3.

Altoona Nine Plays For World R. R. Title

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 12.—The Altoona (Pa.) team, representing the Pennsylvania Railroad, and the Little Rock (Ark.) team, competing for the Missouri Pacific Lines, will clash here this afternoon in a game for the railroad baseball championship of the world.

This is the second annual meeting between the champions of the systems. Last year, here, Philadelphia Terminal Division, of the Pennsylvania Railroad, won over the De Quincy (La.) team, of the Missouri Pacific Lines, 15 to 5.

CUBS HAPPY, MACKS SORE, AFTER THIRD

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The Chicago Cubs have suddenly discovered that Connie Mack's Athletics can be beaten and the results of that discovery are indeed wonderful to behold.

Two days ago if a newspaperman was lucky enough to cajole his way into the sacred precincts of the National League champions' dressing room, the stillness that met him there could almost be broken up into chunks and saved for silent tributes. But that was before the militant Cubs found out that those slugging A's could be beaten by 3-to-1 or any other score. Two straight world series defeats do things like that to a ball club.

One swift, decisive victory turned the Bruins' dressing room from a cave of angry silence into a playground where the burly Hack Wilson, Rogers Hornsby and Kiki Cuyler, crowded around their young pitching star, laughing, full of ginger and new found hope.

MAKES DIFFERENCE

"That one win makes all the difference in the world," Joe McCarthy, the happy manager, shouted. "We'll get them now. It's our turn to talk about four straight."

"When do we get our meal money?" the Athletics shouted back.

Giving every bit of credit possible to young Bush's courage in the pinches, his control and all round spectacular pitching performance despite the nine hits of Athletics, McCarthy decided still that the difference between his team and the club that lost the first pair of games in Chicago was a matter of Hornsby and Cuyler.

Jack Taylor, the grizzled catcher, was full of talk and admiration all at once, however.

"Bush just pitched his normal, easy game," he said, "and he was never in much trouble even though there were men on the bases. He bore down when he had to and he sure had it when he needed it."

EARNSHAW SORE

The Athletics, likewise hoisting the bars to all newspapermen, were a vicious, angry team as thy crowded down the runaway to their dressing room after the final put-out.

"How do I feel about it?" snapped George Earnshaw, the husky hurler, "how would anyone feel about it?"

Whereupon his language passed on into the unreportable.

Connie Mack, tall, gracious, the perfect sportsman, lingered but a few moments after the struggle was over. He did not visit his warriors in the dressing room.

"The Cubs," Connie said, "well deserved to win the ball game. They played well. Both teams played splendidly and the pitching was excellent on both sides. We had many opportunities, but we failed to make the most of them."

LEAGUE SOCCER GAMES TODAY

GAMES TODAY.

District League.
Union Switch and Signal at Clan Douglas.
Celtics at Rovers.
Crafton at National Tube.
Pierponts at Lewis.

Beaver Valley.
Beaver Falls at Midland.
New Castle at Ambridge.

Washington County.
Canonsburg at Houston.

Chartiers Valley.
Cecil at Beadling.

By TOM BIRKS.

Four games in the District League will lead today's soccer card all of the games seem to be worth while. The Douglas-Union Switch game will hold most of the interest despite the fact that the Rovers are meeting the Celtics.

Both games will be played to large crowds. The Switch, with Hennigan playing center forward, seems to be one of the most improved clubs in the district and Douglas should have a hard fight.

The Lawrenceville tilt between Celtics and Rovers will be one of those slam-bang affairs that appeal to the fans.

One game will be played in the Chartiers Valley League, and it will find the Cecil eleven stacking up with Beadling at the latter's grounds.

Purdue, Michigan Play Eighth Game

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 12.—When Purdue and Michigan take the field here today for the first meeting on the gridiron since 1900, it will mark the eighth time that the two elevens have clashed. In the seven games played to date, Purdue has managed to win only one, the Boilermaker victory, 24 to 0, coming in 1892, the year the Old Gold and Black eleven was defeated and was recognized as the champion of the Middle West, although the Big Ten had not been organized as yet at that time. Past scores of Purdue-Michigan follow:

1890—Purdue, 6; Michigan, 34.
1892—Purdue, 24; Michigan, 40.
1893—Purdue, 8; Michigan, 46.
1895—Purdue, 10; Michigan, 12.
1896—Purdue, 0; Michigan, 16.
1897—Purdue, 4; Michigan, 34.
1900—Purdue, 6; Michigan, 11.

Duke Works Hard For Navy Battle

DURHAM, N. C., Oct. 12.—The Duke Blue Devils have no game today but are working just the same. Not an hour has been lost the past week to correct the mistakes made in the disastrous game with Pitt, and the team that faces Navy next Saturday at Annapolis, Md., should be much stronger than the one that met Pitt.

Another hard week is ahead of the Blue Devils and then they will entrain for the North, with several carloads of followers, with the idea of holding Navy to a very close score, or of winning.

Hoover Hopeful Army, Navy Make Peace

WASHINGTON, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—President Hoover is hopeful that athletic relations between West Point Military Academy and the Naval Academy may be resumed in the near future.

SINGER STOPS ZAZZARINO

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—Al Singer, New York junior lightweight star, stopped the heavy punching career of Leonard (Young) Zazzarino, of Jersey City, with a technical knockout in the sixth round of their scheduled 10-round bout at Madison Square Garden last night. Singer was awarded the victory after he had knocked the Jersey youngster down twice in the sixth round.

Ben Jeby, New York middleweight, won the decision over Alf Ros, chunky Spaniard, in a 10-round preliminary. The weights were: Jeby 157½ pounds; Ros, 153½. Nel Tarleton, of Liverpool, England, easily outboxed Archie Bell, veteran Brooklyn bantam, to win another 10-rounder. Tarleton weighed 122 pounds, Bell 121.

Johnny Toyes, Bayonne, N. J., lightweight, stopped Herman Singer, of the Bronx, in three rounds of their carded six-rounder. Rocco Vigna, of New York, 128½, and Pascual Buonifiqlio, of Argentina, 129, fought a draw in the opening four-rounder.

Lehigh Is Eager To Break Record

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Oct. 12.—When the Lehigh eleven invaded Gettysburg today for its first game away from home this season, the Brown and White was determined to break the jinx that has followed it on the road during the past four years. It was early in the 1925 season that the Brown and White garnered its last win on a strange gridiron. This was a 7-to-0 victory over Rutgers. Since that time the Lehigh gridmen have met with ill fortune on the road, losing 13 of the away games and most of them by one-sided scores.

GUN ROYAL VICTOR

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—M. Stern's Gun Royal, a 7-to-1 shot, nosed his way to a victory over W. H. Karrick's Single Star, in the Caledonian handicap, feature of an ordinary card at Jamaica yesterday.

SPARKLER, II, COPS

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 12.—(AP.)—The defending champion, Sparkler II, of the Southern Yacht Club, New Orleans, won the second race yesterday of the annual international star class yacht meet.

Leading Features Conflict On Radio Tonight

By DARRELL V. MARTIN, Sun-Telegraph Radio Editor.

THE cleverest people in the world are radio program directors who, having a good feature to present, never stop to think what the opposition station or chain might present at the same "hour."

We have a good example tonight in the 10 o'clock period. WJAS will give us Moran and Mack, the famous blackface team, and KDKA will bring us a long-awaited radio presentation of Pinero's "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray." Nature endowed us with only one pair of ears where in this case we might very well use two, and we know of many others who feel the same way.

Next to announcing some big star as the featured artist and then at the last minute substituting some "ham and egger," we believe this is the worst offense that can be committed by broadcasting stations against the listening public.

It might be apropos to mention here that Pittsburgh stations, far ahead of stations in other cities and obviously the big networks, exchange skeleton programs a few days in advance to avoid conflict of important broadcasts.

"The Second Mrs. Tanqueray."

Sir Arthur Wing Pinero's tragedy of a woman with a past, "The Second Mrs. Tanqueray," a play in four acts, will be heard in a radio adaptation.

Pinero, today considered one of the most skillful playwrights of the English speaking stage, wrote the play in 1893. It was acclaimed with tremendous enthusiasm when first produced and, together with Wilde's "Woman of No Importance," Jones' "Michael and His Lost Angel," and Shaw's "Mrs. Warren's Profession," brought the English stage within the European dramatic movement.

The theme of the play, a subject taboo among the Victorians, concerns the attempt of Paula Jarman to live down her past affairs by marrying Aubrey Tanqueray, a widower. The situation is skillfully outlined in the first act and effectively motivates the succeeding conflicts between Paula, Aubrey and Aubrey's daughter by his first wife, Ellean.

Ellean, a quiet and retiring girl with a religious disposition, by her reluctant cordiality, continually reminds Paula of her past indiscretions. Jealousy and misunderstanding temporarily estrange Paula and Aubrey. Ellean's visit to Paris, where she meets and falls in love with Captain Hugh Ardale, a former lover of Paula, precipitates a tragic climax to the career of the second Mrs. Tanqueray.

QUICK RELIEF FROM CONSTIPATION

That is the joyful cry of thousands since Dr. Edwards produced Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards, a practicing physician for 20 years, and calomel's old-time enemy, discovered the formula for Olive Tablets while treating patients for chronic constipation and torpid livers.

Olive Tablets do not contain calomel, just a healing, soothing vegetable laxative, safe and pleasant.

No griping is the "keynote" of these little sugar-coated, olive-colored tablets. They help cause the bowels and liver to act normally. They never force them to unnatural action.

If you have a "dark brown mouth"—bad breath—a dull, tired feeling—sick headache—torpid liver—constipation, you should find quick, sure and pleasant results from one or two of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets.

Thousands take them every night to keep right. Try them. 15c, 30c, 60c.

Moon Superstition

THE term "moon magic" refers to the magical effect the moon is supposed by superstitious people to have on human affairs, especially in the ways of love and romance.

Ann Marie's Troubles End And She Confesses Caring for Jim

CHAPTER L.

IT was not until then that Ann Marie woke up. . . She opened her eyes and discovered that her head was on Jim's shoulder and that her neck was stiff. . . she had slept all the way back home like an exhausted child.

Her blue eyes were wide and dewy with sleep between the thick fringe of her slashes as she raised them to Jim's steady brown ones. One side of her face was rosy and crushed where it had lain against his coat. Her hair had come loose and it lay on her shoulders, all gold lights and brown ripples. . . Tousled and rumpled and dusty, she never had looked so beautiful in all her life than she looked then to Jim Goodwin.

"Wait until I pin up my hair—and I'll go in to see him with you," she said, her voice still thick and drowsy with sleep.

But Jim shook his head. "No. You're not going to get into this at all," he insisted firmly. "You're to sit right here in this car. I can take care of this whole thing in 10 minutes—and I can do it a lot more easily if you stay right here."

She watched him disappear into the building.

And while he was gone, she sat there in her corner and thought over the last day or two . . .

"I ought to have gone straight to Jim in the first place," she thought. "I might have known he would be the only person who'd care about me enough to help me—"

Why, he was the only person who had done anything for her in years . . . ever since she had begun to earn enough money to pay her own board and her own way in the world, as a matter of fact!

No one else had found jobs for her and offered to lend her money . . . No one else had planned good times for her . . . No one else had put out a helping hand when she was in trouble.

He had been kindness and goodness itself to her. And she never would forget his kindness and his goodness.

"But I know I don't love him," she told herself. "I do, too, in a way—but he never could thrill me!"

Then, all at once, she heard someone yell in the building where Lawyer Beeseley had his offices.

She looked up at the second story windows . . . They were open and the sound had come from them.

While she looked at them, she heard a door open and then bang shut within the building. There were footsteps and a sound of scuffling on the stairs, and then—

And then two men came through the narrow doorway at the bottom of them. Their coats were off, and they were struggling together. Pushing and pulling each other around the uneven sidewalk.

Ann Marie could hardly believe her eyes . . . . One of the men was George Beeseley and the other was Jim Goodwin!

But she would scarcely have known Jim if it had not been for his clothes . . . his hair was standing straight up on his head, and his face was flushed. His collar had been pulled open and his tie was gone . . . . And in his eyes was a look of joy and amusement. A young boyish look that she never had seen there before.

He looked like a boy, winning a fight in a school-yard . . . . His teeth flashed in a grin and he grunted and breathed hard the way prize-fighters do in the ring. His cheek was bleeding.

There is a little of the cave-woman left in every woman who is worth her salt—and Ann Marie found herself thrilling to the sight of this battle of the sidewalk.

She opened the door of the car and stepped out to get a better look at it . . . . and just as she set foot to the ground the somewhat flabby figure of George Beeseley fell at her feet and lay sprawled there at its full length. . . . Jim had knocked him down.

Panting, Jim spoke to her.

"Wait a jiffy!" he said and ran up the stairs of the building.

He came back with his coat on and he was smoothing his hair down with his hands.

"Don't do that—please!" said Ann Marie, as he stepped over George Beeseley's legs and began to get back into the car. "I liked you so much better the other way—all wild-looking! Why, Jim, I didn't know you COULD be like that!"

The thrill he had given her still trembled in her voice and shone from her eyes.

"Like what?" he asked.

"Like a prize fighter!" she breathed. "Why, Jim, you were wonderful—you old rough-neck!"

Jim laughed.

"There are a lot of things you don't know about me," he said, his nostrils still dilated with his quick, hard breathing. "You haven't exactly tried to find out anything about me, so far, have you?"

He swung the car around in the street and stopped a moment at the other side of the road to watch George Beeseley pick himself up and go slowly and painfully back into the red brick building.

"Well, where do we go from here?" he asked.

"Let's drive past the book store and tell Howdy that Beeseley won't bother him any more," Ann Marie answered. "You don't think he will, do you?"

Jim shook his head with its wildly rumpled hair.

"Not on your life!" he said. "I settled with him with a small check—I wrote it for him, and he didn't want to take it!—But I think he'll be glad to take it now!"

The car drew alongside the curb in front of the book store. Howdy, himself, was lounging in the doorway, looking out at the afternoon parade on Front street.

He came across the sidewalk to them, and Ann Marie told him what just happened.

"Jim has given Mr. Beeseley a check," she said. "And all our trouble is over."

Howdy grinned lazily.

"Looks as if you'd given him a darn good licking, too," he answered, and then: "Well, I'm glad it's settled."

And with no more than that—With not a word of thanks he turned on his heel and sauntered back to his doorway.

"So long," he called amiably as the great car slid away from the curb.

There was a long silence as they went through the streets of the little town, and swept smoothly into the country-side where the shadows of afternoon lay over the fields like the hands of peace.

"Well, that's the end of all that trouble," Ann Marie sighed, putting her head back on the soft cushions of the car.

"Yes—and it ought to be the end of all the rest of the trouble you have with your family!" Jim answered her, and there was a note of anger and exasperation in his voice. "You're always doing things for them—don't think I don't know all about it—and just now your brother didn't even have the grace to thank you!"

Well, that was true enough when you stopped to think about, Ann Marie said of herself—

"Think of yourself for a change," said Jim. "Why don't you?— The Howdy trouble is over. The girls are safely married. You won't have to spend half of your time looking after them and Neal any more— You'll work and do the things you want to do, and after a while you'll get over your hurt—"

"What do you mean?" asked Ann Marie. "You mean that you think I'm hurt and crushed because Neal didn't marry me?"

With his dark eyes on the ribbon of road ahead of him, Jim nodded.

"Oh, but you're wrong!" said Ann Marie. I've found out that I didn't care for him as much as I thought I did— It's true that, in the beginning, I was terribly infatuated with him. But quite a long time ago I began to get over it—without realizing what was happening to me."

She could feel his eyes turning towards her. He had slowed down the car, and it slid to a standstill at the side of the road.

"I think it began that first night when you paid for the ginger-ale and all the things that Neal sent me out to buy," she went on. "I think I began comparing you with him right then— You see, he was always wanting me to do things for him—and you were always doing things for me. Taking care of me—treating me like as if I were something precious."

"You are," Jim said so quietly that she could scarcely hear him.

"And Jim—women like to be taken care of by a man," Ann Marie said. "They—they can't help caring for the man who really is a man and not a spoiled, selfish child—and I care for you a great deal."

Her eyes filled with tears. It is always so easy to cry when you are tired and have been through a lot.

"I don't know how to thank you, though" she said, with her handkerchief over her eyes. "Jim, you've been so good—"

She felt his hand on her shoulder—very lightly and timidly, the way a man always touches the woman he loves for the first time.

"Ann Marie." His voice was very close to her ear. "You're always doing everything you can to make people happy . . . Will you do something for me? Will you let me put my arms around you and kiss you just once?"

With her wet eyes closed the tear stains on her face, Ann Marie raised her lips to Jim's lips.

. . . A car swooped by them on its way to New York.

"Neckers," said the man in it to himself. "Neckers—always cluttering up the highways—"

But in a way he was wrong . . . There were two people in that car who had spent a long time finding out that they were meant for each other—for always.

Love's Awakening

A Continuation of Love's Embers

By ADELE GARRISON

Georges Becomes Noel's Rival for Both Girls' Hands.

KATIE looked at me shrewdly when I told her that I wanted her to "pretend something like the movies" if the Ticers came to help us for the next few days.

"I bet your boots I know vot eet ees," she said, and I did not contradict her. I had been so amazed at her anticipation of my plan to insure the silence of the Ticers concerning the melodramatic situation with which we at the farmhouse were confronted, that I felt as if no further revelation from her could surprise me. But she did not suspect that I had meant to outline to her the very scheme she had unfolded to me, and I hastily added a smiling, "I'm sure you do, Katie," to my complaisant silent acceptance of her naive boast before going on with my explanation.

"It's like this," I said, knowing full well my little maid's chief weakness. "I want you to pretend to the Ticers that you know nothing of what is going on here, I do not think they will say anything about things either to Jim or you—"

"Ho, ho!" Katie gave a scornful but indulgent little laugh. "Dose Ticers shange a lot from last time I saw dem. But you shoost vatch me. I say nodings, und eef dey start somedings, I gif dem earful."

"No, no, Katie," I said in quick alarm. "Above all things we must have no—unpleasantness in the next few days. Remember I am counting on you most of all to help me through with this thing. I want your word that if Mrs. Ticer or the others speak to you about affairs here, you will be pleasant in your refusal to talk."

My little maid sulked for a second or two, her lips pouted like those of a pettish child. Then her mouth relaxed into a grin.

"You go on, not vorry no more," she said. "I manage mineself und dot Ticer dame, too. You shoost vatch me. I feex."

And with that assurance in my ears, I sped back upstairs to Lillian, for I knew that there was some delicate diplomatic work to be done with the Ticer family before they came over to the farmhouse.

"I hope the mantle of Machiavelli is floating around this room somewhere, waiting for you to put it on," I said when she had admitted me.

"Sit down and catch your breath," she advised coolly, drawing out a chair for me. "You look as if you'd just finished a quarter-mile dash."

"I feel as I look," I retorted, sitting down heavily. "But it's been worth it."

"I gather from your rather cryptic utterance," she began with a grin, "that your interview with the redoubtable Katie was successful."

"It was more than that," I returned. "It was astounding," and hurried on to tell her of Katie's anticipation of my plan.

"That girl is getting to be too bright," she laughed. "She'll be sending out sparks pretty soon. But isn't it wonderful that she fell for the scheme like that even before you broached it. Now I suppose everything is all set except insuring that the Ticers will not talk to Katie. That's what's on your mind now, isn't it, but you needn't hand out any hints about Machiavellian mantles. You're the only lion tamer in existence as far as the Ticer family is concerned. You'll just have to take on the job yourself of seeing that they not only do not talk of the household affairs, but that they do not hint to Katie that Harry and I asked them to come over here before her fertile brain evolved the plan of asking them."

"Oh! I hadn't thought of that," I explained aghast at the thought of how easily our plan to keep Katie placated during the Ticer invasion might have gone astray.

"No harm done," Lillian said soothingly. "But I think you ought to go over to The Larches at once although they intend to sleep in the house tonight, so as to afford the Lincolns the reassurance of having people with them. But you might as well get it over with."

"You agree, then," I said slowly, "with me, that Prince Georges—?"

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Clothes Make the Woman—Alluring

"IF you want sex appeal raised to the utmost point, there is one way to do it—by clothes!" says George Bernard Shaw.

HELEN ROWLAND

Now that a real HE-man has set his approval on the back-to-clothes movement, no doubt all the women will soon be going aroundswathed like the Esquimaux, and ruffled like lampshades.

I have been contending for years, that the female form divine is far more appealing when DRAPED; that it's what a man CAN'T see and DOESN'T know about a woman, that intrigues him. But, I am only a poor, feeble-minded woman, and one little word from the dominant sex has more weight than a thousand from any woman.

* * *

That's why man IS the dominant sex. No man's life is guided by the thought of "how-it-will-please-the-women." You don't catch a man waving his hair or pinching his feet, because he's afraid the girls won't "admire" him if he doesn't. You don't catch him having his legs shaved in order to please the feminine eye.

* * *

You don't catch a man going around with a girl who bores him, just because he is anxious to appear "popular" with the women! You don't catch him kissing a girl he doesn't WANT to kiss, simply because he's afraid she won't go out with him any more if he doesn't.

A man does what he thinks is right or wise or what he enjoys doing, or what he WANTS to do—and no woman's opinion can stop him from doing it.

He picks out the hat that pleases him, the coat that is comfortable, and the woman who amuses him—and nothing on earth can pry him away from them, so long as they hold his fancy.

If a man gives up anything, it is because he is tired of it or because it doesn't agree with him, not because some woman doesn't admire it or approve of it. Not that man doesn't like the admiration and approval of women. They LOVE it! But they love their own comfort and freedom infinitely more!

* * *

But a woman does everything with an eye to its effect on the male of the species. That's her weakness!

Once, women tortured themselves in steel and whalebone, chokers and bustles and hoop-skirts and germ-catching skirts, because men admired a "modest, feminine woman," upholstered like a stuffed divan. Now they go bare-legged, bare armed and bare-backed, and freeze themselves, because they fancy that these things constitute "sex-appeal."

* * *

Girls used to spurn the most innocent kiss and discourage the most harmless love-making, because they were afraid that "no man would marry that kind of a girl."

Now, they permit themselves to be mauled and kissed by the most casual acquaintance, because they are afraid "men won't pay any attention to any other kind of girl."

* * *

So, now that the great Shaw has expressed, what every man feels in his secret heart—that a woman shrouded in clothes and mystery is doubly alluring—we who were about to die of pneumonia will live to suffocate in corsets and ruffles! The dominant sex has SPOKEN! Clothes make the woman!

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN.

Wedding Gifts

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I expect wedding gifts from married friends of the man I am to marry, and I would like to know how to sign the letter. I do not know either the men or their wives, but my husband-to-be knows the men very well and their wives slightly.

2. If the gifts should come from just the men—should I answer, and how sign the letter?

3. Also is sending thank-you notes to his family, should they be the same as sent to friends?

H. G. M.

YOU would write the letters of thanks for the gifts received, which will be addressed to you. These letters you sign:

Very sincerely yours,
Mary Littleton.

In the notes you naturally say how much both you and your fiance appreciated the thoughtfulness and the gift itself, and, in the end of the note, send messages of friendship from both. But you sign only your name to the letter.

2. Yes, you still would write the notes and sign in the same way. Wedding presents are always sent to the bride, in her name and to her home, even though the senders do not know her. And she writes all the notes of thanks, even though she does not know the senders. Also the wedding presents should come from both the wives and the husbands, even though both do not know you.

3. Yes.

A Gentleman's Position

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

When a man is walking with two girls, where is he supposed to walk? My girl friend says he is supposed to walk between the two girls. I said he is supposed to walk on the side nearest the curb. Which is right?

A READER.

A MAN when with two ladies is supposed to walk on the side nearest the curb.

Bread and Butter Spreader

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

1. I have read recently that a butter knife is not used at formal dinners any more. Is it used at all?

2. Is it appropriate to use the salad fork as a cake fork?

ANNE.

THE individual butter spreader never has been used at formal dinners, just as at strictly formal dinners the bread and butter plate is not placed. But most dinners that are given are, as a matter of fact, more or less informal dinners and increasingly we see the bread and butter plate placed. And this is quite logical, for this small plate is not in the way and is a most convenient harbor for receiving our roll or bread, our celery, or radish or olive.

At strictly formal dinners, as I say, the bread and butter plate is not placed, and neither is the butter spreader, since, although bread or rolls of some kind are passed, butter is not served. And this not serving of butter is, as a matter of fact, true of many dinners which would not be regarded as "formal." This is sensible, and, of course, if carried out, it would be foolish to serve the butter spreader. We may need the bread and butter plate, but we won't need the butter spreader.

And all of this depends on the kind of dinner that we give—formal or informal, or "rather informal."

2. Yes, the size and plan of the salad fork are perfectly adaptable to the eating of cake, and usually households do not boast of both kinds of forks.

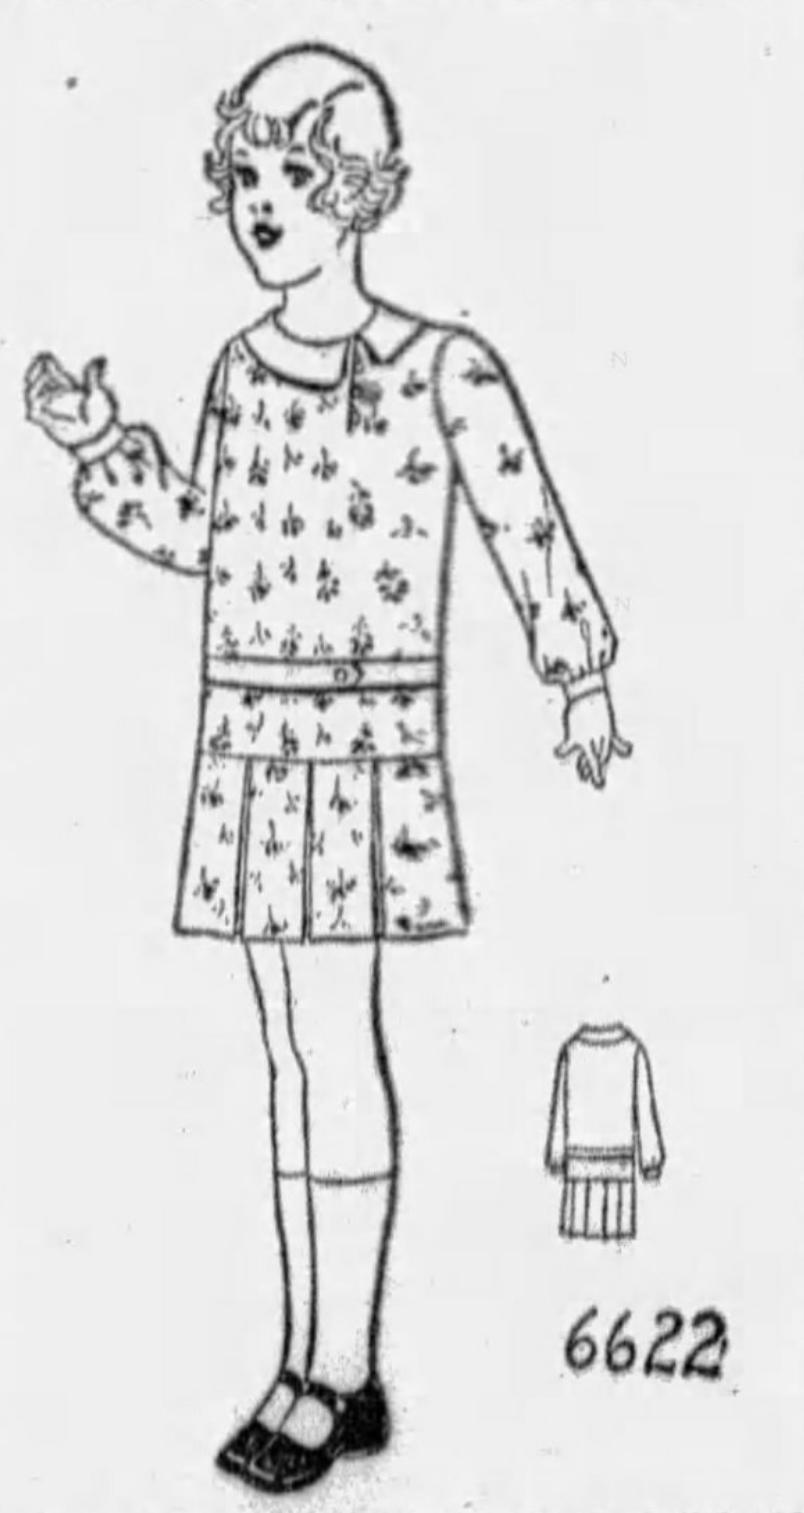
The Sun-Telegraph Fifteen Cent Pattern



A PRETTY FROCK FOR A TINY MISS.

This pleasing model comprises long waist portions to which plaited skirt portions are joined. The closing is at the neck, on the left side of the front, below a smart round collar. The sleeve is of the popular bishop type, gathered to a band cuff. A narrow belt finishes the dress in raised waistline effect. Cotton prints, gingham and pongee are suggested for this little frock. Wool crepe or crepe de chine is also desirable.

The pattern is cut in four sizes: 2, 4, 6 and 8 years. To make a 6-year size will require 2¼ yards of 35-inch material. For collar, belt and band cuffs of contrasting material ⅜ yard 35 inches wide is required, and cut crosswise.

COUPON.

This pattern will be sent on receipt of 15 cents (silver or 2c and 1c stamps). Make number, name, address, etc., plain. Send to Pattern Department, The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, Pittsburgh, Pa.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

Good Health Means a Happy Disposition.

WHEN the nervous system is clogged by reason of eating too much food, or the wrong kind of food, conditions are created within the body that interfere with the nervous system. In consequence the victim becomes irritable, nervous and bad tempered.

DR. COPELAND

You know what happens when a furnace or stove gets clogged up with clinkers and ashes. The fire just won't burn unless the stove is cleaned out. There must be fresh fuel and fresh air if the fire is to keep going.

If an inanimate thing like a stove or furnace is affected by being clogged up what do you think will happen if there is clogging of the human system? It cannot operate properly.

The habitual use of excessive quantities of tobacco may result in sleepless nights. Anything that disturbs the rest should be discovered in order that it may be removed and the nervous system restored by proper sleep.

You don't need to worry about your brain and nervous system even if you are sleepless. You needn't think you are on the way to an asylum or a hospital. A little common sense applied to your eating and drinking will end your troubles.

More exercise, more water to drink, honest perspiration, and recreation of the right sort, will do much to promote your recovery from sleeplessness. You will be restored speedily to good nature and usefulness.

Of course, you can't be happy or good natured if you are unable to sleep. For the sake of your friends, if for no other reason, make an effort to shake off the symptoms and get back to a normal condition.

If others are as sensitive to their surroundings as I am, they always suffer when there is lack of good nature on the part of associates. One long face in a great big room will take the joy out of life from all the rest of the persons who work in those surroundings.

I might have greater sympathy for the person who suffers in this way. I would have if I were not so fully convinced that it is a condition founded on some physical state which can be gotten rid of by a little care.

Right eating, right drinking, right exercise, right sleeping, right playing—in these we have the secret of getting rid of conditions which produce sleeplessness and undermine good nature. You have it in your own hands to shake off your misery.

Horoscopes

Sunday, October 13.

SUNDAY'S horoscope holds excellent auguries for success, advancement, preferment and honors for those in the employment of others, for the clergy and affairs of church and state. These should attain place, profit and pleasure, but be careful in signing all writings.

Those whose birthday it is may look for a year of promotion and honors, with increase of fortune and the attainment of the ambitions and pleasant places. It is time to push for these, to approach employers and those in authority, but be very careful in the signing of all writings and makings of contracts.

A child born on this day may be splendidly endowed for positions of place, power and trust, but it should be trained to be cautious in the signing of writings and agreements and to be trustworthy itself in this respect.

Faith is the subtle chain that binds us to the Infinite: the voice of a deep life within.—Elizabeth Eakes Smith.

Monday, October 14.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a particularly active and enterprising day, with much agitation and general confusion. And while this may be prolific of some progress, yet there is a menace of subtlety and craft to be reckoned with. There is need for extreme precaution against fraud, treachery and misunderstanding in all transactions and in all relations. Also shun litigation.

Those whose birthday it is are assured a year of liveliness and much enterprise, but these are beset with dangers and hostility of a subtle and undermining character. They should be on guard in all transactions against betrayal, fraud and sinister doings and against litigation.

A child born on this day may be active, brave and resourceful, but may have a peculiar turn of mind and may be subject to subtle and sinister attacks.

Thus 'tis with all their chief and constant care is to seem everything but what they are.—Goldsmith.

Walter Winchell
On Broadway

Much Obliged

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.

YOU came to me when love had died
And sentiments and hopes were dismal,
And quite successfully you tried
To raise me from the vale abysmal,

I opened interested eyes
And studied you a while: thereafter
I vaulted gayly to the skies
And took another lease on laughter.

For I had but to look upon
Your face, and living then was lighter.

You made me what I am today,
And of your love I deeply drank: You
Came and taught me how to play,
So go on back again, and thank you!

—Robert Newcomb.

BEHEHER

KELCEY ALLEN, the critic and joke-spreader unfolded one yesterday about Acton Davies who was once one of the better New York drama defenders. Davies had rapped an actress for a full column and her nobleman husband (who never worked a day in his life but cashed in on his title) finally cornered the critic and they punched each other silly. Davies' editor spoke to him about the encounter the next morning.

"And," concluded the editor, "is is true that he bit your finger?"

"No," said Acton, "but I can understand how a report like that could get around. He's been living off other people for years!"

ADD WILDE ANECDOTES

Then, there's the Oscar Wilde nifty, which dealt with his contemporary, Algernon Swinburne, who during his last years was so irritable that he tiffed with everybody about everything. When he died they brought the news to Oscar.

"Poor Algy," groaned Wilde, "it's too bad. He won't like God at all!"

THE RETORT PROPER

VOYAGERS returning from London bring back this Frederick Lonsdale repartee from one of his comedies. The husband, it appears, defies his best friend to deny he has been carrying on an affair with his wife. "Don't be a fool," modestly replies the accused, "I never kissed her!"

"You lie!" counters the husband, "you know damn well you have!"

"See here," is the retort swell, "do you think I would be such a cad not to remember it?"

OF ALL CRACKS!

A MODERN CINDERELLA

TWENTY years ago Ramsay (Peace Messenger) MacDonald, who talked things over with President Hoover, was listed as the Norman Thomas of England, of no political consequence and negligible socially. The Labor victory which lately swung him into power elevated him by circumstance to a high social position.

Sir Esme (Another) Howard, the British ambassador, dislikes MacDonald's party and looks down upon him as an individual, yet he is compelled to sponsor him and Ishbel socially during their stay in Washington. Since MacDonald's election and the expectation that he would pay a diplomatic visit to this country, Howard has been seeking to be replaced at the Capital. He had hoped for a recall right up to a few weeks ago, in order to avoid the embarrassment of connecting with MacDonald.

In other words, you never can afford to be uppity with anybody. Even on Broadway the highest paid press agents will tell you that it doesn't pay to snub the other fellow, who today may only be a small-time hoofer, but 10 years from now a dramatic editor.

IN FEWER WORDS

THEN there's Frank Farron's crisp cracks: "The old-fashioned girl's dress used to cover her instep, but the modern girl's hardly covers her step-in."

PARADOX

Love raced, one night, into my heart
Hurling the very stars apart—
So great was its first sweep.
And yet, so lightly did it creep
Away, with the first touch of dawn
I scarcely knew that Love had gone.
—Estelle Hagedorn.

OBSERVATION

The New York Social Register contains many names duplicating those borne by less fashionable but more famous individuals, including film favorites.

Frinstance: Wallace Reid, William Boyd and John Gilbert. Also, the squaw of Edward T. H. Talmage is named Constance, and the Princess Miguel de Braganza was christened Anita Stewart.

Oh, yes, Hamilton Collitch offers an annual Greek prize of $1,000 which is donated by a Walter Winchell. Are you 'leffing?

QUIESTO, QUIESTO

Gil Swan passes along this chorus girl repartee:

1st Merry: "He's some sheik. He's getting into the best circles.'"

2nd Eyeful: "Circle! You mean he's crashing the best triangles."

JEANNEY'S DOG

NOT until Jeanne Eagels died last week did some of the locals discover that her widely known temperament was "a trait that every genius must possess." The Evening Telegram in a touching story about her career, so decided, at any rate, and Richard Watts, Jr., of the New York Herald Tribune, agreed. Most interesting to us, however, is that when Miss Eagels was working on the Paramount set in Long Island some time ago, a sign was posted warning everybody that they must not touch her dog.

The newspaper columnists, at the time, kidded her mercilessly for being so high hat. Now, it seems, they have discovered that she wasn't high-hat at all, but that on the previous day the dog had bitten and clawed strangers—and Miss Eagels wished to prevent further harm.

NIFTY

And Herbert Cruikshank has revised it to read: "Like Bow took Richman!"

DAILY ANAGRAM PUZZLES

TRY your hand at this fascinating game of Anagrambles—the game that is taking the town like the crossword puzzle craze took the whole nation for a ride through the dictionary.

The game is quite simple. Merely change the following words by the addition of the single letter indicated. Do not omit any letter of the original word. The letter may be inserted at the beginning of the word, anywhere within the word, or at the end. Thus, the word "pate," by the addition of the letter "l" becomes either "pleat" or "plate." The word "drag" may be changed to either "grade" or "raged" by the addition of the letter "e."

The original word must be changed in meaning by the commentary letter. To change "mine" by adding "d," to form "mined," would be incorrect. Rearrange the letters of your word to change its meaning, not its tense or number. Take a pencil now and write in your newly formed word in the spaces provided.

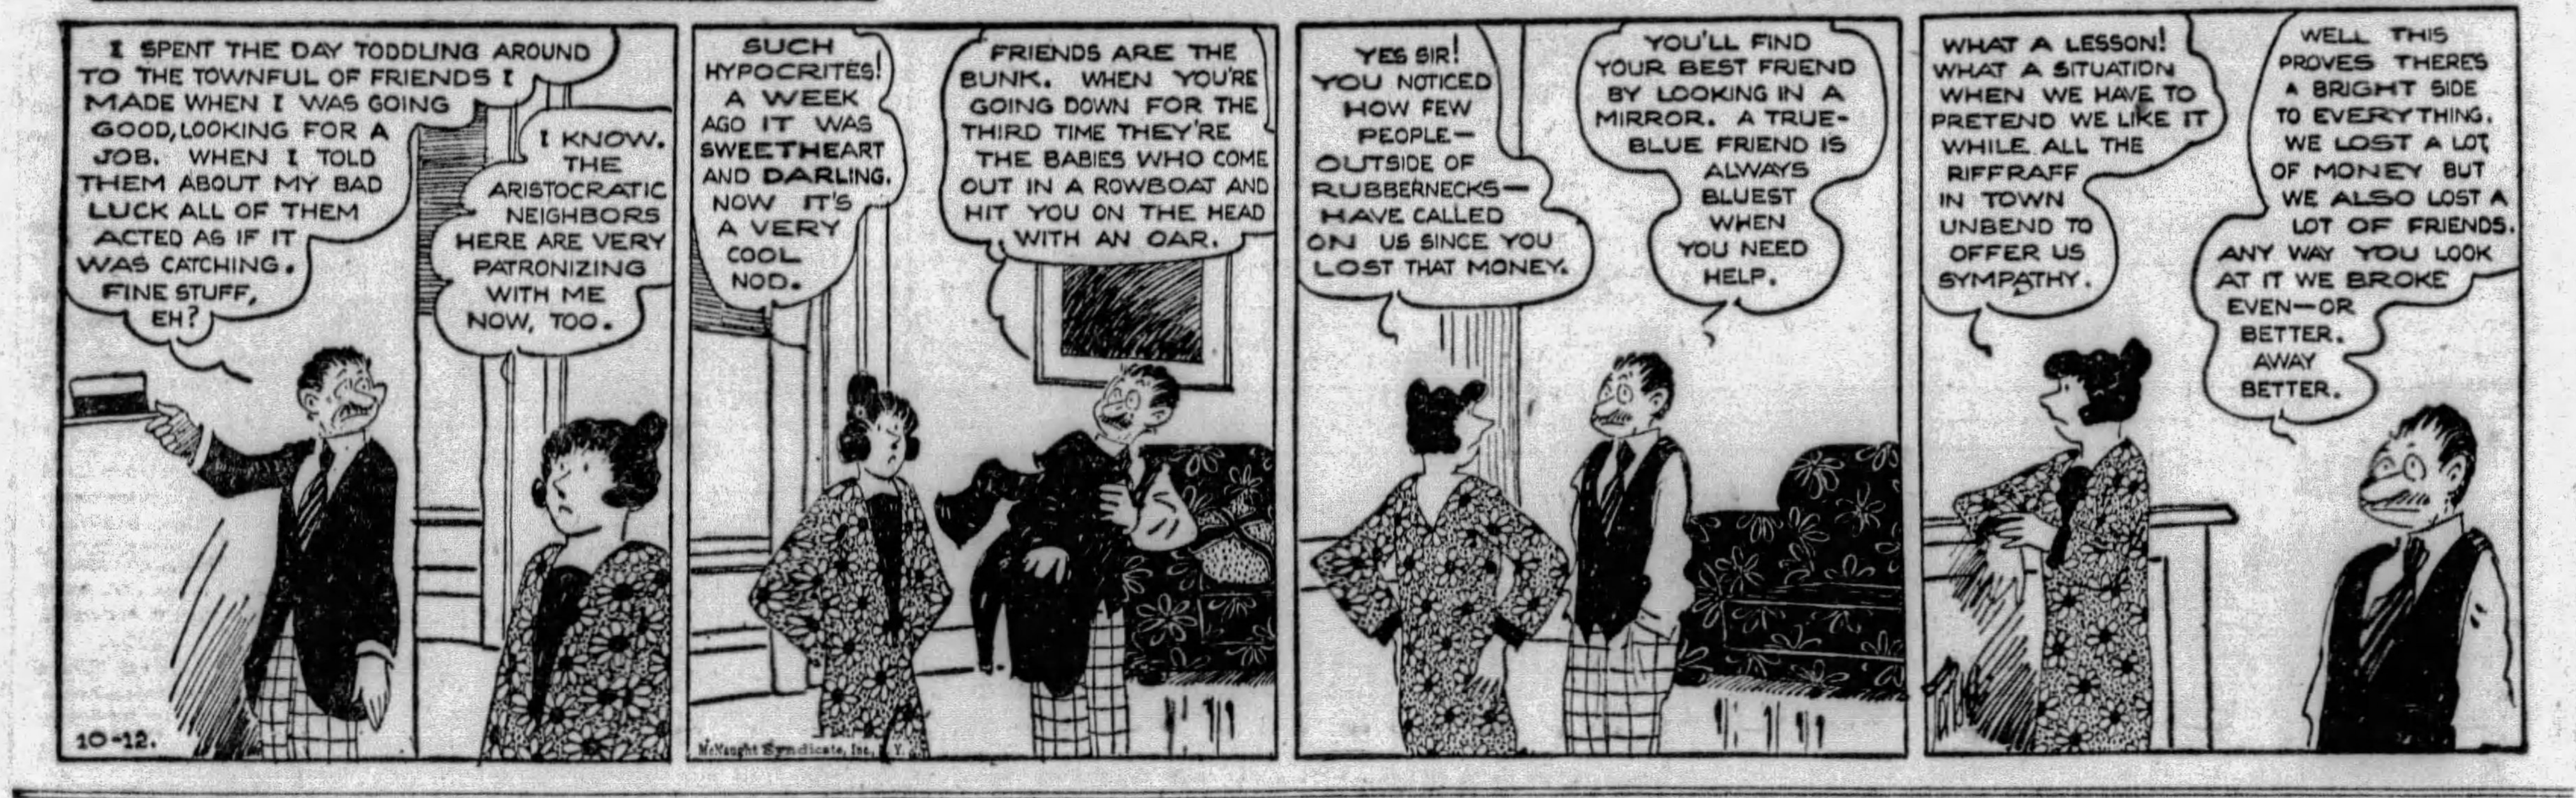
Consolation

By Tuthill



I SPENT THE DAY TODDLING AROUND TO THE TOWNFUL OF FRIENDS I MADE WHEN I WAS GOING GOOD, LOOKING FOR A JOB. WHEN I TOLD THEM ABOUT MY BAD LUCK ALL OF THEM ACTED AS IF IT WAS CATCHING. FINE STUFF, EH?
I KNOW. THE ARISTOCRATIC NEIGHBORS HERE ARE VERY PATRONIZING WITH ME NOW, TOO.
SUCH HYPOCRITES! A WEEK AGO IT WAS SWEETHEART AND DARLING. NOW IT'S A VERY COOL NOD.
FRIENDS ARE THE BUNK. WHEN YOU'RE GOING DOWN FOR THE THIRD TIME THEY'RE THE BABIES WHO COME OUT IN A ROWBOAT AND HIT YOU ON THE HEAD WITH AN OAR.
YES SIR! YOU NOTICED HOW FEW PEOPLE—OUTSIDE OF RUBBERNECKS—HAVE CALLED ON US SINCE YOU LOST THAT MONEY.
YOU'LL FIND YOUR BEST FRIEND BY LOOKING IN A MIRROR. A TRUE-BLUE FRIEND IS ALWAYS BLUEST WHEN YOU NEED HELP.
WHAT A LESSON! WHAT A SITUATION WHEN WE HAVE TO PRETEND WE LIKE IT WHILE ALL THE RIFFRAFF IN TOWN UNBEND TO OFFER US SYMPATHY.
WELL THIS PROVES THERES A BRIGHT SIDE TO EVERYTHING. WE LOST A LOT OF MONEY BUT WE ALSO LOST A LOT OF FRIENDS. ANY WAY YOU LOOK AT IT WE BROKE EVEN—OR BETTER. AWAY BETTER.

I was getting along nicely until one day I happened to glance over the transom and accidentally saw Mr. B—— kissing his wife. This made me very angry, and we quarreled. Men are brutes. I will not work for a man I cannot trust. That noon I lunched at the five and ten alone, and while passing the jewelry counter—

LIFE IS BECOMING SO COMPLICATED

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Miss Dorothy Rebasz invited five couples Wednesday evening for a waffle supper.

The young people had a lot of trouble figuring out their places, since each name was twisted about to spell something else. One early arrival who spied the names stuck to big sticks of peppermint candy, decided there must be some mistake, since she didn't know a soul present, and almost departed forthwith.

However, everyone arrived, remained, and had a big feed.

Let Nothing Endanger Voting Machine Success

The County Commissioners having arranged to put the question of voting machines up to the voters of the county in a referendum in the November election, State Senator Frank J. Harris calls attention of the need on the part of friends of voting machines to be active in its support. It is a practical stand he takes in pointing out that adoption of the machine may be endangered through over-confidence or through forgetting about the matter when at the polls.

The vote machine proposal is to be on a separate ballot in the form of two questions, adoption for the county as a whole as well as for the separate municipal divisions. The aim of supporters of the proposition is to carry it for the county as a whole, so voting by machine may be made uniform throughout the county.

In his comment on the superiority of machine voting, Senator Harris states that the method is less expensive in the long run than the present system of voting, as the initial cost of the machines is saved in a few years through economy of operation. That should be held to be a point almost as important as that of insurance against election frauds that voting machines provide.

Citizens who take the trouble—and it is but little trouble—to ascertain the advantage of the voting machine between now and election day are most certain to join the ranks of its supporters. Thousands of them already know of its advantages through having tested it in the extensive demonstration conducted by the Sun-Telegraph. They should act as missionaries now that the opportunity has come to bring this approved method of voting into actual practice here.

Sunfish in Park Lake—Oh, Boy! Paradise Opens!

Every man who ever was a real boy will applaud the act that makes Carnegie Lake, Highland Park, a fishing spot for the small youngsters of Pittsburgh. Eighty thousand sunfish, full grown, are to be planted in this lake Monday and the privilege of angling for them is to be exclusively that of the smaller children.

Every boy ought to have access to a place where he can fish, and a lad in Pittsburgh has been just out of luck in that respect. He has had his swimming hole and his place to play juvenile games, but no place to fish, and a boy's paradise is not complete without a pool from which he may entice a finny prize and thereby learn a lesson in skill, patience and perseverance while he is having a good time.

He still will lack some of the things that delight the youthful fisherman of the rural district, who, to fish, may have to pass through a bit of woodland, with its possibiilty of fancy in the way of Indians and other things of the mysterious forest, or over across the plank bridge, below which the stream is lined with willows that wave a salute in the slightest of zephyrs, and weeds the leaves of which turn from green to silver as a vagrant wave laps them beneath the surface. As he turns along the stream he will see minnows in the still places of the water and the promise of future plunder in the blossoms or immature berries on the brambles in the rocks along the shore. A scolding chipmunk will tease him to hurl a stone and the fragrance of wild places will entrance him. Such is a boy's paradise.

It is to such a place that he eventually will go—or will desire to go to—if he learns of the allurement of fishing through angling for sunfish in Carnegie Lake. He will prefer that to loafing in the streets and learning there lessons that will be detrimental instead of beneficial.

Corns on the Ear

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

"OUR future has not yet been tapped," as the politician said when he put the dictaphone on the mayor's wire.

"Bugs" Baer

If mayoralty campaigns are to be featured by party wires we will have to bolt the convention.

Mayor Walker, of New York City, knows no reason why opponents should play a finger polka on his switchboard.

Nevertheless, every time he used his telephone he was speaking to an audience with six-tube ears.

They tapped City Hall wires in 10 different spots. The Republican-Fusion party seemed to be the local G. O. P. and the Bell Telephone Company.

Every time Mayor Walker picks up the phone to give the official mumbles to a pal he has to ask:

"Is this a private conversation or am I a master of ceremonies?"

From now on to election day all information will be reliable if it comes from a trustworthy leak.

The mysterious tapping was first heard in City Hall about a month ago. At first it was thought that the aldermanic chamber was haunted by a ghost of the Citizens' party.

There was a rumor that the skeleton of a Republican has been found in the cornerstone of old Tammany Hall.

The tappings continued. It was a weird sound like the clacking of priceless pearls on a dowager's leathery neck.

The Mayor had just had a confidential talk with the governor or somebody.

The next morning he got 16,000 letters from radio fans congratulating him on last night's program.

Mayor Walker should put Graham McCracker, the illustrious radio denouncer, in charge of his campaign. That would puzzle the tappers.

His honor, the Jimmsie, doesn't mind folks squinching in on his private talks. But, he is afraid if it continues the eavesdroppers will demand dance music with their espionage.

We remember that something like this happened at the White House in 1918. It is also a popular indoor sport in suburban circles where two or three families use the same party wire and household secrets are as safe as the Belgian frontier.

We wish President Hoover would tell us when he is going to have an exclusive jabber with Premier MacDonald as we would like to tune in.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

EVERYBODY has disturbing influences in life, but are yours real or imaginary?

You feel that if you could rid yourself of these annoying, peace disturbing elements you could enjoy life to the fullest.

But your effort to drive out the cause of your fear is only half-hearted, and you are constantly tormented by these upsetting thoughts.

Instead of setting your forces up to successfully combat any attack or disaster you fear, you think only of how terrible it would be if it overtook you.

One woman writer called it "helpless and hopeless."

And you are becoming mentally flabby, confidence in self is slipping.

But it is allowing your imagination to travel along one line that has to do with that baffled feeling you experience.

When you are actually ready to undertake a certain thing you can get into it fast enough, it is just that you want things, but don't feel equal to the struggle involved that disturbs your peace of mind.

When you again begin to think about the disturbing elements in your life remember that it is an acknowledgment that you are not equal to the conflict, and that is why it worries you, and you would better brace up.

Bible Passages

Joseph's Strategy

(Genesis 44; 1-14)

AND he commanded the steward of his house, saying, Fill the men's sacks with food, as much as they can carry, and put every man's money in his sack's mouth.

And put my cup, the silver cup, in the sack's mouth of the youngest, and his corn money. And he did according to the word that Joseph had spoken.

As soon as the morning was light, the men were sent away, they and their asses.

And when they were gone out of the city, and not yet far off, Joseph said unto his steward, Up, follow after the men; and when thou dost overtake them, say unto them, Wherefore have ye rewarded evil for good?

Is not this it in which my lord drinketh, and whereby indeed he divineth? ye have done evil in so doing.

And he overtook them, and he spake unto them these same words.

And they said unto him, Wherefore saith my lord these words? God forbid that thy servants should do according to this thing.

Behold, the money, which we found in our sacks' mouths, we brought again unto thee out of the land of Canaan: how then should we steal out of thy lord's house silver or gold?

With whomsoever of thy servants it be found, both let him die, and we also will be my lord's bondmen.

And he said, Now also let it be according unto your words: he with whom it is found shall be my servant; and ye shall be blameless.

Then they speedily took down every man his sack to the ground, and opened every man his sack.

And he searched, and began at the eldest, and left at the youngest: and the cup was found in Benjamin's sack.

Then they rent their clothes, and laded every man his ass, and returned to the city.

And Judah and his brethren came to Joseph's house; for he was yet there: and they fell before him on the ground.

Edison

HE IS the wizard, the marvelous one
Who has lit for night's darkness a glow like the sun,
From the silence profound
He has captured sweet sound;
For the light and the song all men praise Edison.

Long are his labors and tireless his mind,
He, who has wrought for the love of mankind,
Toiling alone
In dim regions unknown,
He has fettered the forces of light and of wind.

Vast are his plans, his fresh tasks to be done,
Splendid the laurels his genius has won,
Giver of good
To all Earth's multitude,
Pride of his country, the great Edison!

HE EXCAVATED TROY

By Herbert Kaufman

AT THE age of 14, Henry Schliemann was working in a miserable, little grocery store at Fuerstenberg.

"My occupation," he writes, "consisted of retailing herrings, butter, potato-whisky, milk, salt, coffee, sugar, oil and candles: in grinding potatoes for the still, sweeping the shop and the like.

"We were lucky to sell $10 worth of goods a day. There, of course, I came in contact with only the lowest classes of society."

Family misfortune had dumped the lad in that malodorous mess, where he soon forgot his slight schooling and lost touch with everything that might remind him of the pastorate in which he was born—everything EXCEPT a solemn compact with his father to EXCAVATE TROY.

And that fantastic contract was made by a 7-year-old child in the year 1829.

HE sprained his chest lifting a heavy barrel, lost the grocery job and all but starved until destiny landed him on a cargo boat.

It was wrecked off the coast of Holland and, there, the penniless waif found employment with an Amsterdam firm at wages which hardly provided an unfinished gable room and one coarse daily meal.

Privation and bewilderment had practically destroyed his memory, but not that intention to EXCAVATE TROY.

He bought English books with his few spare coppers, read them while on errands and "waiting at the postoffice"—spent entire nights committing long passages to memory, and, in one year, could quote "The Vicar of Wakefield" and "Ivanhoe" VERBATIM.

Then he engaged a teacher to explain the meaning of the poll-parroted text.

By the same method, he successively acquired facility in French, Spanish, Italian and Portuguese. And, through his linguistic attainments, secured a post in an indigo importing house—added Russian to his list of languages—became St. Petersburg representative of the concern—saved salary increases and launched his own commission business.

AT 34, still set to EXCAVATE TROY, he plunged into the study of Greek, mastered the ancient dialects and, at 44, the little, blood-spitting German shop-drudge had retired with a fortune to devote his career to archeology and the EXCAVATION OF TROY.

No one even knew where Troy lay, but Schliemann found the spot, and not only uncovered the walls where Helen walked and Priam wept, but unearthed evidence of six other cities built, layer on layer, upon the same site.

His invincible will dragged Ilium from the grave.

A fragile, friendless, untutored pauper endowed the world with a more precious fund of classical knowledge than any scholar before or since.

HE chose a definite goal, and in the face of hardships and discouragements such as few humans have encountered, "kept everlastingly at it."

Handicapped by the frailest of constitutions, smitten by every imaginable grief, he accumulated the requisite fortune and amassed the incredible wealths of information necessary for the task, and EXCAVATED TROY.

But, after all, that was the LESSER benefaction. Humanity CAN peg along without the shards of vanished civilization—it's interesting to know where yesterdays delved and dared and died—but it's MORE IMPORTANT to know that there are no IMPASSABLE bridges across the gaps of time—that adverse odds, physical disability and even illiteracy can never deflect a really purposeful man for his destination.

SCHLIEMANN EXCAVATED TROY, and so can YOU.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By Elsie Robinson

NOWADAYS people say I'm a fine woman. They say I'm sensible, industrious, honest and kind.

BUT THEY DIDN'T ALWAYS SAY IT.

TIME WAS WHEN THEY SAID I WAS A PERFECT SAP.

Along back in my teens, people used to be mighty sorry for my mother and dad. They said they didn't see how two such fine people could have such a worthless brat. They said I fibbed. Which I did. They said I was almost too lazy to breathe. Which I was. They said I didn't have an ounce of respect in me—that I was impudent and scattered-brained and selfish and silly. All of which was true.

AND YET ALL THE TIME I ALSO KNEW I WAS A GOOD GUY.

Actually, I didn't like myself any better than they liked me—I was all tangled up with myself—I mortified and double-crossed myself constantly. And yet I knew that behind all this turmoil and confusion THERE WAS A REALLY WORTH-WHILE ME. And although I disliked myself and often despaired of myself, I REALLY BELIEVED IN MYSELF.

I was sure that the time would come when I wouldn't fib or raise Cain, when I wouldn't be lazy and silly and awkward and impudent—WHEN I'D BE THE REALLY FINE PERSON I KNEW I WAS MEANT TO BE.

It came because, in spite of countless falsities and failures, I believed in myself. AND I AM SURE THAT IF OTHER PEOPLE HAD BELIEVED IN ME AS MUCH AS I BELIEVED IN MYSELF THAT DAY WOULD HAVE COME MUCH SOONER.

I often think of that when I hear people criticizing the youngsters of today. I see myself so clearly mirrored in these youngsters. I see all my silliness and laziness and cowardice and selfishness and smartness—

I see how these qualities irritate older people. But, remembering back, I recall how those same qualities in myself irritated and discouraged me! And I know that these youngsters, in spite of their braggadocia, ARE IRRITATED AND DISCOURAGED WITH THEMSELVES, JUST AS I WAS.

I feel the confusion that lies behind their hard, young smartness—the dreams that waver behind their derision—

AND I KNOW THAT THESE YOUNG PEOPLE, IN THE FACE OF THEIR OWN FURY AND FALTERING, STILL BELIEVE IN THEMSELVES . . . AND THAT FAITH IS JUSTIFIED.

For every human that was ever worth shucks went through just what they are going through. Look, as I said before, what happened to me. If there ever was a hopeless mess I was it, and yet I'm drawing regular wages today. MIGOSH, IF LIFE COULD MAKE A RESPECTABLE CITIZEN OUT OF ME THEN ANYONE HAS A CHANCE. AND I'M ALL FOR GIVING THE KIDS A HAND!

Worst Story I Have Heard Today

By WILL ROGERS.

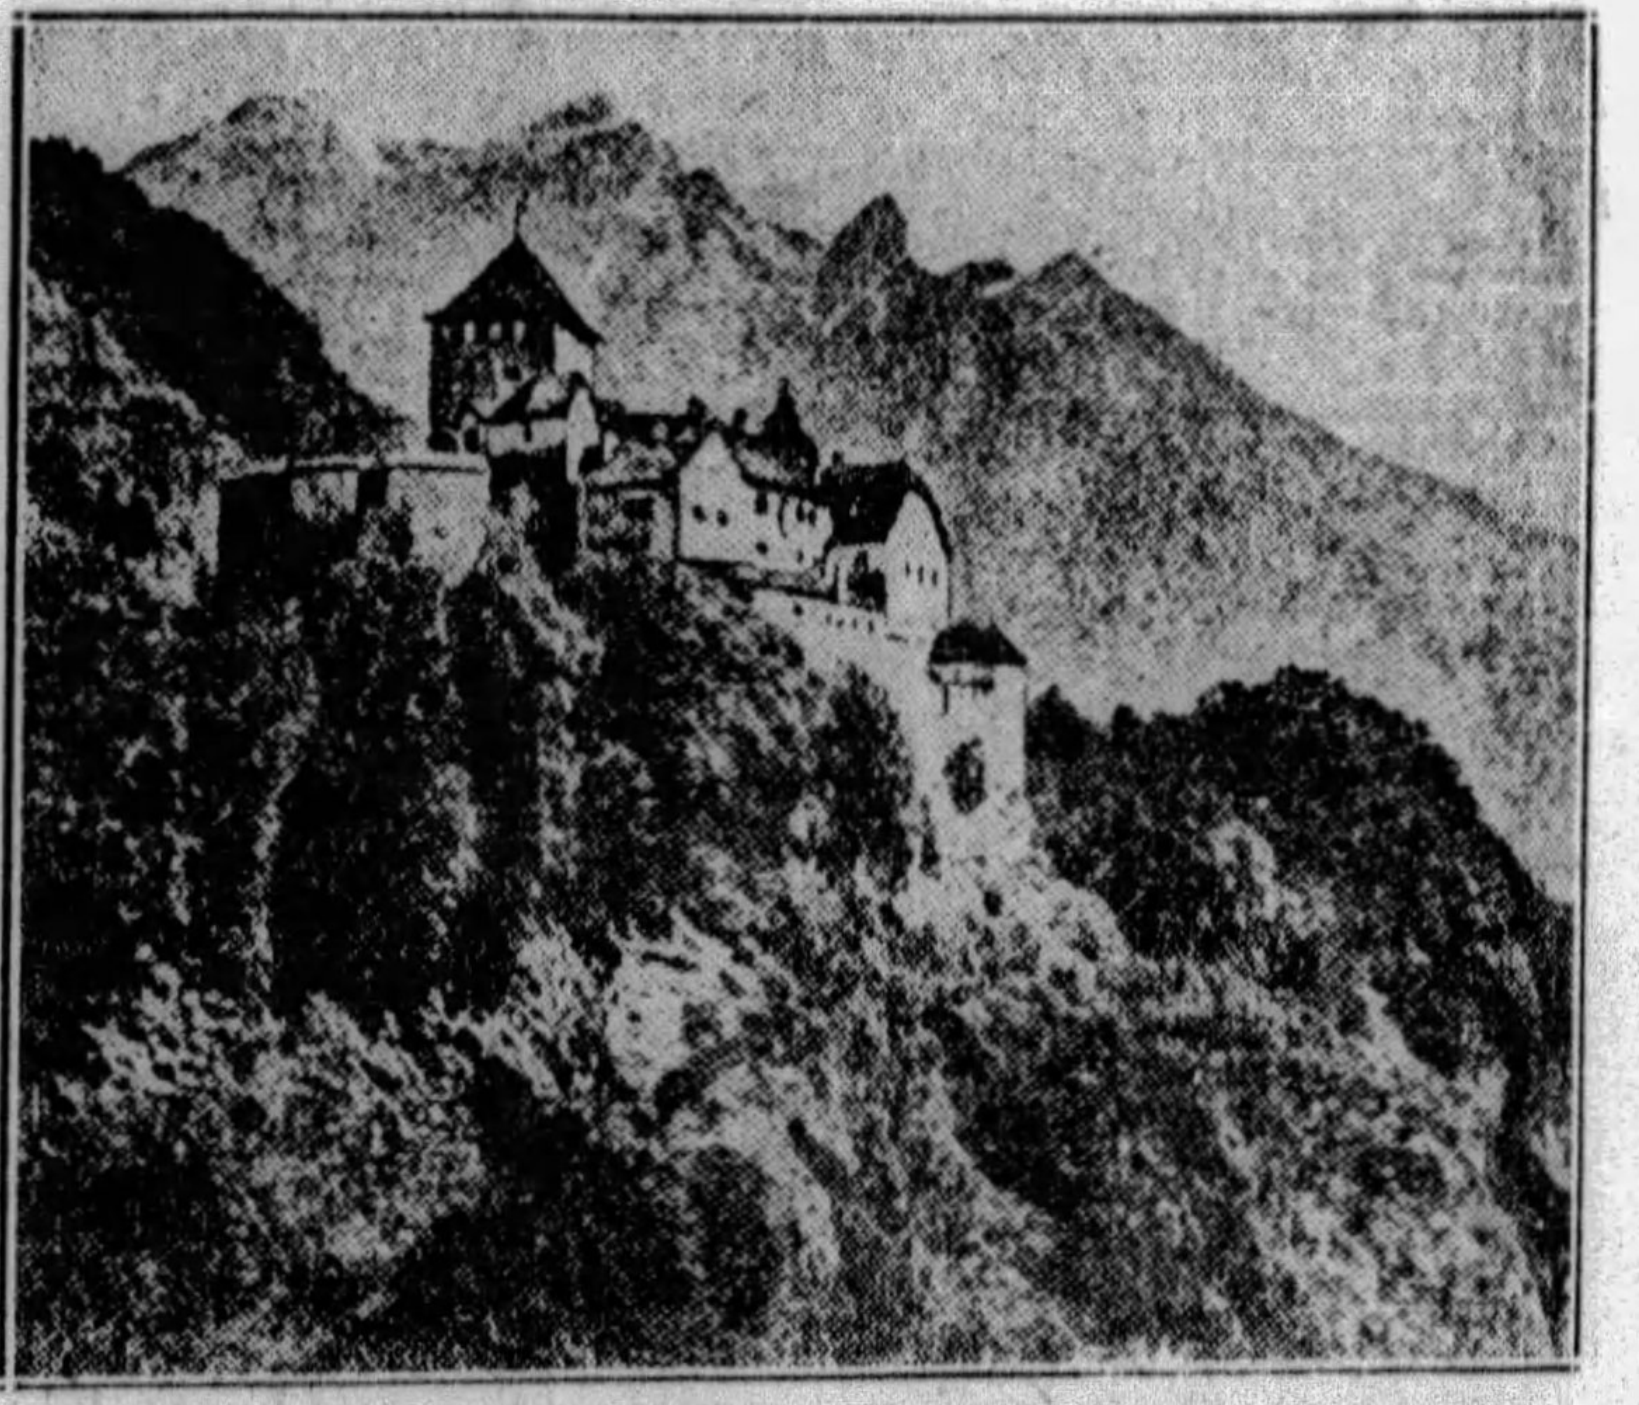
IT'S just wonderful the way these news real men get everything. Why, a fellow can hardly shoot his own wife any more, without having it in the movies or the talkies, just as it happened. There's a lot of these news reel men in Chicago, and there is a lot of competition among them. I heard that one of them was there with his talkie machine all set up when a gang went by in a big blue sedan and started shooting at a fellow on the sidewalk. The victim hollered for help and started to run, and the cameraman yelled after him, "Hay! Not so fast! You're getting clear out of the picture!"

King of Only 10,000

But the Castle Is Worth While.

LONG LIVE OUR NEW SOVEREIGN.

The picture above shows the Prince and Princess of Lichtenstein, Prince Francis I and Princess Elsa, recently installed, to succeed the late John II, as rulers of a tiny separate government with only 10,000 inhabitants.



A HOUSE OF INSPIRATION.

This little kingdom, retaining its independence after the upheaval of the World War, is one of few remaining relics of Europe's Middle Ages.

It isn't very much of a kingdom, but the Prince and Princess whom you see here, sitting on their throne, with the Bishop of Coire between them, lead happy lives.

Their people LIKE them.

And their castle, situated in the picturesque mountains and founded deep down on solid rock, is most beautiful and inspiring.

Of course it is what goes on inside the BRAIN—not the romantic aspect of the house in which man dwells, that counts.

Nevertheless, life in such a residence as this ought to be inspiring.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, October 12.—Those joyful midnight sailings of trans-Atlantic liners from New York may be completely abandoned next season. Many big boats have already returned to daylight departures. Weaving a daisy chain of festivity was lots of fun while it lasted, but it played hob with a ship's morale and equipment.

The pier sheds took on the hoop-la of a Mardi Gras night. Most passengers arrived from the theater or apartment parties in evening dress. Crowds tossed confetti, rattled noise makers and tooted horns. In some instances they brought along bands and orchestras.

One of the lines even offered "first aid" with push chairs to assist those who had acquired sea legs before going up the gangplank. The cabins, lounges and smoking rooms swarmed with merrymakers, and sedate voyagers retiring early had to lie awake and listen to the charivari.

In innumerable instances there was vandalism. Locked cabins were broken into, protesting men and women forced to accept rowdyism as playmaking. Mirrors and furniture were broken and tossed out portholes and fist fights were frequent. Sailings became a mixture of hell and shrapnel.

The ship crew often had to labor in double shifts for several days at sea to get things in order again. The "All Ashore" gong was to many just a noise, and it became necessary to drop off several convivial souls along with the pilot after the take-off.

Then there were at least a half dozen last summer who came abroad to say farewell, joined in the festivities and realized too late they were bound for Europe. One Wall street investor had this happen and in the throes of the next-day headache received word a tumbling market had wiped him out.

There is something of a spontaneous gayety about the start of an ocean voyage—a sort of forced explosive merriment to hide any show of depression. But midnight sailings developed so often into drunken orgies their doom is sounded. And it is a blow to the bootleggers.

An after dark amusement in the Roaring Forties is the jeering when a police wrecking squad pounces upon an over-parked auto in the restricted zone. A ponderous motor derrick lifts up the front of the car and moves off tumble-bug fashion to the nearest police station. The crowd waits for the owner, who, finding his car missing, indulges a duck fit. He is able to reclaim it at the station by paying a fine. And what he thinks about Whalen!

Two acquaintances recently struck financial shoals as the result of taking the advice of astrological seers too seriously. One had a first-class publicity job but was told by a prophetess he was wasting his time. She divined a remarkable career as a fiction writer. He quit his job to tackle literature. That was a year ago and he has not sold a line. Five editors have told him he is not fitted for his new role. And in the meantime, his successor has made good in the publicity post he left. And he's definitely off astrology.

Brock Pemberton came to Park Row from William Allen White's town, Emporia, Kan., and branching out as a theatrical producer, signalized his first effort with a smashing success. He now has the biggest hit of the season again.

At the cashier's cage in a rapid-fire lunch today a gentleman in front inquired if the cashier had the package about which he had phoned. She handed him something rolled in tissue paper which he unwrapped and slipped into his mouth—thereby taking a couple of pleats out of his jaws. "He's always leaving his false teeth here," she explained.

This frequently happens in restaurants, theaters, Pullman cars and even subways. Outside of being chased along a dark road by a spook I can think of nothing so likely to make the blood canter as to come suddenly upon a set of unanchored teeth.

Across West Seventy-second street this evening a top-hatted gentleman sat at the wheel of a swank limousine. All right in its way. But I'll never be satisfied until I drop down on the home folk in an airplane, wearing a silk hat.

Racing between 60 and 70 miles per hour and throwing spray from the Allegheny River near Sharpsburg, Miss Pittsburgh, home-built speedster, has developed 80 miles per hour with its 550 H. P. 16-cylinder motor built from Hispanos and other motors. It's expected to do at least 90.

A Cemetery Without Tombstones

In the Memorial Park the tombstone and the monument, and the curbs and lot-enclosures are to be banished forever. The graves will be marked with democratic simplicity by the use of Bronze Tablets laid flush with the surface of the lawn. The rich and the poor, the great and the small will all lie in a beautiful equality in the midst of this beautiful Park with no distinctions of caste or class.
